

Oregon Political Campaign Ending With Final Burst

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Oregon political campaign moved into its final weekend Friday after a one-day outburst of oratory unique in the state's history.

Never before had 11 U. S. senators gathered in the state to campaign for their rival parties. They scattered over the western half of the state and before midnight eight cities had heard one or more of their speeches.

The Republicans brought in the greatest number, seven senators, and at night concentrated them in Portland at a rally urging the reelection of an eighth Republican senator, Guy Cordon of Oregon.

The Democrats brought in two, Sens. Henry Jackson and Warren Magnuson from Washington, and also got the services of the Oregon independent, Wayne Morse, all urging the election of Cordon's rival, Democrat Richard L. Neuberger.

Morse, who spoke at Eugene and Salem, asserted that the money being spent on Cordon's campaign is "unequaled in the state's history." He added that Cordon was a legislator "working for the public utilities, the bankers and the lumber barons."

The seven visiting Republican senators meanwhile were asserting this was not so, and said Morse and the Democrats were unfairly criticizing Cordon's voting record. They described Cordon as a senator who wanted common-sense in government. They also urged his election to give President Eisenhower a Republican Senate.

Neuberger also spoke in Portland, asserting that "six out of the seven senators here to support Cordon voted with Cordon for the final version of the Bricker amendment, which came within one vote of passing—a version opposed firmly by President Eisenhower." He also said all seven opposed a public power preference clause in the Priest Rapids hydroelectric bill.

In the Republicans' daytime speeches Frank Carlson of Kansas was at Astoria; Frederick Payne of Maine was at The Dalles; Frank Barrett of Wyoming at Klamath Falls; George Malone of Nevada at Roseburg; and Edward Thyne of Minnesota at Medford. At night Herman Welker of Idaho and Arthur Watkins of Utah joined them at Portland.

For the Democrats Magnuson spoke at Astoria. Jackson spoke in Portland in behalf of Joseph K. Carson Jr., the Democratic candidate for governor, but also made a few references in support of Neuberger.

State Game Programs To Be Given

Junior and senior high school students will again have an opportunity to learn more about the conservation and management of Oregon's wildlife resources when the schedule of school assembly programs gets underway this week. Two members of the Oregon Game Commission's department of Information and Education, Milt Guymon and Austin Hamer, will spend the next five months touring schools throughout the state, giving illustrated talks and showing wildlife films to student groups.

This is the fifth season that educational wildlife conservation programs have been presented in cooperation with schools. Approximately 70,000 students were in school audiences last year. Each year a different phase of wildlife conservation has been added to the series of programs. There are four separate programs, each using a different color film. Titles are "General Conservation," "Big Game Management," "Fishery Management," and "Waterfowl Management."

Schools in Lake and Klamath counties are first on the travel itinerary this season, followed by Harney, Grant, Crook and Deschutes counties. Coastal counties are being scheduled for November and December; southern Oregon for January, 1955; and the far eastern part of the state for February and March.

Teachers and school principals interested in having one or more of the programs presented at their schools should request a date immediately as the schedule is rapidly becoming filled.

Elk Season Opens Oct. 30

The quest of Cervus canadensis is about to begin, which freely translated means that elk hunting season in Oregon begins October 30.

Generally, the whole state opens next Saturday, but there are many boundary lines between the areas that should be checked in the hunting synopsis.

The main areas opening are: Clatsop and Columbia counties, the coastal area, Cascade area, and northeastern and southeastern areas. Also included in the hunting synopsis is a listing of the bag limits which vary from one elk of either sex to one bull with three points or better on one antler.

The areas of either sex elk hunting offer the least prospects for the hunters, however, since they are not areas where there are large numbers of the animals, or in the case of the Clatsop, Columbia county area, the country is extremely difficult to hunt.

Best prospects are in Union, Wallowa, and Grant counties as in the past. However, hunters should remember that these areas are very apt to get snow before the season ends and should be prepared for the worst type of weather.

Game Commission reports indicate good elk populations in most of the better elk ranges, and hunter success is expected to be equal to last year.

Copies of the hunting synopsis with a map showing the areas are available free of charge from game commission offices and license agencies throughout the state.

Teachers To Attend Meet

YREKA — Mrs. Grace Smith, Weed, and Mrs. Eunice Auterrieth, Yreka, both from the office of the Siskiyou County superintendent of schools will attend the third annual state conference of the California State Speech Therapy Association. The conference will be held in Bakerfield October 29 and 30.

Mrs. Smith is speech teacher for the southern Siskiyou County schools including Weed, Mount Shasta, Dunsuir, McCloud and Pondosa. She is a former teacher in the Weed elementary school. Mrs. Auterrieth is speech consultant for the remaining county schools.

The conference is co-sponsored by the California Department of Education; the office of the county superintendent of schools of Kern County; and the California Speech Therapy Association, and will be held in the Bakerfield Inn and the East Bakerfield High School.

Reformation Sunday Stated

The 11 a.m. service of worship at First Methodist Church Sunday, October 31, will emphasize the importance of the Protestant Reformation.

This Sunday, Reformation Sunday, commemorates Martin Luther's posting of the 95 theses on the doors of the Castle Church in Wittenberg, Germany, October 31, 1517. This incident led to the development of the Protestant Reformation.

