Senator Cordon Defends Administration's Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Sen. Guy Cordon repeated his praise of the Eisenhower administration's record as he spoke Friday at the annual convention of the Oregon Republican Club at Salem.

But Richard L. Neuberger, his Democratic opponent for the U. S. Senate seat, sharply criticized the administration - particularly its power policies - in a talk before a party rally at Gold Beach.

Neuberger accused Cordon and Secretary of the Interior McKay of ending Bonneville's low cost federal power program. He said the welfare of small businessmen in the state depends upon a return to the Democratic administration's power policies and he pledged that if elected he will work to "revive these proven hydroelectric policies."

Reps. Walter Norblad and Harris Ellsworth, speaking at the Salem GOP meeting, said Neuberger seriously threatened Cordon's reelection chances.

"There isn't any question that Sen. Cordon is running a very close race," Norblad said.

"It's close," Ellsworth said. "However, I have recently been in Coos, Curry and Lane counties, and I can say that the tide is definitely turning toward Cordon there," Ellsworth reported.

Gov. Paul Patterson, who is campaigning for reelection, was to speak at the convention Saturday. He told a civic group at Ashland Friday that government costs in Oregon had increased from 40 million dollars in 1945 to 150 million.

He said the increase was due primarily to the hike in basic school support and more welfare payments.

"I don't think the people want to abandon these humanitarian services. We are trying to do a realistic job of administering the money for these services and outside experts tell us Oregon is doing one of the best jobs in the nation, particularly in the welfare department," he said.

WITH FALL WELL ON THE WAY and winter around the corner it's sometimes pleasant to look back over the summer scenes. This shot was taken last month at the lower end of Kimball State Park, located at the foot of Sun Mountain. Wood River bursts from a spring here, tall pines shade the clear water and provide a cool resting place for those seeking outdoor enjoyment. A good deal of cleanup work is needed at the park to bring it to top shape and it is hoped that this can be carried out in the spring.

Coon Tours Chiloquin, K. Agency

KLAMATH AGENCY - An informal meeting was held here Friday afternoon for U. S. Congressman Sam Coon, who is seeking reelection on the Republican ticket. Arrangements for a group to meet the congressman from this district and Mrs. Coon were made by Bill Lorenz, former mayor of Chiloquin, through Boyd Jackson, Klamath Indian delegate.

The guests were shown the proposed site for the new Chiloquin school which has been made possible through legislation introduced by Congressman Coon. Work will commence on the project early in 1955.

Coon explained some of the background for the legislation which allocates $208,000 of federal money to aid the taxpayers of Klamath County in erecting this school.

"There is a law which permits the federal government to assist an area where there are wards of the government attending school," Coon stated. "Klamath County, however, by reason of its pay-as-you-go plan, was not eligible for funds, so it required a special Act of Congress to take care of the hardship that actually existed."

Carroll Howe, Klamath County school superintendent, requested that action be taken," he recalled, "and supplied supporting information to present to the committee. Approximately 65 per cent of the children who will attend this school are Indian," Coon stated.

After nearly a week in Klamath County, Congressman Coon will be guest speaker at a Saturday night dinner at Condon, sponsored by the Gilliam County Republican Central Committee, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be spent in Deschutes County, the congressman and Mrs. Coon going to Prineville Wednesday night for a Crook County Republican rally and dinner will honor them at Madras that evening.

Saturday, October 23, the Republican congressman and Mrs. Coon will return to Klamath County to attend the final day of the 18th annual Klamath Basin Potato Festival being held Friday and Saturday at Merrill.

The final week before election they will campaign in Wasco, Umatilla and Union counties. The Students-for-Sam group at Eastern Oregon College at La Grande has planned a full day of activities while they are in Union County, climaxed by a dinner in the evening.

Hardware Men Plan Meeting

A new hardware credit plan to finance thousands of dollars worth of new business a year in hardware stores in Washington and Oregon will be launched at the local level through fall group meetings of the North Coast Retail Hardware Association.

A meeting will be held here at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, at the Winema Hotel, with Larry Adams, Rogge River Hardware Company, Grants Pass, in charge of arrangements.

Accompanying Adams will be Paul C. Purdue, of Auburn, Washington, president of the North Coast Retail Hardware Association, and A. R. Mano of Medford, director of the National Retail Hardware Association.

The hardware budget plan is a standardized method of conducting all phases of installment selling, designed to fit the smallest and largest hardware store, to improve profits, increase traffic, meet competition and develop new markets.

This new type of selling will be dramatized by the Black & Decker Manufacturing Company for the local dealers.

The group is having a regional meeting at Bend Monday prior to coming here.

Persons interested in attending the dinner at the Winema Hotel Tuesday evening, are asked to call the office of Roy W. Benedict, Lorenz Company, 4171, so that adequate seating can be arranged.

Union Merger Meeting Held

WASHINGTON (AP) - Heads of the nation's two biggest labor organizations have reported progress on long discussed but elusive merger plans.

Both George Meany and Walter Reuther, president of the AFL and CIO respectively, said after a conference Friday they are determined to keep working toward amalgamation of their groups. And they spoke with optimism of matching a 19-year-old breach between the two.

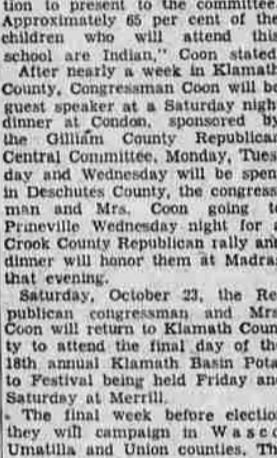

The uniting of the organizations which have competed since a few unions departed the AFL in 1935 to form a new labor force would bring together a combined membership estimated by the unions at close to 15 million.

Committees would up merger negotiations Friday with a decision to name representatives to draft a constitution for the projected merger. They also agreed to put aside organizing rivalries for the time.

Leaders said no individual union would be forced to surrender part of its current membership to another under proposed merger terms.

Meany and Reuther talked of results within a few months. Separate AFL and CIO conventions would have to ratify the constitution worked out by subcommittee, then a joint assembly would put it into effect.

Notably absent from the merger talks was John L. Lewis, who played a major role in forming the CIO years ago. His United Mine Workers is now independent, and he wasn't invited to Friday's session.
