

Oregon Tech, PSC Clash In Homecoming

Owls, Vikings To Battle

Modoc Field is the scene for one of the most important Oregon College Conference football battles of the season, as the Oregon Tech Owls, undefeated in conference play, tangle head-on with Portland State College in the Owls' homecoming game of the season, with kickoff time scheduled for 8 o'clock.

The Vikings from the big city college are all primed and ready for the Owls following their 13-0 upset over Oregon College of Education last weekend, and threaten to spoil Oregon Tech's homecoming.

It is beginning to take shape as a battle of two big lines, as PSC boasts a probable starting lineup that averages close to 200 pounds per man, while the Owls will probably start a front line that scales in at 200 pounds per man.

INTERESTING
The duel of the backs could very well prove interesting as Coach Rex Hunsaker, although weak in depth for the team as a whole, has a runner supply of outstanding runners, with Odie Canale, Willie Simpson and Doug Crippen leading the way, while the Vikings can counter with such ground gainers as Jerry Garrett, Don Bowerman and Gordon Bigler.

Hunsaker and his two gridiron assistants might be without the services of two starting linemen, as Don Pierce, a letterman tackle, and John Alford, freshman end, are limping from injuries in the Lower Columbia game last Saturday and will not be ready for full-time duty, and just how much action either of the two boys will see is uncertain.

Tonight's game, should the Owls win, would place them in a comfortable position in the league race with two wins and no losses, and should SOCE lost to OCE tonight at Ashland, the Mile High Campus crew would be on top of the heap all by themselves.

TITLE PICTURE
Portland State on the other hand is still in the thick of the conference battle, as they have won one and lost one, but their win last week over the Wolves was a big one towards keeping them in the title picture, and should they wish to stay in the limelight of conference glories, they will have to knock off the Owls tonight.

In past meetings, Oregon Tech has won two-out of two and tied two in six games, tonight, the 2-2-2 deadlock will be broken one way or the other, as two of the top OCE big guns battle it out to the line.

Coach John Holland of Portland State will probably start the same lineup that he used against OCE last week, with Jim Wells and Jack Knudsen at the two guard posts, Jerry Winn and Jerry Maurer at the tackles and Gene Rider and James Wagner at the two ends, while the center position will probably be manned by Charles Odger. The weight range on the Vikings' forward wall is from 185 pounds to 210.

IN THE BACKFIELD for the Viks will be Del Kiggins or George Robertson at the quarterback spot, while Bigler and Ron Biscaglia seem to have the inside track on the twin-halfback duties. Bowerman, a hard-running letterman will have the job of line busting from the PSC fullback position when the two slugs meet tonight.

Going all out to make their homecoming a successful one, the Owl coaching staff, Hunsaker at the helm, the backfield boss and Bob Smith the OTI line mentor, will probably stick with the same lineup that was used against LCJC last week, with the exceptions of Alford and Pierce.

At the two end positions will probably be Ken Sloan and Paul Weaver, while Charles Eccleston might get a starting nod at the wing spots. The two tackles will probably go to Duane Reeder, of Henley High School athletic fame, and Greene Rudd letterman from last year's club, while Spike Carter and Dennis Johnson or Jack Thur will be at the two guard posts. The center duties will be taken care of by Kent Crawley.

UNDECIDED
In the backfield for Kirkland it is still undecided as to what four he will start against the Vikings, but what ever quartet he picks, it could mean trouble for the invaders.

Two quarterbacks, Ray Rosa and Dave Thomas will be available for duty against the PSC eleven, while the halfback job can be manned by Canale, Simpson, Cal "Sugar" Smith, Linous Allen or Lyle Fleetwood with no questions asked. In the fullback position, Doug Crippen and George Johnson will be ready and waiting for the opening call, as each are potential scoring threats against the Viking defense.

