Veteran Actress Adviser On Edwin Booth Film Role

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Someone had to remain loyal to the theater." That was Eva Le Gallienne's explanation of why she has never done a movie until now.

One of the great names of the theater, Miss Le Gallienne is here to act as technical adviser on "Prince of Players," the biography of Edwin Booth. The Shakespearean actor and brother of assassin John Wilkes Booth is being portrayed by Richard Burton, star of "The Robe."

Miss Le Gallienne watched with careful eye as Burton, dressed in a "Hamlet" costume, quipped a theater mob that was hurling insults and waving banners that abused actors. It seems that all of the acting profession, and especially Edwin Booth, were decried after the shooting of President Lincoln.

When the extras had ended their clamor, I asked Miss Le Gallienne how she had been lured to Hollywood.

"It was for Shakespeare," she replied. "I will do anything to further my three favorites—Shakespeare, Ibsen and Chekhov."

She is not only advising on technical matters but will also make her first screen appearance in the film. She'll play with Burton in scenes from "Hamlet" and "Richard III."

"That was not part of the bargain," she admitted. "But they convinced me I should do it."

The actress speaks strongly on matters Shakespearean, and she had pointed comments to make about other films that have been made of the Bard's plays.

"I liked Olivier's 'Henry V,'" she said. "I think it was the best affair with Cleopatra, I didn't think he should have been played so athletically as he was by Marlon Brando."
