US Airmen Cause Crisis In Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Turkish-American friendship appears to have weathered a minor crisis involving the arrest of four U.S. servicemen charged with tearing down and trampling the Turkish flag.

The incident occurred in Izmir, on the Aegean Sea, the headquarters for NATO's Southeast Europe Land and Air Command. The servicemen, jailed since Oct. 30, will be judged in a Turkish criminal court at Izmir Monday. They have pleaded innocent of insulting the Turkish flag—a charge which carries a penalty of up to three years in prison—and explained the flag was torn down accidentally in a playful scuffle among themselves.

There has been no official Turkish reaction. Turkish officials are traditionally close-mouthed. But Turkish newspapers took up a cry of "arrogance" and "colonialism."

Hurriyet of Istanbul, Turkey's largest circulation paper, commented that repeated incidents of this type created "general indignation" in Turkey. Hurriyet complained that American soldiers have engaged in black market operations, assaulted people and molested Turkish girls. There are more than 1,000 Americans, with dependents, in Turkey. Some are with the Izmir headquarters of NATO but most are attached to the American Military Aid Mission with headquarters in Ankara, the capital.

In recent months Turkish papers were affronted by reports that medical advisers to American military groups had counseled against drinking local water and using locally grown vegetables.

A few days after the Izmir incident, U.S. Maj. Gen. Robert E. Eaton, commander of NATO's 6th Allied Tactical Air Force, issued a public apology. He said the case should not be allowed to affect Turkish-American friendship and "we are ready to give our lives if necessary for Turkey."

The servicemen charged in the Izmir incident, with addresses of next of kin as supplied by NATO officials, are:

They are, as you can readily see, magnificent in beauty—with a new, jewel-like grille and front-end assembly... with dramatic and graceful new sculptured side styling... and with added dignity and bearing in every detail.
