BILLBOARD

By BILL JENKINS

With Thanksgiving now a bloated memory of the past we are constrained to remark that if the world hadn't forgotten a lot of its eating habits we wouldn't be in such poor shape today.

In the days of total peace when there wasn't a threat of war lurking behind every door the peoples of the world used to eat like they were intended to. For every festive occasion there was a feast. Not just a big meal, but a feast that lasted for anywhere from two days to two weeks.

People got together and talked over the situation over a handful of choice cuts, sampled delicate desserts with ticklish conversation as a sideline, and ate when they were hungry.

This led to a sense of well being, people were too full to indulge in any serious arguments and by the time war talk could get well started the vast amounts of food you had put away made one feel sleepy so you toddled off and took yourself a snooze.

ALONG NATURE'S TRAIL

by KEN McLEOD

In yesterday's column I pointed to the coming National Watershed Congress meeting that will be held in the Hotel Statler at Washington, D.C. on December 6 and 7 of this year. I attempted to emphasize the importance of this meeting and its probably direct influence upon the formation of a national water policy and stated that no watershed group in the nation should neglect being at this meeting because it will be far from the usual scientific national meeting called for the exchange of views and the presentation of scientific papers among research workers in a particular field. I likewise gave the list of sponsoring organizations and if you have read this list you will be impressed by the absence of some names whose middle name is "Reclamation."

My sources of information do not indicate that "Reclamation" groups were not invited, as a matter of fact I feel sure that they were not overlooked when the invitations were extended for this "Donnybrook Fair." I therefore assume that "Reclamation" organizations, as such, have declined to appear as sponsors but will be there. Likewise in this conservation movement we have a great deal of overlapping in membership and leaders of the "Reclamation" movement are likewise prime-movers in other groups. The absence of a "Reclamation" association from the list is indeed interesting, and especially so in the light of the importance of the subject brought up for discussion.

No doubt our Klamath Basin Watershed Commission will have some line of contact at this National Watershed Congress. The Klamath River Watershed Association which has not been very active in watershed problems after obtaining the objective of the creation of the official state of Oregon and California Klamath River Commissions will be represented at the National Watershed Congress by the American Watershed Council, one of the sponsor organizations and the organization with which the Klamath River Watershed Association is affiliated.

The National Watershed Congress is the direct outgrowth of a meeting that was held in Washington on May 21 and 22 of this year. It was a strange meeting whose apparent objective was pressure politics, pure and simple. About sixty individuals representing national organizations interested in watershed conservation, labor, state and Federal conservation agencies and a few individuals representing business and industry met at the Statler Hotel there.

Three objectives appeared to be the purpose of this meeting: To give immediate aid to the Hope-Aiken Watershed Bill; to form a new national watershed organization to band together all possible groups in their common interest of up-stream water and moisture control; and, to lay plans for the National Watershed Congress that is to be held this December.

The political objectives of the meeting fell flat-on-their-face but this is how it worked. Senators and Congressmen, who spearhead watershed legislation met with the group at a dinner meeting on May 21 to discuss the Hope-Aiken legislation. The next morning an effort was made to line up a resolution hitting at current changes being made in the Bill and to implement

Wars are seldom fomented on full stomachs.

Perhaps we'd all be better off if we spend more time enjoying the good things of life and less time looking for trouble.

And, besides that, eating is so much fun.

Bluebird weather over a large part of the state is resulting in poor hunting as far as ducks and geese are concerned. Savvies Island seems to be the only encouraging spot to date. And they are having to shoot baldpates.

Average at Summer Lake the past couple of weeks has been two birds per hunter. Hardly enough to make it worth while to go out.

But things will probably pick up. At least it can't get much duller. And with California opening again on the sixth of next month it is bound to improve.

And having said that I've made myself so curious that I've just gotta go out and find out for myself. So I'll hang out the "gone hunting" sign and call it a day.

HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — Madame Oly Roederer is the kind of widow that bachelors dream of meeting. She is blonde, hazel-eyed, warm-hearted and highly cultured. She has a mellow, mature beauty that French ladies achieve and wear so well in their middle years. She also has a fine, well-developed sense of humor.

"That sounds all right--so far as it goes," a cautious bachelor might admit. "But to be really ideal she ought also to own a liquor store. Does she?"

No, Mme. Roederer doesn't own a liquor store. This must be admitted. But, on the other hand, she does have something just as good--five million bottles of champagne. She also has a stable of 120 trotters, and her horses in recent years have been among the biggest money winners in France.

Since the death of her husband in 1932, this pert and vivacious widow has successfully managed the champagne firm of Louis Roederer of Reims and the famous harness racers of "The Stables of the Red Earth."

Mme. Roederer is no figurehead in the 189-year-old Champagne firm which ships its vintage products to the courts of Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Ethiopia, Greece and Britain.

