

THE SERVICE STATION up at Crater Lake Park was still pretty well snowed in last spring when the Herald and News photographer took this shot of it.

WITHOUT THE RUGGED "CATS" it would be a terrible chore to keep the roads open in the winter months around our High Desert. This blade-equipped cat, however, will move a lot of the white stuff in the course of a day.

The Christmas berry is a small American shrub native to the west coast. It is sold in California much the same as holly is sold in other cities.

In Britain, the feast of Dec. 25 was celebrated long before the advent of Christianity. In old England the festival was known as Mother's Night—and it began the new year.

Early Christmas music was written and sung in Latin. In the 13th century, St. Francis of Assisi is said to have influenced the rise of the Christmas carol written in the vernacular.

A punch-ticket at the local drug-store, a roll of tickets to the movies, a gift certificate at the record store are all appreciated gifts to the teen-ager.

NEW convenience for wrapping gifts is cutter-box of decorated paper. It works like your wax-paper box.

Picking Records, Books As Gifts Present Problems

Books and records are gifts that are never hard to discern, even in the fanciest of wraps. But their obvious shapes never make them any less welcome in most families.

Successful selection of this kind of gift is more difficult than picking a tie because the contents must please again and again.

Often books and records become part of a family's life that goes on long after the jacket has fallen off and the platter emits only scratches.

Even bookish parents approach the job of picking books for their children with some timidity.

Though distant cousins may do the job more blithely, it is the parents who will have to read the story 17 million times to bedtime children.

Organizations whose job it is to help those buying books for children offer sound advice. The Children's Book Council, 50 West 53rd Street, has booklists. Store clerks are usually helpful.

Josette Frank, a member of the staff of the Child Study Association, offers some touchstones on picking children's books: pictures need not be great art, but should be realistic and satisfying in detail; humor suits the shy reader; when it is broad and ridiculous; don't depend on the cover to give you a clue about the inside—look for large, open type, ease of words, content suitable to the age; try to meet child's interests rather than get him to learn how the spinach grows if he's not interested.

A fine Christmas gift book is the "Holiday Storybook" compiled by the Child Study Association and published by Crowell. This book has a history connected with each holiday and would make an easy entree to reading out loud.

In a Utopia, picking children's records would be done by parents only, because only they know how much they can bear of the Tug That Whistled Good Morning.

Books for adults are gifts that should be selected for individuals, with their tastes in mind. A reference book is usually always welcome, however. Avoid too-specific how-to-do books. If a woman wants to reduce, she'll buy her own book of exercises and like it a lot better than the one you give her.

General books centered around an interest or a hobby make gifts that are individual and delightful. A foreign cookbook or a volume like Little Brown's Field Guides to Furniture fill this bill.

Possibilities among records are so many that shopping for them may occupy days. Somewhat off the traditional track are Caedmon's talking records that are ever more popular.