The Rev. Lloyd Holloway's sermon topic will be in keeping with the theme, "The Reformation Must Go On!" Officers of the youth fellowship will present the Protestant symbols of worship at the opening of the service.

At 7 p.m. Sunday there will be a rally and fellowship meeting of all the Methodist laymen, at which time the pastor will lead a roundtable discussion on the subject, "Protestant Laymen in the World of Today."

Church Plans Special Service

Reformation Sunday, October 31, will be observed in the Congregational Church at the 11 a.m. service of worship.

The sermon will evaluate the Protestant churches in view of the dynamics of the Ecumenical movement, according to the pastor, the Rev. Robert Larson.

Sunday, November 7, services will deal with the Protestant and Roman Catholic views of justification by faith.

This Sunday evening, at the second meeting of the School for Christian Living, the American Bible Society film, "At Work with the Word," will be shown at 7 o'clock. All are invited to see the film and attend the school as guests.

A nursery is maintained at the morning service and during the evening program.

Archery Area Report Made

Final completion of the deer kill in the McDonald forest archery area has been released by the Oregon Game Commission.

According to the records kept by commission personnel and students from the fish and game management department at Oregon State College, 1,031 archers managed to bag 49 deer.

One sample count revealed some interesting information regarding the hunt.

Three hundred sixty archers were questioned and stated they had fired a total of 1,182 shots at deer. It was not determined how many of the 49 deer were killed by these 360 hunters.

Also, in the final tally, it was found that 360 archers had been able to loose their arrows at deer, but 378 did not get a chance to shoot.

Not all of the hunters checked out of the area after hunting accounting for the discrepancy in figures. The area was opened for hunting for two weekends.

Former Basin Resident Dies

PORT KLAMATH — Earle Blaine Thorpe, 65, died suddenly in Boise, Idaho, October 13, of a heart attack. Mr. Thorpe was a former Port Klamath resident and was employed throughout Klamath County in the carpenter trade.

The family left Port Klamath three years ago for Grover City, California, later moving to Boise, Idaho. Funeral services were held October 13 in Boise, with interment in the Meridian Cemetery, Boise.

Survivors include the widow Maude of Boise; a daughter, Mrs. Mike Hibbard, Boise, a son Blaine, San Francisco; and three grandsons.

Dock Strike Armistice Plan Fails

LONDON (AP) — A last minute union maneuver which knocked out a tentative truce plan sent Britain's crippling waterfront strike into its 30th day today.

The government apparently still had hopes of a back to work movement over the weekend, however.

Waterfront observers said the government could hardly delay longer the use of troops to unload vital foodstuffs and other imports. Some 45,000 workers are idle in the work stoppages at the nation's main seaports.

The end of the walkout appeared imminent last night when dock employers in London agreed to an armistice on the main issue—whether dock workers should have the right to turn down overtime work. Overtime now is compulsory. Employers maintain this is necessary because of the effect of tides on handling cargoes.

Under the truce formula the dockers would return to their jobs, pending negotiation of their grievances. While negotiations were going on, employers would refrain from disciplinary action against any workmen who refused overtime.

Leaders of the National Amalgamated Stevedores and Dockers Union at first seemed inclined to accept the armistice proposal. But after a long huddle they came up with a demand that the same formula be extended to all ports outside London.

The Ministry of Labor said this was impossible because there was

"no dispute about overtime in other ports where sympathetic stoppages have occurred."

The stevedores' group represents only 11,000 strikers and almost its entire strength is in London. Most of the other men on strike belong to the Transport and General Workers Union (TGWU). Leaders of the TGWU have denounced the walkout as a Communist conspiracy.

Friction among union groups has been pointed up by the work stoppage. The stevedores' union has been suspended from the Trades Union Congress, Britain's ruling body, for "poaching" on the TGWU.

The Daily Herald, spokesman for the Trades Union Congress, said conceding to the stevedore demand for a national agreement now "would give them recognition to which they are not entitled."

A total of 346 ships are idle in London, Liverpool, Southampton, Hull, Manchester, Birkenhead and Rochester.

Road Stripe Color Changed

PORTLAND (AP) — The center stripe in Oregon highways will be white in the future.

The State Highway Commission voted Thursday for the change from a yellow stripe to conform to the national pattern. Many other states, such as neighboring Washington, long have used white center lines.

The commission also decided to ask the Legislature for a smaller budget next year. The budget was set for $67,764,000 compared with the 1954 request for $72,896,000.

Chairman Ben H. Chandler said a preliminary survey on the state's highway needs is expected to be ready in the spring. He said it will list projects totaling about 120 million dollars.

The commission approved a Pendleton request for participation of the state in a study of arterial highways in Pendleton. The study is expected to cost the city and the state $3,800.

NO Chimney or Flu
NO Installation

Mortemp does a better job than immovable heating plants costing $3,000. And . . . it's easy to operate. Just fill with stove oil and plug into any 110-volt circuit. Mortemp saves you 75% on both equipment and fuel. You get 4 times the heat value. Put the heat where it's needed, when it's needed. No need to heat dead space between work areas. And in the summer, Mortemp converts for cool air distribution.
