Missing Girl Wanders Home

OKANOGAN, Wash. (AP)—A hardy 5-year-old girl who trudged 20 miles in 20 hours through the wilds of north central Washington wandered safely into a ranch yard 50 miles north of here yesterday as an army of men sought for a trace of her.

The first words of little Joyce Abel as she entered the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Wanger were: "Was Mommy worried?"

The Wanger ranch is 20 miles southwest of the home of Joyce's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Abel from which she wandered Saturday while playing.

As hopes dimmed yesterday that Joyce had survived the freezing night she walked, tired but unharmed, into the Wangers' yard and told of traveling downhill through the darkness across rock-strewn fields and gravel plains.

After she was reunited with her parents, a family friend said, "She's not as tired as most of the searchers; she was dressed in fresh clothes by 10 a.m. and ready to start playing again."

Wounded Driver Completes Trip

WELLS, Nev. (AP)—A Salt Lake City bus driver brought his Greyhound bus safely into Wells last night, although bleeding from a knife wound in the side.

The driver, D. H. Stump, told authorities he was stabbed by an elderly passenger who apparently went berserk when he told the man he couldn't leave the bus on lonely Pequot Summit, 20 miles east of Wells on U.S. Highway 40.

Stump said the passenger slashed the hand who attempted to intervene, and then stabbed Stump in the side. In the turmoil that followed, Stump said, the man escaped.

Neither Stump nor the unidentified passenger was said to be hurt seriously.

New York Trucking Firms File Suit Against Union

NEW YORK (AP)—A truck strike hit the New York area's first full business day today as a strike-bound trucking firm planned to file a damage suit for 10 million dollars.

A prolonged strike was predicted by the employers' chief negotiator, Joseph M. Adellizi, when he announced yesterday that the suit would be filed today. He said most employers would hold out against demands of the AFL Teamsters Union, its international president, Dave Beck, and 7 of the 12 striking locals.

The suit accuses the union of unfair labor practices and failure to bargain in good faith. It charges that the union and the companies that signed contracts conspired together to "seize and steal" business from firms holding out against union demands.

The union has insisted on a 25-cent hourly package increase. The employers' highest offer was a 10-cent package. The union rejected this as well as an employers' offer to submit the whole question to an arbitrator.

Hourly wages now range from $1.77 for helpers to $2.21 for drivers of trailer trucks.

The seven trucking firms named in the announced suit were the McLean Trucking Co., Gerosa Hauling Co., H. C. Bohack, A&P Food Stores, Riss & Co., Branch Motor Express and Century Trucking Co.

Adellizi said they also will be sued for violating an employers' agreement to sign no separate contracts.

David Kaplan, a top teamster leader and the union's chief economist, said of the employers' proposed suit:

"We consider this an act of desperation on their part to stop the collapse of their resistance and to prolong the strike. They hope to scare many of the operators from signing."

The general cargo strike affects metropolitan New York, all of Long Island, New Jersey as far south as Trenton and New York state up to Poughkeepsie.

Pet Moose Poses Many Problems

CLINTON, B.C. (AP)—Young Barney is getting downright pampered—and brother, does he love it.

And the Marvin Mayfields probably have the fastest growing family, pound for pound, in North America.

The family consists of Mary, his wife, three little girls, one little boy and one not-so-little moose, Barney.

Mary found Barney when he had been in this world about one week. The little bull moose was lying alongside a road near this interior British Columbia community 200 miles north of Vancouver, too weak to stand. The mother was nowhere in sight.

Mayfield had to make a choice. Should he take the baby moose or should he leave it there to die? He knew if he took the little moose the mother, in keeping with the law of the wild, would have nothing more to do with her baby after it had been touched by human hands.

Mayfield decided to take the little guy. He loaded him into his truck. At home, he and his wife first fed Barney with a bottle and then from a bucket.

Now Barney, six months old, is just like one of the family.

At 5 a.m., the eldest Mayfield daughter always goes out to milk the cows. Invariably the little Mayfield boy tags along and, as is the habit of small boys, leaves the kitchen door open.

Barney doesn't miff the chance. In the house he goes, eating anything he can lay a tooth in the kitchen. The davenport is the next stop, sort of an after-breakfast nap.

Mrs. Mayfield recalls the time she mixed up a big batch of pancake batter and set it on the sideboard only to have Barney gobble it up.

No hay for Barney.

But he really goes for milk. He guzzles six gallons a day. Vegetables and fruit help fill up the empty spots, plus what he can scrounge in the kitchen.

Mayfield has a fenced-in pasture near the house and that's where he will try to keep Barney when he grows horns, just in case some trigger-happy hunter shows up in the neighborhood.

One thing worries Mayfield. Barney is a growing boy . . . or, moose . . . and his 300 pounds just about blows out the davenport when he's resting now.

What, asks Mayfield, is going to happen when Barney adds the 700 more pounds necessary to fill out the frame of a full-grown moose?