"I have given this business my whole heart," she said. "I had learned it year by year, and step by step, while my husband was alive."

In the firm's 3 1/2 miles of caves at Reims are stored five million bottles of champagne, none of which is sold until it is at least five years old.

Mme. Roederer, who can taste and accurately name the major brands of champagne while blindfolded, gives the final voice in the selection of a cuvee, the blending of 1,000 choice casks before the actual bottling.

"It is an important decision," she said. "For the wine decided upon that day won't be drunk until five years later."

She has found that being a woman is no handicap in operating a champagne firm.

"No, at all," she said. "On the contrary, it is an advantage." Then she smiled archly and added, "But here one must be careful what one says."

She spends the week at Reims, the weekends in Paris, where she takes an active role in selling her champagne to the top restaurants and nightclubs in the French capital.

Her interest in the export business brought her here for her first tour of America, just completed. She was accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Claude Rouzaud, and the doctor's brother, Andre Rouzaud, who, at 35, is managing director of the champagne firm.

Mme. Roederer found San Francisco the most European-looking of American cities. She was scheduled to tour some California vineyards, but became too fatigued. Asked how California champagne compared with her own product, she hesitated and Andre Rouzaud broke in diplomatically.

"Unfortunately, she didn't get to taste any."

New York City impressed Mme. Roederer with its "massive organization."

"Everything is so well prepared and done exactly on time. Here you know what has to be done -- and you do it. In Paris we allow for a little more improvisation in living."

As souvenirs of her journey she

Freight Rate Change Told

"Effective November 13, Consolidated Freightways and other motor freight carriers were permitted by the Rocky Mountain Motor Tariff Bureau to place Klamath Falls on the same freight rate basis as San Francisco, Portland and Seattle," announced Merton Lang, local Consolidated Freightways manager.

Previous announcements have been made regarding the elimination of surcharges affecting Klamath Falls by freight forwarding companies, effective November 16. Freight forwarding companies operate by accumulating LCL (less than carload) shipments of freight at their metropolitan terminals in the midwest and east. In carload lots the freight is then shipped to western terminals. Klamath Falls has been designated as one distribution point on the west coast. From these terminal points, the freight is dispersed to ultimate destinations.

"Consolidated Freightways is the only motor freight carrier supplying direct trans-continental service to Klamath Falls," Lang stated.

"The new bureau ruling means substantial savings on freight charges for consignees in Klamath Falls who are receiving their shipments via Consolidated Freightways, because this gives Klamath Falls the same basic rate on shipments from the midwest as east as have been enjoyed by metropolitan Seattle, Portland and San Francisco," he observed.

Psychiatrist To Speak In KF

Reservations are still open for the dinner meeting in honor of Dr. Henry C. Schumacher, San Francisco, who is affiliated with the United States Public Health Service and director of mental health in the nine western states, Hawaii and Alaska.

The Rev. D. L. Prett, pastor of Peace Memorial Church and chairman of Klamath County Child Guidance Advisory Council will emcee the program and will introduce Dr. Watterman.

Dr. Schumacher, who has held some of the most responsible positions in his field as a psychiatrist, is considered one of the most able speakers on the topic he has chosen for Klamath Falls, "Community Mental Health Activities."

Famous Trichologist Will Demonstrate How To Grow Thicker Hair . . . And Guarantees It!

Demonstration To Be Held Here

The new method of home treatment of saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Klamath Falls, Ore., Sunday ONLY, November 28. These private individual demonstrations will be held at the Willard Hotel on Sunday ONLY, November 28, 12 noon to 9 p.m.

After starting treatment, the person makes regular reports to the Keele firm in Oklahoma City to check the progress of the home treatment.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, independent trichologists are visiting various cities throughout the United States to conduct examination and start home treatment.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 19—In an interview here today Wm. L. Keele, internationally famous trichologist and president of the Keele Hair and Scalp Specialists, Inc., said: "There are 18 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

GUARANTEED

"The Keele form, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offer a guarantee," Keele said.

Once a person avails himself of the Keele treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. To insure this, we offer this guarantee: "If you are not completely satisfied with your hair progress at the end of 30 days, your money will be refunded."

NO CURE-ALL

"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Keele emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Keele wants to be certain every man and woman knows: "If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head, there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention."

HOPELESS CASES DISCOURAGED

First the trichologist is quick to tell hopeless cases they cannot be helped. But the "hopeless" cases are few. Only if a man is completely shiny bald is he in this last category.

If there is fuzz, no matter how light, thin or colorless, the Keele treatment can perform wonders.

A complete, private examination is given by a trichologist to determine the condition of his scalp and cause for his hair trouble.

FREE EXAMINATIONS

This examination is very thorough and highly technical. It requires 20 to 30 minutes. The
