

It Happened This Way In New Pine Creek

By IRVIN FARIS

The grange welfare ship will be piloted this coming year by John Richardson as the result of last Saturday night's meeting when an election of officers was held following the tasty hot potluck dinner in the grange hall.

The attendance was fair. Everyone seemed particularly fond of the better than usual array of fine foods and the friendly spirit that prevailed was wholesome. Just before the business meeting opened two speakers were given ten minutes each to deliver their messages.

Jack Mangus, district representative of the Boy Scouts of America, spoke with an aim of getting the Eastside to sponsor a scout troop. Most of the grangers present, of course, thought this would be a nice thing to do but — will be scoutmaster?

The whole program of successful scouting hinges upon a capable leader who has the time to spare — and who enjoys working with a group of boys — to watch them grow physically and mentally and become better skilled in woodcraft, campcraft, better acquainted with this mysterious world of wild life about us and become better citizens. This person must volunteer for the job so — the matter had to be tabled until this person comes along.

It is quite remarkable the lasting imprint a conscientious scout leader can have upon an impressionable young group of boys. This same exuberant feeling about scouting was expressed by the next speaker, Mr. Waite, secretary of the Starrett Petroleum Oil Company who spent about 16 years in scouting (not oil scouting either) and he said that he enjoyed it more than any other phase of his life. Mr. Waite went on to tell about the work being done in Goose Lake Valley where his company has now leased about 130,000 acres of land for natural gas development. He said a Houston Exploration Company has arrived and that they are making a gravity-meter survey of the valley for the most prospective sites upon which to start drilling.

The members sanctioned the proposal of holding a joint Christmas program with the schools at the grange hall where there will be more seating capacity. The Kelly Creek teachers, Mrs. Inis Gilles and Mrs. Frances Kilfoil have been enthusiastic about the project and with grange lecturer, Mrs. Winifred Dungan, they will go ahead with the plan — enlisting it agreeable the cooperation of Mrs. Gladys Porter, teacher of the State Line School. The date of the program is tentatively set for December 18.

The members voted to donate

Chicago To Host 4-H Congress

Oregon's delegation of more than 20 persons will leave Thanksgiving day for the National 4-H Club Congress, scheduled November 28 to December 2 in Chicago.

Included will be 16 outstanding 4-H Club members whose work has earned them trips to the annual meeting in Chicago, as well as two 4-H Club leaders, two county extension agents, and a representative of the state 4-H Club office.

The club leaders are Mrs. Mary Kail, LaGrande and Allen Guerber, Corvallis. Cal G. Monroe will represent the state 4-H office. The county extension agents are D. H. Kennedy, Tillamook, and Frances Harvey, Pendleton.

COLLISION

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Two racing cars collided and plunged into a crowd massed along the highway 45 miles west of here Sunday, killing nine persons and injuring five seriously.

who have risen to the heights working selfishly to gain distinction, power and prestige but too few have just silently went about giving generously of their time and labor so that the less fortunate might be more comfortable.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wynn, of Roseburg, have been visiting for a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vincent and Mr. and Mrs. Otman Vincent left last Saturday morning for Dallas, Texas, taking with them a trailer house loaned them by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Fisher.

The portable living quarters will come in handy as the couples expect to be gone some little time — depending upon how rapidly Mrs. Charley Vincent responds to treatment at a health clinic there. Her many friends wish her success and a long life of improved health.

Ed Hartzog has been incapacitated more than a little lately due to a freak tumble when out hunting. He was squatted down on his heels behind a bush when a nice flight came winging over. He twisted his waist around while aiming and was somewhat off balance when he fired. The recoil was that much too much and knocked him over backwards, spraining and stretching the tendons in his heels so that he has had to go on crutches part of the time for the past week or so.

The Kelly Creek PTA held their meeting last Thursday evening at the schoolhouse. After the business meeting a short program ensued which included an educational film, "Woody-Woodpecker" shown by Mrs. Giles; a violin solo, by Mrs. Frances Kilfoil and an accordion solo by Mearle Leehman. Refreshments were served after the program.

Delbert Aldridge and his mother, Mrs. Eva Aldridge, wish to extend to their many friends a sincere expression of gratitude for the generous way they have responded in helping them get reestablished in a home of their own, after burning out about a month ago.

Paul E. Robinson who is still operating the Keller mill, making feed on weekends, is moving to Lakeview Sunday where he is employed during the week selling cars. His father who lives here will assist him with the mill work.

They have been living in the Grover Mulkey residence down near the Willow Ranch fire station at the cross roads.
