IT WAS A DINNER DANCE... and service was by a capable dining room crew — who kept the coffee cups full and were generally attentive to wants of the members and guests. Pictured above, seated (l to r), Carl Steinseifer, Mrs. John Ashley, Percy Murray, Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Eugene Hooker, Gene Hooker, and John Ashley. Buz Larkin, at the right, pouring. Standing, at the left, from the left, Mrs. Larkin, and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Egge.

DURING THE COCKTAIL HOUR... Earl Maskell and Charles Schuss, left, with Mrs. Schuss, Mrs. J. Martin Adams and Mrs. Maskell. The Club members and guests are still enjoying the "new look" recently acquired in extensive remodeling.

SUMMER FLASHBACKS — the "mirror" got lost in the swirl of wedding veils for a couple of weeks — but a few notes jotted down include the trip that Sally (Mrs. Don) Hitchcock and sprouts Martha Donna and Dickie took to join Don H. in Alaska — at Ladd Field where he's on a contract job — They flew up Pan-American and landed at Fairbanks in daylight which continued for three weeks — and WHAT it did to the children's conception of bedtime was something Sally was glad to leave in Alaska!

Dad met them and had been lucky enough to find a one bedroom apartment for the trifling sum of $175 per mo — plus $25 deposit against breakage or bendage — PLUS $40 deposit to get the lights turned on — plus cost of bottled water (an essential).

A trip to the end of the Alaskan Hwy system impressed Sally with its "definiteness" — You get into the car to drive to the end of the highway and that's what you do — it ends "like that" on the banks of the Yukon River — no dwindling into a narrow dirt road to meandering trail — So they didn't argue — but took a Yukon boat trip which turned out to be educational for the youngsters — they saw the natives living as they did before that salesman sold the first refrigerator to an Eskimo — A huge fish-smoking project was going on in a spacious tent-like structure — the catch from the fish wheels.

Fairbanks offered a day camp for children for one dollar per — with hiking, skating, swimming and general supervised play from 9 to 3 — On weekends they found plenty to do — picked blueberries which grow in tundra grass — which intrigued the KP vacationers — so "mossy" to walk on. The family also indulged in a territory weekend diversion — gold-panning in the many streams in the area.

They went to an Elk's family picnic and had a grand time meeting a surprising number of Elk and Elkesses — Ladd Field is a jet-plane base — or at least there were frequent jet maneuvers — and another diversion was watching the pyrotechnic display as the fast aircraft took off — they also got used to air raid alerts — up in that "close to Russia" town they're not taken lightly by the populace — that in itself was an eye opener and good reason to find it pretty wonderful to be back at 1739 Etna — with the two gals at school in Altamont and Dickie playing undisturbed in his own yard.

ANOTHER FLASHBACK — that should be recorded is a fish tale — and involves two fishermen — Brown and Ellenor Stoner visiting E's mother Rose Poole at Harbor — Ellenor had never been fishing before — (Amy's an enthusiastic) — Somehow Ellenor found herself with Amy and a guide in a salmon boat at the mouth of the Smith River at 5 a.m. one of the first few days they were there — They got out for bkst at 11:30 — and E insisted on "getting to fishing" — after they'd eaten — watching others haul in their catches was too much for her — so she stuck it out (Amy by this time watching her novice friend in spell-bound fascination) until at about 1 p.m. E got a strike — and the show began and continued until she landed the 22-pounder — now is she a CONVERT! — heretofore a strictly anti-everything-fish-gal.

JIM OWENS — who was here briefly for his sis's wedding — (Jean to Jim Finniger) — is getting some practical experience in greeting the public at Fairchild Air Base near Spokane — where he's assistant to the commanding officer at the officers club — A graduate of Oregon in '53 — he got his masters in retailing and merchandising at New York U — won the Saks Fifth Ave retailing-merchandising award for his thesis — On this trip not much time with his parents — Vern and Rose O — who had him part of the wedding weekend — he was here from 5 p.m. Sat to 7 a.m. Mon when he left for the base.

FIRST SON — to R. L. (Bob) and Nina Burke — Greg Board — weighing 7 lbs. 2 oz. — born in Guatemala City Sept 27 — The young lad is the fifth child for Joe and Olive Burke — ALL BOYS! — the other four are sons of Donna (Burke) and Tony Molatore. Bob's a geologist and mining engineer with a Guatemalan firm.

MARJORIE A. REDKEY — Marge — wife of fellow-student Sam — at U of O — got the "nod" the other day to start her practice teaching in the Eugene high school system — He's after a masters in education — doing graduate work — and she's a senior.
