Nancy Richardson returned from Gateway, Oregon, last week with her grandfather, John Richardson, for a visit at the home of her grandparents.

A fire which probably originated from a careless smoker burned a considerable amount of grass and brush on the Fred Longfellow ranch before some of the neighbors extinguished the blaze.

He drove to his home and returned with a fire extinguisher and with the help of Neal Elliott and others brought the fire under control. Prompt action by the fire fighters averted a serious loss.

Catholics Observe Marian Year

VATICAN CITY (P) - In the supreme ceremony of the Roman Catholic Church's Marian Year, Pope Pius XII crowned an ancient image of the Virgin Mary Monday and proclaimed her Queen of Heaven and Earth.

In an address from the altar of St. Peter's Basilica, the 78-year-old Pontiff called on the Virgin's "unending goodness" to "obtain for men who are solicitous and indolent."

The Pope warned that "at this hour no one may allow himself a moment's rest, when, in so many countries, just freedom is oppressed, truth obscured by the machinations of lying propaganda, and the forces of evil, as it were, seem to be unleashed up on the earth."

The Pontiff expressed "firm confidence" that through the Virgin "mankind will little by little progress along this way of salvation and she will guide the rulers of nations and the hearts of their peoples toward concord and charity."

Thousands of pilgrims gathered from many parts of the world cheered the head of the church as he was carried on his portable throne through St. Peter's Square to the Basilica for the solemn ceremony and then back to the Vatican.

More than a score of cardinals, including New York's Francis Cardinal Spellman, 300 bishops and thousands of members of religious orders and pilgrims thronged the Basilica and the square for the event.

The five-foot-high painting which he crowned is known as the "Salus Populi Romani" (Salvation of the Roman People) and is said to be the work of St. Luke.

It was brought slowly through packed Roman streets Saturday to St. Peter's from the Basilica of St. Mary Major, the world's oldest shrine to the Virgin.

The Marian Year, observed by Catholics throughout the world, ends on Dec. 8.

Washington Hotel Burns

ROSALIA, Wash., (P) - The biggest fire here in years, which broke out only an hour after the annual Fireman's Ball, roared through the Home City Hotel building early Sunday and sent 13 persons fleeing in night clothes.

E. C. Hermann, 75-year-old owner of a variety store destroyed in the blaze, was burned and overcome by smoke when he went in to save the weekend receipts. He was reported in satisfactory condition at a Spokane hospital Monday.

Joe Malcy, who operated the two-story brick building on lease from the Crites estate, estimated damage at $75,000. Cause of the fire still hadn't been determined Monday.

The hotel on the second floor was a total loss with only the walls left standing. The guests lost all their belongings. There was heavy water damage to the Ye Towne Tavern and a plumbing shop on the ground floor.

About 300 persons had danced the last waltz and gone home from the ball in the high school gymnasium when the volunteer fire alarm sounded about 2:30 a. m.

The Rosalia volunteers were joined by Tekoa and Oakesdale volunteer firemen.

A collapsing brick wall crashed through the roof of the Don Sheehan law offices and water damaged a drug store next door.

Last year members picked 500 pounds which were disposed of the same way.

An aid to the second annual United Fund-Red Cross campaign, Hi-Yers painted award Oscars which are given for outstanding support by firms and employees.

Broadcast To Feature KF

Recognition will be given this evening on the Pacific Telephone Hour radio program to a Klamath Falls operator whose perseverance and ingenuity made it possible for a mother half way across the country to talk to a local hospital where her son lay critically injured.

On May 5, Mothers Day of this year, an attendant at a local hospital placed an emergency call "to relatives of an injured man who has just been brought in."

The hospital had the man's name and knew he had done some part-time work in the vicinity, but the hospital had no information about the family or the location of his home.

Annie Laurie Wilcox, assisted by the supervising operator, Shigeo Montgomery, spent three hours calling every person who might conceivably be of some help before she found one clue. The patient had traded cars at Klamath Falls the day before. Stik Police located the dealer and found that the man's original car had been purchased in Bakersfield, California.

The Bakersfield dealer remembered the sale and the fact that he had taken a car registered from Newark, Arkansas, in exchange.

The mother of the patient was located at Newark and the original call was completed after three hours and 35 minutes of detective work on the part of Miss Wilcox.
