

It Happened This Way In New Pine Creek

By IRVIN PARIS

There is an essence of good in every community. That precious commodity breathed new life into a decadent Grange membership as was manifested by the generous spirit of benevolence which dominated the big Eastside Grange bazaar held here last Saturday evening.

The Grange indebtedness—now bordering $400,000—was a decided face-lifting because of this successful event. It will probably net around $300 it is understood, which is not enough—but freely given cash.

Truly—there was fun for everyone—and those present were not reluctant to participate in the merry-making created by the fish pond, the cake-walk, the white elephant booth, the bingo game, the dance and they enjoyed eating supper. The ladies on the kitchen committee began serving supper early in the evening and continued until after midnight. The harvest table and the fancy-work table were kept busy until the dancing started.

The Home Ec Club is to be commended on their prodigious effort in staging the event. The ladies who spent many tedious hours on fancy work—they are the unsung heroines behind the scene who deserve more credit perhaps than they'll ever receive. But they've got that personal cozy, comfortable feeling of doing their part creatively and gloried in it. The fancy work seemed unusually beautiful this year like the spirit in which it was done—and the aprons were of cunning and clever design, so nicely starched and displayed. This table can easily be the talk of the bazaar for it took in around $100 which represented a third of the amount cleared on all the concessions and activities. Mrs. Thelma Butler won the Home Ec blanket; Mrs. Alma McClain won the Happy Hour quilt and Mrs. Velma Newcombe won the prize for the best quilt. I was especially pleased that our friends from Jasper, Frank Graham and his son, Robert; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hirt of Eugene; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Laird of Redmond, Oregon; and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thompson, proprietors of "Cafe 58" on the Willamette Pass, all here on a three day hunting visit to the bazaar. They left about noon for the bazaar. They left about noon for the bazaar. They left about noon for the bazaar.

We had a grand visit and some rip-roaring feeds, during those three days—the kind that make personal history. Bob Hirt was just a little uneasy, however, as on the second day here his partner in the Hirt & Wood Brokerage firm, called him long distance informing him that he had just merged with four other firms in the purchase of a fairly new $500,000 sawmill operation down on the Southern Oregon coast and that he was now a fifth owner in same. Bob had supposed the deal was off but under more favorable terms and conditions as explained by his partner the deal became definitely on. The sudden reversal from negative to positive sort of upset his equilibrium—even though he loves to hunt he could hardly wait to see how things were getting on. "Be back later on in the season," he said as they pulled out.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Lenkelt were host and hostess to an influx of visitors who enjoyed the last ten days of the California hunting before it closed for the (up here) unpopular split season arrangement. Mrs. Lenkelt stood up well under the festive strain but now has one of those going-around colds and was unable to attend the bazaar.

The names of the Lenkelt guests were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. George Austin, of L.A.; Sheriff Cecil Thornton of Mono County and wife who live at Bridgeport, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Max Zishank and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kispert of Long Valley, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Nichols of Mammoth, Calif.; Mr. Louis Tachela and Mr. V. V. Buck, of Oakland, California. They departed over the weekend—some leaving on Saturday.

Bill Frans and his nephew, Charles Andrews left this morning, November 16, for Jerselville, Ill., where they expect to spend about three months visiting around among relatives.

Those from here attending the Willow Ranch fire department's wild duck and goose feed down at the Mulkey cross roads last Sunday night reported having a very successful social evening along with a very fine dinner. Those attending from here were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bernard; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Perry and Mr. and Mrs. Garland Cundiff. Those from Willow Ranch were: Mr. and Mrs. Ross Harris and their three sons; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Madison and children; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Haslett and son; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Markstrom and their two children; Mr. and Mrs. Shorty Thompson and son; and Mrs. Alice Thompson.

The Kelly Creek upper class room was dismissed early Tuesday, November 16, so the children could hear the Book Week Radio broadcast at 4 p.m. on KNOC from a tape recording made last week in County Superintendent Anne Sprague's office. Miss Dean Ling introduced the children and Anne Sloane, teacher at Ft. Rock, was moderator. In effect the program gave a resume of the work done in the different schools throughout the county in observance of book week. The moderator asked each school's representative pertinent questions about their school's project and participation as well as about book week in general.