THE CENTER OF ATTENTION is focused on Oregon Tech's 1954 Homecoming Queen Judy Crawford, as the Owls' head coach Rex Hunsaker, left, seems to be getting a secret or two on football techniques from the honored queen, as letterman Dennis Johnson lends an open ear also. Who wouldn't? Game time for the Portland State-Oregon Tech conference battle is 8 o'clock on Modoc Field.

Miami University Upsets Maryland 9-7

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press

Whatever chances the University of Maryland had of returning to the Orange Bowl this New Year's Day appeared doomed today in the wake of their 9-7 defeat by Miami (Fla.).

Last night's game was an important one for Jim Tatum and his Terps. The national champions last year, they have taken a bad nose-dive this season and now are out of the national picture. They dropped an early season game to UCLA and were tied by Wake Forest in addition to the Miami defeat.

For the undefeated Hurricanes, the victory will do much to enhance their national ranking. They are ineligible for a bowl bid, however, because of difficulties with the NCAA.

Illness Sidelines US Net Star

NEW YORK (AP) — A liver ailment will keep Capt. Bill Talbert behind when the U.S. Davis Cup team leaves for Australia Nov. 5, but he is expected to join the team before the cup matches in December.

The U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn., which announced Talbert's illness Friday, said it would not name a substitute captain unless the 35-year-old New Yorker is unable to make the trip. Talbert, in a New York hospital, led the U.S. squad in Melbourne last year when the Aussies won 3-2.

The U.S. team must play Sweden in the interzone finals at Brisbane Dec. 17-19 with the winner playing Australia in the challenge round Dec. 20-21. With Talbert on the team are Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, Tony Trabert of Cincinnati and Hamilton Richardson of Baton Rouge, La.

Record Holder Seeks New Mark

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The man who set a world free diving record of 350 feet last month will try to go deeper Sunday with 450 feet his goal.

John Clark - Samazan, 30, will have five tanks of oxygen-helium mixture strapped to his body. The three on his back will contain 18 per cent oxygen and 82 per cent helium and those on his front 15 per cent oxygen and 85 per cent helium.

He'll have two mouthpieces and will use the back tanks until he reaches 35 feet and then switch to the others. He says this is to avert "oxygen poisoning" from getting too much oxygen at high pressure.

Clark - Samazan, a former student at Oxford University in England and now a professional diver employed by the Los Angeles Department of Public Works, will follow a steel chain down. The chain, attached to an anchor, will have a marker at 450 feet. The diver will attempt to tear this off to verify his depth.

Experts Look For Top Talent
SEATTLE (AP) — A team of 11 experts is scanning the Northwest's football scene in a search for All America talent and its findings to date indicate the crop is going to be skimpy.

The one man they have pegged as a strong possibility for The Associated Press All America team is Oregon's George Shaw, the senior quarterback who earned third team rating last year.

Recommended for All Coast consideration by several members of the selection team is Duke Washington, the power-running fullback at Washington State. The performances of this pair — as well as all other players in the area's major colleges — will be under close scrutiny by the Northwest Regional All America board for the remainder of the season.

The board members, most of whom are serving for the second straight year, are Herb Ashlock and Ray Flaherty, Spokane Chronicle; Jack Billings, KUGN, Eugene, Ore.; Bill Boni, Spokesman-Review; Spokane's Marlowe Branigan, Oregon Journal; Portland's Royal Brougham, Post-Intelligencer, Seattle.

John Carpenter, KOIN, Portland; Paul Chalm, KNEW, Spokane; Don McLeod, the Oregonian, Portland; Dick Britte, Eugene Register-Guard; George Varrell, Seattle Times.

These veterans of the AP variety see all the Pacific Coast Conference teams in action and most of them get a look, as well, at teams from other sections of the nation. They report on the standouts wherever they find them and a file on the leading candidates is kept in the Seattle Bureau of The Associated Press.

The recommendations go on to the AP's New York office for All America consideration and to Los Angeles for All Coast rating.

