Objections To Film About India's Problems Reported

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD'S India's objections to a future film concerning that nation's fight for independence are not as strong as they have been painted, reports director George Cukor.

He will direct "Bhowani Junction," the book of the month club best seller which MGM is filming. The story concerns an Anglo-Indian girl (Ava Gardner) who returns to India at the end of World War II and is caught in the political turmoil. She is torn between three lovers: a British colonel (Stewart Granger), an Indian Nationalist and an Anglo-Indian who runs a strategic railroad.

Reports from India indicated strong objections to the film. It was even stated that MGM would not be permitted to shoot there. "That's not true," countered Cukor, who will direct the film. He has returned from five weeks in India and reported cooperation from all the government officials he dealt with.

"Right now we are negotiating for locations," said the director. "We may shoot in Pakistan. It's not a question of obtaining permission. There are other matters to be considered: The use of troops, railroads and other facilities, plus matters of customs and income tax."

Cukor said he had helpful conversations with many top Indian officials, including prime minister Nehru himself.

"When Nehru was visiting in Bombay, he was kind enough to receive me," said Cukor. "I talked to him for 20 minutes and I felt guilty to take up his time, he is

PELICAN BEAT

By NANCY CLARK

Sparkling little snowflakes have squeezed themselves from the clouds to fall on our Klamath Union High campus. A wonderful way to get us into the Christmas spirit, don't you think? Cheers of joy from the Ski Club members, and ice skating lovers have been heard sixth periods for the last two days. The teachers also enjoy the change, but when it comes to teaching over the talk of snow, it proves quite a trick.

Speaking of tricks, one of KU's newly acquired teachers this year, Robert DeRosier, is amusing the children around his neighborhood with amateur magic. His freshman English classes have no complaints as yet about tricks being played on them. Incidentally, Mr. DeRosier is an interesting personality to interview as well as being an efficient teacher.

Baldi's Band will play at the OTI, KUHS dance tonight. Part of the expenses for dance have been donated by the Music Guild of America. OTI is paying the rental on the armory, while KU is furnishing decorations and soil drinks. All students will be admitted free with a student body card from either school.

Christmas party is in the making for Future Homemakers of America. This was discussed along with the fixing of baskets for needy families over the holidays. The meeting was conducted by Roberta Matthews, president. Lila Havird presides as vice president, while Sandra Campbell serves as secretary and Nancy

Cox, treasurer. Miss Clara Shepard is adviser for the group. Klamath Union High School Pella compete with Grants Pass, Ashland and Medford Friday in a basketball bonfire.
