Visitors — Mr. and Mrs. Don Murray, Portland, were hosts to guests this past week of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Reel and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barnes. Don Murray and Lee Reel were buddies during World War II in the famed Timberwolf Division.

In School — Ben Lawver Jr., son of Ben Lawver Sr., is attending Bacone College, Bacone, Oklahoma.

Square Dance To Be Held

Fenton (Jonesy) Jones, nationally known square dance caller, will visit Klamath Falls tonight (Wednesday) on the last stop of a tour of the Northwest.

Jones will call for an open dance this evening at the Do-Si-Do Clubhouse at the airport. Dancing will start at 8:30; with a potluck supper preceding at 9:30 p.m. to which all square dancers and their guests are invited, and are asked to bring their own table service.

The guest caller is a native of California and started his career 15 years ago as a hillbilly singer and guitar player. The following year he began calling square dances professionally.

His visit to Klamath Falls is the last lap of a four weeks' tour which took him through Nevada, Utah, Montana, Washington and Oregon.

Tonight's dance is being sponsored by the Wagon Wheelers, one of the newest square dance clubs formed locally. This is the club's first out of town attraction since its organization in April.

TAKE IT EASY

If you won't drive safely, you can't drive in Oregon

TAKE IT EASY is the slogan for Oregon drivers these days. Under the current crackdown reckless drivers are having licenses suspended and repeaters are under close scrutiny. Here, Nancy Moorefield, employe for the Accident Record Division of the secretary of state's office in Salem, displays the official slogan.

Vocal Expert Plans Speech

At the Oregon State Music Educators' Conference to be held this year October 8 and 9 on the Oregon State College Campus in Corvallis, Klamath Falls will be represented by a local teacher, Mrs. George W. McIntyre. She will be speaker and discussion leader at the vocal session of the conference, her subject, "The Healthy Voice."

new field has led to extensive research in the related subjects of acoustics, corrective speech, physiology, and psychology. It has included remedial work with many voices, and conferences with well-known throat specialists.

MRS. G. W. MCINTYRE

Use of the Larynx: Remedial Therapy for Laryngeal Nodes." Mrs. McIntyre's topic is a timely one, in line with the generally awakened interest in vocal health, and with the trend of throat specialists to recommend voice therapy instead of surgery wherever Discussed also will be the application of scientific fact as the basis of accurate teaching; the relation between speech, singing and personality; and the challenge the remedial field offers to teachers of voice.

Farmers Begin Spud Harvest

With good harvesting weather prevailing, farmers are putting in long hours in an effort to wind up grain harvest, get the second cutting of hay in the bale and finish combining clover before potato digging starts.

Following an unusual growing season, that set most crops back from one to two weeks, followed by early fall rains that slowed up the grain harvest and hay in g, many farmers are now faced with four crops to harvest simultaneously.

Most of the grain crop is in the bag but there is a sizeable amount of hay down and many acres of clover yet to be threshed. Spud digging is approaching fast with some digging already started in the Tulelake - Malin districts.

Clover harvesting in the Malin area appears to be farther along than in most localities, with some exceptional yields reported — not so with the potato yield, however. Two fields belonging to James Ottoman, north of Malin, yielded about 50 sacks per acre less than had been anticipated by the grower. Quality of the tubers was good, but small, Ottoman stated.

Many farmers in the valley are knocking down the spud vines with Rotobators, but actual digging operations will not get under way before next week, most growers agreed.

The harvest camp at Malin is full with a "no vacancy" shingle on the office door. Additional tents have been ordered but have not arrived, according to A. L. (Mac) McCullough, camp manager. Plenty of tent frames are ready for use as soon as tents arrive to cover them, he stated.

Classrooms in the school house at the camp boasts 58 pupils, with many more enrolled in the elementary and high schools at Malin.

Two teachers, Mrs. Lela Thurman and Mrs. Ben Johnson are employed to teach at the camp for the duration of the spud harvest.
