War Ace Dies In Jet Crash

LANCASTER, Calif. (U. S. Quiet, soft-spoken George Welch, World War II triple ace who shot down four Japanese planes at Pearl Harbor, lost his life Tuesday while testing a jet plane high above the Mojave Desert.

Just what happened to his F100 jet Super Sabre isn't known. Witnesses said it exploded with a terrific blast and plummeted to the ground like a ball of fire. But officials at North American Aviation, Inc., where Welch was chief test pilot, said the blast might have been a "sonic boom" caused when a jet pulls out of a dive at high speed.

Welch, 38, managed to eject himself from the plane and parachuted, landing about two miles from where his plane crashed. But he was suffering from multiple injuries and was dead on arrival by helicopter at Edwards Air Force Base.

The plane crashed about 45 miles north of Los Angeles.

When the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, Welch, then a 23-year-old second lieutenant, became a national hero. He drove 19 miles from a bombed-out Wheeler field to an auxiliary field, commandeered a P40, took to the air and shot down four Jap planes before he was forced to land his bullet-riddled ship. Only five other American pilots were able to get into the air that day against the enemy.

THE KLAMATH COUNTY COUNCIL PTA is asking that anyone having used musical instruments that can be used by children of the schools, leave them at room 226A, KUHS office of Andrew Loney, director music education, Klamath Falls schools, for appraisal and purchase. A list is to be compiled to be sent to principals of all city and county schools. One third more students can be accommodated in classes taught by teachers already on school faculties without hiring others, provided the children have instruments for orchestra and band. James Schultz, seated, seventh grader, pulls a bow across an imaginary violin while pretty little Virginia Baffis, fourth grader and Gary Cooper, fourth, watch the birdie.

Woods Knowledge Saves Sportsman

ASPEN, Colo. (U. S. His knowledge of the mountains served Leonard Thomas, 43-year-old sportsman, well during the two days he was lost in the snowbound Rockies. The former New Yorker, who owns a swimming pool in this mountain resort, was found late yesterday, "hungry but in remarkably good condition." He was hospitalized overnight for a checkup. Thomas lost his way after leaving a hunting camp Sunday afternoon to investigate interesting rock formations with a Geiger counter. He found no uranium but saw "a lot of good elk." On the first night in the open, he used pine boughs to build a shelter against a six-inch snowfall.

CRASH ELST, Netherlands (U. S. A speeding diesel express crashed into a commuting train here Wednesday, killing at least nine persons. Among the dead was the driver of the express.
