

Eisenhower Sends Wire To Klamath

Mrs. Marshall E. Cornett, GOP national committeewoman for Oregon, upon her return from accompanying Vice President Richard Nixon from Corvallis to Portland, received the following telegram from President Dwight D. Eisenhower:

"Nothing would give me greater personal pleasure than to come to Oregon to bring this message to you and to others in your state who believe with us in the efforts we are making to build an America strong and prosperous in a world of peace. But with only one free day available to me before November 2, I am able to visit only a few states, so I must use this means to bring you these thoughts.

"Will you please convey to me and all in Oregon my conviction that voting is not only a privilege of every citizen but his first duty.

"Only if every qualified voter casts a ballot can public servants have certain knowledge that their acts reflect the will of the people. This is the first essential of free government. Yet, I hear constantly about complacency and apathy toward this critical election. Friends tell me this is because the people are satisfied, on the whole, with the kind of government and kind of program they are getting -- that many citizens go to the polls only when they are angry or apprehensive about the course of events.

"It is unbelievable to me that good government cannot command as much zealous support as bad government commands opposition.

"Let us, therefore, do everything we possibly can to persuade every voter to express himself on Election Day.

"So let's roll up a tremendous vote -- confident that the overwhelming majority of the American people support good government and will vote accordingly.

"My warm congratulations to you on your splendid work in our common cause. Let us, with enthusiasm and the will to win, do the job that will drive us through to victory."

(S) DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER.