"Thunder Hill" by Gisbier and Hayden, was the book chosen by Kelly Creek to read and become familiar with its characters and their problems. Each school made a display symbolizing the keynote of the story their book told. The displays were exhibited in prominent places of business around Lakeview.

Jimmy Cogburn represented Kelly Creek at the panel and other representatives were as follows: Gordon Brummett, New Idaho district; Barbara Vertess, Adel; Judy Haven, Union School, Marion; Jerry Weaver, Anna River, James Corbin, Silver Lake and Clinton Perry, Fort Rock.

When the pupils were let out early for the broadcast they tarried to watch the county road grader work the road up by the school to the graveyard. They became so fascinated they would have missed the broadcast had not Mrs. Gilles, their teacher, said, "Children—you were dismissed early to hear the broadcast—not to watch the grader. Now if you—" But she never got to finish. The children were off in a flash.

The Lake County road crew built a new road down the Robnett and Leahy lane last week, grading it up high so in the winter months it would tend to clear itself of snow drifts. This week they are working over the road to the graveyard which has been almost impassable at times during heavy storms. The clay, dirt and rocks are being taken from Art Lenkelt's land up the canyon just below his house a short way. They have made quite a cash there in the mountain side but Art's only comment was—"They're moving California into Oregon."

Mrs. Wesley Horr who suffered a heart attack at her home in Adin about two weeks ago is convalescing here at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Irene Riggs. Her friends wish her a speedy recovery. Prof. Ralph Layton, retired former head of the physical education department at the University of Oregon is spending a few weeks here training his four Irish setters that are just a year old, to work and retrieve quail and pheasants. He is also doing a little goose and duck shooting. He loves this country around here and finds it ideal for the purpose of training bird dogs. We have much in common it seems. He is not only from my alma mater but formerly taught in Idaho at a high school in Bruneau not far from Glenn Ferry where I graduated from High School, and from Gooding where I attended one year at college. He also coached at the college of Idaho where my brothers and sisters attended. He knew many athletes I knew as well as coaches and teachers.

The Happy Hour ladies are to be congratulated on their kind efforts to help the local fire department get on its feet. They got busy and made a wonderful quilt which was entered at the Grange bazaar. You know, they raised over a $100 on it which will be turned over soon to the fire district to help defray expenses on the new fire hall. Mrs. Homer McClain was the winner of the prize art work. She did a lot of work on the quilt herself. That is good!

The Ceramic Club has changed its meeting night to Tuesday night instead of Monday and they will meet fortnightly instead of once a month. Tonight they met at the home of Mrs. Elsie Cundiff with Mrs. Mildred Gentry and Mrs. Myrtle Gentry as hostesses. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed Court, Mrs. Mary Snider, Mrs. Grace Bernard, Mrs. Susan Vincent, Mrs. Bona Paris, Mrs. Violet Bishop, Mrs. Louise Cheek, Mrs. Ramona Pochop, Mrs. Opal Butler, Mrs. Florence Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Butler Cundiff and the hostesses, Mrs. Mildred and Mrs. Myrtle Gentry. Apple and Mince pie, with tea or coffee were served to the members who had a delightful evening.

The Keller Feed Mill is now operating under a new set-up. E. N. Robinson will become a partner in the business buying out the interest formerly owned by G. E. Hillhouse, and the firm will be known as E. N. Robinson and Son, Paul E. Robinson.

The elder Robinson will tend the mill during week days and on weekends, Paul, who is now living in Lakeview where he sells Chevrolet during the week, will assist in milling a week's supply ahead on Saturday and Sunday. The Robinsons want to gradually build up their business to a full time two man operation.

DO-IT-YOURSELF
Manufacturers are coming to the aid of the "do it yourself" homeowners. All sorts of new pre-cut and packaged products are going on the market to make things easier for the amateurs. Latest entry in the do-it-yourself field is a package of pre-cut draperies which home sewers can make with little effort. The draperies are cotton pants, in a range of print and solid colors, simply styled for a minimum of sewing.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY was observed by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Delmont Craig, former Klamath Falls residents, now living in Eureka. The reception in the VFW Hall in Grants Pass, was attended by 200 friends and relatives.

The couple was married October 13, 1904 in Selma, Oregon; and lived in Selma and Grants Pass during the early years of their marriage, before moving to Klamath Falls. Their ten children, 36 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren were at the anniversary celebration; also a brother and five sisters.

