

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT in most stationery stores where the children can pick cards offers a boost to initiative and grown-up feeling to the youngsters.

BICYCLE is long-wished-for gift that often comes at Christmas. Careful selection of suitable size and weight is important. So long as child can manage bike, it is all right to get a larger wheel size and put blocks on pedals.

THOUGHTFUL gift for distant members of the family is this picture display. Rapid Mounting Cement or Dry Mounting Tissue, available at photographic supply stores, make it easy to make a gallery of all the family.

CHRISTMAS TREE BALLS, paper ribbon, cut-outs, candle pattern make a beautiful mantel display. The coffee table centerpiece is a matter of tinsel, tree ornaments, imagination. This one is by Dennison and Scotch Tape experts.

THE WARMING HUT at Crater Lake is a popular place during the ski season and on into the following spring when the waxed board enthusiasts flock to the famous park. A BLACK SKYLINE AGAINST A WHITE CURVE is a common sight when you drive around the high country this time of year.

Gifts For Service Aid Traditional

Remembering the people who perform services for the family all year is traditional in most families. But there are pleasant and unpleasant ways of doing it.

Money, however much or little, should be obtained in new bills from the bank in advance.

There should be no "Quick, Harry, a dollar for the mailman, here he comes!" It should be in an envelope addressed to the person by name, if possible. Most banks have holiday money envelopes.

If you are faced with indecision about a person to whom you owe much, select the tactful solution for him. The man who owns the grocery delivery boy, the newsboy, the service station attendant, the apartment superintendent and his helpers, the laundryman, the milkman, the dry cleaner.

Persons deserving of Christmas greeting of the non-cash sort are: your child's grade school teacher, your usual baby sitter, policeman at school crossing, a Sunday school teacher, your doctor or dentist, the visiting nurse.

It is worth while to inquire, if you belong to a private club or shop at a supermarket, if there is a fund for Christmas gifts for employees.

Wrapping Gift Can Be Fun

If Christmas means fun to you, your equipment spread out on the dining room table or card tables. Let the children have their whack at it and do not let them be discouraged by their messy results.

If it's a big headache from Thanksgiving to New Year's, you won't, and the spirit you pass on will be as gay as an unemptied ash tray.

When you approach the finish line on your shopping, plan several evenings for wrapping. Get all your equipment spread out on the dining room table or card tables. Let the children have their whack at it and do not let them be discouraged by their messy results.

Manufacturers this year have a whole raft of bright or sophisticated wraps and ribbons for you to pick from.

Tie-Tie has come out with a cutter box that eliminates dealing with little squares of paper that won't enclose big packages. They also have a make-it-yourself bow kit that really makes flat flowers — wonderful for packages to be mailed, since they won't crush.

Elaborate bows are fine if you can manage them, but a simple bow on bright paper, in contrasting ribbon creates a cheery effect with less agony for the five-thumbed.

Accessories For Dad Eyed

It used to be that only the kids hung their stockings with care at the mantel. But you can brighten friend husband's Christmas morning with stocking gifts, too.

Except, of course, that you don't fill it with toys. Instead you fill it with the little accessories and notions that he needs but leaves to you to buy anyway.

It's easy to figure this gift out. Simply look at his toiletries shelf and you'll see that he needs toothpaste, razor blades, a new toothbrush, dental floss, styptic pencil or foot powder.

How about his shoe laces? You can buy them in huge quantities for little money and you can pick the shades yourself.

Check his pocket comb and his bathroom comb and brush. Check his eyeglass case—he's probably lost the original one. How's his supply of shoe polish? His clothes brush? Does he have a suitable nail file or emery board supply?
