Malin Parents Hold Meeting

MALIN — In observance of National Education Week members of the Malin Parent-Patrons Club held an afternoon meeting Tuesday, November 16, instead of their regular monthly evening meeting. Parents and friends were invited at 1 o'clock to visit the classroom of both the elementary and high school while in regular session. Visiting time ended at 2:45 p.m. after which visitors gathered in the elementary school auditorium for the regular business meeting. Frank Hale, club president, conducted the meeting at which time members voted to sell savings stamps to the students. This is a new project for the Malin schools and will be held on a trial basis by members of the club once a week. The membership drive recently completed was won by children of the first and second grade room of Mrs. Stella Brown. January 21 is the date set for the annual school carnival. Proceeds from the carnival will be used to buy needed equipment in the schools. A representative from the American Legion Auxiliary reported that the auxiliary would sponsor a fund raising drive for the purpose of purchasing treats which would be distributed after the school Christmas program. The school children will receive treats as well as pupils from the first through the eighth grades. Parent-Patron members were in favor of this plan and voted to donate along with other organizations in town. Following the business meeting, guest speaker Dr. Donald McDougal, professor of social science at Southern Oregon College, was introduced. His interesting and informative talk touched on contemporary and world affairs. A question and answer period followed.

The musical program included numbers by the seventh grade boys chorus and by the high school boys chorus, under the direction of Don Miller. Refreshments were served in the cafeteria by mothers of the 11th grade students.