WSCS Meeting

On Friday afternoon, November 12, Mrs. Ira P. Orem entertained members of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Fort Klamath Community Methodist Church at her ranch home for the monthly meeting.

During the business session conducted by president, Mrs. Raymond S. Loosley; it was announced that name plaques had been ordered for the new church pews, which were dedicated at special church services in the spring.

A letter was read from Mrs. Hansford T. (Mike) Williams, who with her family moved recently to Pleasant Hill. Mrs. Williams wrote to thank WSCS, C.I. Club members and other friends who contributed to a farewell gift sent to her for her new home.

After the meeting, a study hour followed with Mrs. Donald P. Veatch reporting on the second chapter of "Under Three Flags." The next meeting of the Society will be Thursday afternoon December 9 when Mrs. Bert Gray will

SOJOURNERS

Regular meeting of Sojourners Wednesday, November 10, at the Willard Hotel, was a most enjoyable luncheon in the Paul Bunyan Room.

During a brief business meeting, conducted by Mrs. C. E. Chase, president, plans for the Fall Dinner Dance, Saturday, November 20 were announced and received with enthusiasm by the members. Mrs. A. Thompson is in charge of the event assisted by Mrs. Sam Jones and Mrs. H. M. Gentry.

Guests for the occasion were Mrs. E. J. Wedam and Mrs. Robert Surber. Mrs. Wilma Page was introduced as a new member.

Mrs. W. H. Stockberger and Mrs. Walter Hogg, hostesses for the afternoon, awarded prizes to Mrs. A. V. McVey, bridge; Mrs. C. Gray, canasta; and Mrs. E. J. Cleary, pinocle.

DIAPERS REQUIRE HEAP OF COTTON

The story is expected to deliver about four million new babies in America next year, according to a report from the Medical and Pharmaceutical Information Bureau. It will take a mountain of cotton to clothe these baby boys and girls, the National Cotton Council says. To provide the newcomers with diapers for their first year in the world, the council estimates, will require approximately 52 million pounds of raw cotton.

FORT KLAMATH

By MYRTLE WIMER

Mrs. Alice Hamilton was released November 5 from Cushman Indian Hospital, Tacoma, and is now staying with her sister, Mrs. Ruth Barfield, at her home near Chiloquin. The 71-year-old woman suffered a broken leg in an accident at Huckleberry Mountain. She has been in the Tacoma Hospital since August where she underwent surgery for the injury. Mrs. Hamilton is improving although still under a doctor's care.

Wilbur Hasecock and Glenn returned recently from a two-week elk hunting trip in the Wallawalla country. They also enjoyed a visit with relatives while there.

Cpl. Leonard (Socks) Smith arrived home November 11, after receiving his discharge from the U.S. Army at Fort Lewis completing two years service with an anti-aircraft radar division. He was on duty part of this time at the Hanford atomic plant in Washington, but spent most of the two years at Fairbanks, Alaska. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley J. Smith.

Leonard's sister and family, the Thomas P. Fishers, Willow Creek, California, were weekend guests at the Smith home.

Leonard plans to enroll at Oregon State College in January for his third year in business administration and accounting.

Visitors at the Edward Flore home were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Floyd, Zuni, New Mexico. Leaving Friday, they planned to visit at Eugene and Salem with other relatives before returning home. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd are well known in this vicinity, having lived at Klamath Agency for several years while he was employed by U. S. Indian Service before being transferred to New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Denas Knowles and children moved from the Modoc Lumber Co. camp last week-end into the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Owens, which they will occupy until spring.

Bill Branham, Danny and Davy, of Bly, visited with Mr. and Mrs. James Van Wormer and his father, Van Branham, who arrived here recently for a visit from Libby, Montana—Friday. Mr. Van Wormer and Van Branham went to Corvallis for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Chuck) Smith and family.

Spending the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edwards were Mrs. Kenneth Morris, daughter, Beverly and nephew, Carroll Morris, and Mrs. Lee Ferguson, Primeville. Sunday young Morris, who is a student at Crook County High school, Primeville, enjoyed his first duck and goose hunting trip with Blaine Brattain, Don Wimer, Jim Dyche, Leonard Smith, Fort Klamath; and Thomas Fisher, Willow Creek, California.
