

Reelection Of Ellsworth, Norblad Believed Certain

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR.

SALEM (AP) — The Republicans aren't "running scared" in the 1st and 4th Congressional districts of Oregon like they are most everywhere else.

They are certain that Reps. Walter Norblad, Stayton, and Harris Ellsworth, Roseburg, will be re-elected.

In these two districts, which never sent a Democrat to Congress, it looks as though the Democrats have little chance.

Norblad, a lawyer who represents the Northwest Oregon district, has been in Congress nine years. He hasn't done much reelection work this time, spending much of the campaign attending hearings held by the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

His opponent, Donnell Mitchell, Willamina salesman, hasn't worked very hard, either. Norblad, like all of the other Republican candidates for Congress in Oregon, stands on the record of Congress during the first two years of the Eisenhower administration.

He hasn't discussed the power issue, and has separated himself from the bitter Gordon-Neuberger campaign for the Senate.

Mitchell, like the other Democrats, wants federal development of the power dams, lower taxes for the working man, laws favorable to labor, more industries, and more social security.

Norblad's main emphasis has been the fact that he has some seniority in Congress, and he says this makes it possible for him to serve Oregon better. He's Western Republican whip, and serves on the Armed Services and Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committees.

In Southwest Oregon's 4th district, Harris Ellsworth is opposed by Jerry Charles O. Porter, 35-year-old Eugene lawyer.

Ellsworth is campaigning a little harder than Norblad is, but he's just as confident.

This district was created in 1942, being split off from the 1st District. Ellsworth, a former newspaper editor, is the only man who's ever represented it.

Here there are the same power issues, with a couple more thrown in.

Ellsworth, like Norblad, says he's risen to a power position in Congress that helps Oregon. He's third-ranking member of the House Rules Committee, most powerful committee in the House, because it decides what legislation goes to the floor.

Ellsworth points proudly to his legislation to open up the national forests to timber operators, but Porter argues that this is to help the big operators.

Porter also advocates admitting Red China to the United Nations, lower taxes, and higher farm price supports.

Despite the Republican confidence in the 4th District, there are signs that the district might vote Democratic some day.

Having become the lumber center of the world with vastly increased numbers of laborers, the Democrats are making gains each election in voter registration.

However, Ellsworth won by a 2 to 1 margin two years ago, so it doesn't look as though he has to worry yet.

While Democratic leaders over the state are jubilant about their chances, I couldn't find any who believe that they can beat Norblad or Ellsworth.

Rebuilt Carrier Joins Fleet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The reconditioned and modernized USS Oriskany, now one of America's most potent jet-age aircraft carriers, will sail Friday to join the active fleet. The Navy announcement did not say where the carrier is going. The Essex class Oriskany has just completed a five-month overhaul at Hunters Point Navy Yard, where she was equipped to handle the fastest and largest of ship-based jet planes.

Duck Picking Plant Aids Hunters In Tulelake Area

By RUTH KING

TULELAKE — Assembly line procedure in Jack Cier's "duck picking factory," operating for the second consecutive year, de-feathers ducks and geese so speedily that "there's nothing to it."

Gone are the old days when a bedraggled denizen of the duck blind, wandered home and cast a pleading eye at his spouse, hoping she'd take pity on him and pick the birds.

Usually he wound up with feathers in his own hair. Modern day sportsmen who love the feel of a wet wind against their eyebrows, the smell of the marsh and the sound of wings coming out of the dawn, take their birds to a commercial picking plant for picking, drawing, packing and shipping if they happen to be hunting in this locality from some other part of the West away from the migratory wildfowl flyways.

Duck picking in these days has been reduced to a science. The birds are checked in with Cier or a member of his crew, tagged for identification and go directly to the picking room, after wings are cut off and tailfeathers are pulled out.

They come in by the hundreds at the end of a day's shooting and are piled like cordwood in wire baskets waiting their turn at the picking machines, which are small, nearly waist-high tables centered with a revolving drum.

This drum, operated by electricity, has spaced pieces of flexible rubber tubes that slick a duck clean in exactly 22 seconds. The Cier plant has three pickers. All are operated at full speed from about 6 p.m. to 3 a.m. on a good shooting day.

Feathers are kicked back, dry, into a small room at the rear of the pickers, to be shipped later to a plant in Los Angeles to be

Korean Money Meeting Held

SEOUL (AP) — A South Korean government spokesman said Thursday there was "no progress at all" in a 3 1/2 hour meeting between President Syngman Rhee and Gen. John E. Hull, U. N. Far East commander, over the dollar-hwan currency dispute.

The statement came from Paik Too Chin, South Korean economic coordinator, Hull, who flew here from his Tokyo headquarters, had no comment except to say the talks would continue Friday.

The dispute over the exchange rate and the handling of a new 700 million dollar U.S. aid program has plunged South Korean-United States relations to their lowest ebb since the armistice.

South Korea suspended paying hwan to the U.S. military Oct. 1 because of American refusal to pay past advances at the official exchange rate of 180 hwan to one U.S. dollar. This left 100,000 Korean employees of the U.S. Army without pay and stirred up angry statements from both sides.

Starlings Flee From Radio Call

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—A radio station and residents of two Illinois cities have ended a novel campaign to get rid of starlings and are hoping the experiment in bird pest control was successful.

For four days this week, in 15-minute programs, the radio station broadcast the distress call of the starling. Preceding the recording were a few minutes of recorded selected noises, gun shots, bomb explosions and miscellaneous pops and bangs. They were described as the "swiftest sound you ever heard."

Radios throughout the twin cities of Champaign-Urbana, home of the University of Illinois, were turned on full blast during the broadcasts. Many persons placed portable radios in yards or open windows.

Motorists, joining in the community project to rid the cities of the birds, parked under trees in which hundreds of the starlings roosted, and turned on car radio sets. Some political candidates volunteered loud-speaker trucks.

The recorded starling distress call, described as sounding like "eeeeeek, eeeeeeek, eeeeeeek" was obtained in cooperation with police and the University of Illinois.

The police captured a starling—which was no problem because of the thousands in the cities. The university's Electrical Engineering School strung the bird up by the heels, then cut a tape of its distress call.

Larry Stewart, manager of radio station WDWS, which made the broadcasts, said residents reported good results. But, he added, he didn't know where the departing birds went.

"We're keeping the distress call on file in case they come back," he said.
