Parents, Students Strike For Segregation Return

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Five days of integration in Greenbrier County schools was ended today after school officials, confronted with angry parents and striking white students, ordered an immediate return of segregation.

The high school here was closed a half day to allow 23 Negro students, under police protection, to secure their books and return to their own school.

Some 60 parents protesting integration had threatened a mass meeting last night to remove bodily any Negroes who attempted to attend White Sulphur Springs High today.

In nearby Lewisburg, the county seat, the school board ordered an immediate return to separate schools for Negroes and whites. The segregation order came after an all-day meeting.

After the meeting, which began at 9 a.m. and ended 13 hours later, School Supt. D. D. Harrah issued a statement which said:

"The board hereby directs all principals to transfer all tentative enrollments of Negro students to Rolling High School (the Negro school) or to their nearest Negro elementary school, this policy effective immediately.

"... This directive rescinds and voids all previous action of the Board of Education in regard to segregation."

Yesterday's demonstration against integration involved about 300 of the 440 students enrolled at the high school. They marched through the streets of this mountain resort town, just five miles from the Virginia line, with placards reading, "no Negroes wanted in our schools."

Another demonstration was staged at Rupert, about 33 miles northwest of here where some 100 students also marched through the streets, protesting 14 Negroes attending their school.

The demonstrations were the first by the students since the U.S. Supreme Court last May held segregation in public schools was unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court did not order immediate integration but asked state officials to offer suggestions as to how desegregation might be carried out. A subsequent ruling is expected sometime this fall.

Social Security Benefits Related To Average Wage

By EVERETT EATON
Manager, Klamath Falls Office
Social Security Administration

"I've worked 40 quarters at the maximum wage rate so I'll get the maximum retirement benefit when I'm 65. Is that not true?" This is a statement we hear rather frequently in talking to people in the Social Security office and since it is not true I want to explain why.

When a person has earned enough quarters of coverage to be fully insured at age 65, whether he requires 40 quarters or less, he is assured of receiving a monthly benefit at age 65 and his survivors will receive such benefits as they are entitled to upon his death at any age. However, the fact that he has earned sufficient quarters of coverage to be fully insured, even if he earned them at the maximum wage rate does not fix the amount of his benefit in dollars and cents.

The benefit amount has always been related to the insured person's average monthly wage, ever since the first monthly benefit was paid in January, 1940. The 1954 amendments provide that benefit rates will continue to be based on the individual's average monthly wage. However, the new amendments allow what is called a "four or five year drop-out" in computing the average monthly wage.

Most claimants filing their initial claims in the future will have their wages, or self-employment income, averaged over the period beginning with January 1, 1951 and ending with the close of the calendar year preceding the year in which a valid claim is filed. In