Other players considered outstanding by the board so far include Fred Robinson, Washington tackle; Frank Sarno, Washington state quarterback; George Eldam, Idaho quarterback; Bill Tarr, Stanford fullback; Jim Hanlon, California end; and Paul Larson, California quarterback.

Jack Eilenko, UCLA tackle, and Bob Davenport, UCLA fullback; Jon Arnett, USC fullback.

5000 Meters Mark Set

VIENNA (AP) — Russia's Vladimir Kuc Saturday established a world record in the 5,000 meter distance run with a time of 13:51.2 minutes at a track and field meet in Prague, Radio Prague said.

The record was set at a track meet between Russia and Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia's Emil Zatopek was left behind with 14:19.0 minutes as Kuc ran the new world record practically alone.

Kuc, only recently beaten by England's Chris Chataway who established what looked as an almost unbeatable new world record of 13:51.8 minutes, was in the best form of his life.

His unofficial time for the first 1,000 meters was 2:39 minutes, 2,000 meters in 5:30 minutes and 3,000 meters in 8:23 minutes. He then looked around for Zatopek who was already 60 meters behind. Kuc increased his speed and ran the 4,000 meters in 11:06.4 minutes.

The 50,000 fans in the Prague army stadium jumped from their seats when he sprinted toward the finish line.

A loudspeaker immediately announced his new world record time. It was greeted by a roar from the crowd.

FROM OUR VIEW point, it looks as if the followers of Oregon Tech and KUHS football are in for some very good seasons in the next few years, if showings this year are any sign of prosperity.

The big question of Oregon Tech's survival is the attendance of their home football games, which up to now has been very poor. Tonight the Owls play their homecoming game at 8 p.m. at the powerful Portland State Vikings in OCC action, and the Mile High Campus officials are hoping for a fairly good crowd to help bolster the financial burden of the local college.

Several arm chair quarterbacks around town, that took a dim view on the outlook of high school football are beginning to switch to the "McGinnis and Co." bandwagon after the Pels' showing to date.

Since the opening game with Grant, followers have expressed great satisfaction with the showing of the KU squad, especially in the field of blocking and tackling.

Whether or not the Pels captured the district hunter this year was not the big problem facing the local high school gridder, but instead it was to regain its footing with spirited football something that has been lacking for the last decade or so.

Next year, both teams should produce some top flight home games, as the Owls have several home encounters listed, including such teams as Boise JC and Compton, two of the top five junior college teams in the nation this season.

Anyway let's wait and see how everything turns out, for better or for worse.

BRIEFS FROM here and there... glancing over the scores from last night's high school football games verifies the line of thinking that we have followed for some time... what does Prineville have to be rated so high in the AP poll of high school teams... they just got by Lakeview last week by two touchdowns, and Ashland topped Lakeview by a single TD margin.

Klamath topped Ashland by 58 points, yet this doesn't have any bearing on Prineville's status as a leading state "power"... last night they (Prineville) were held to a tie by Baker (14-14)... Grants Pass ramriddled Redding 47-6 at Redding while the Pels were only able to get by the Wolves by one score 19-12... this could mean plenty of trouble for the KUHS eleven next week when the two clubs face off in the season's finale.

JUST CLEARING away a few things before the weekend passes by.

Klamath Falls boxing fans might get another look at the "talk" of the Northwest boxing business as promoter Mack Lillard is trying to induce Jarrin Jimmy Byrne, the Portland heavyweight into coming back into the armory ring for another main event battle.

A possible solution to one problem that has plagued Byrne while fighting in Klamath Falls, may be tried, should the big-likeable pugilist come back to our city for a match under Lillard's guidance.

This problem of getting anyone to stay on his feet longer than four rounds, and most of the time just two rounds against the tremendous punching and blows that the 220 pounder throws, might be settled should Lillard land the fighter he is after.

The Basin ring promoter is trying to get "Big Boy" Boatman, who holds a first round TKO over the hard hitting Portland batter, and if this meeting comes off in the local armory ring, plenty of action is certain.
