Violinist Tours Schools

Students of Klamath Union High School and all the city elementary schools were treated Monday to brief concerts by David Rubinoff nationally known musician whose repertoire ranged from "pure fiddlin'" of his own arrangement of a square dance melody to the great classics. For nine months of the year while on the road in concert, Rubinoff, whose violin is one of the famed 450 Stradivarius instruments in existence, rises from four to five o'clock and travels many miles in order to be in schools by 9 a.m.

It takes stamina and effort but Rubinoff, who earned much of the money for his education himself, devotes his great talent to as many as 1000 free school assemblies each year. He believes this rigid schedule pays back his appreciation in a measure for the benefits derived from a land where it is possible for anyone to do the same.

He held his young audiences spellbound with his treasured violin, once possessed by the Czar of Russia. It is insured for $100,000 and bears the elaborately jeweled and engraved coat of arms of the Romanoff family. It is the same instrument played by Rubinoff when he set a world's record attendance in Grant Park, Chicago, of 225,000 people at one concert. The famous artist will appear in concert in Mills Auditorium, Friday, September 24, under sponsorship of the Klamath Falls Lions Club. Tickets are now on sale from any member.
