

Major From Klamath Falls Supervised Army Monument

A former Klamath Falls resident, who has helped make history in Korea, promoted the idea of a memorial to the gallant 406 U.S. soldiers of the 24th infantry division who first slowed the advance of 30,000 Communists at the beginning of the Korean War.

Maj. Ralph P. Taylor, whose wife Elizabeth, his three children, Sarah, 11, George, 6, Mary Susan, 4 years and his mother, Mrs. May Taylor live here, proposed the monument be placed on the site of that battle. On October 17 he helped dedicate the shaft on a hill

Oregon Group To Aid Board

SALEM (AP) — The Oregon State Board of Control decided Monday to set up a seven-member advisory committee to help the board choose the site for the new $14,000,000 mental hospital to be built in the Portland area.

The committee will set up a point system to aid in evaluating the various sites that will be considered.

The committee will include representatives of the Oregon State Hospital, University of Oregon Medical School, Oregon Mental Health Assn., Oregon Neuropsychiatric Society, State Civil Defense Organization, Oregon State Medical Society and the State Board of Health.

The people voted at November's general election to build the hospital, which will be located within 20 miles of the Multnomah County courthouse. The board of Control will ask the Legislature, which meets here next month, to appropriate almost $7,000,000 to begin construction.

The board tentatively agreed with Glenn Stanton, Portland architect, that the hospital shouldn't be built on the site of the University Medical School in Portland. Stanton said there isn't enough space, and that the hospital should be located a safe distance from Portland if the city suffers an atomic attack.

Stanton said a 400-acre site is needed, and that he believes a site could be bought for around $200,000.

Gov. Paul L. Patterson, chairman of the board, said he doesn't expect opposition to any proposed sites. Such opposition delayed the picking of the site for the new state reformatory, to be built three miles south of St. Paul in northern Marion County.

Missing Man's Body Found

PORTLAND (AP) — The body of John J. Tomlinson, 86, missing from the home of his daughter since Oct. 2, was found by sheriff's deputies Sunday.

It was badly decomposed and parts of it had been carried away by animals.

Tomlinson was believed to have become lost in the woods some two miles from his daughter's home and to have died from exhaustion and exposure.

Identification was made by two sons, J. J. Tomlinson and Emery Tomlinson, both of Seattle.

top near Osan about 28 miles south of Seoul.

The base of the monument is a concrete cuboid about six feet on each edge. On the base are bronze plaques bearing this legend in English and Korean:

"In commemoration. On this site, 5 July 1950, 406 men of 'Task Force Smith,' 21st Infantry, and battery A, 52nd field artillery battalion, 24th Infantry division, fought the initial action between United States troops and the Communist aggressors."

The masonry column which adds about 12 feet to the height of the monument is of native stone.

Taylor conceived the idea for the memorial in March and pushed the construction to completion.

As historian for the division, Taylor did not see action in Korea, but he was wearing the 24th's tan leaf shoulder patch at Pearl Harbor when the attack there embroiled this country in World War II. Because of his performance during that engagement, he was returned to the U.S. for training as an officer. Later, in Italy, he received two Silver Stars, the army's third highest decoration, two Bronze Stars, and four Purple Hearts.

Taylor who is stationed in Japan, attended grade school at Riverside, Fremont school and graduated from Klamath Union High School in 1936. He attended Willamette University before enlisting in 1940. He is 35 years old.

Mrs. Taylor, who makes her home at 42 Pine Street with her father, George Burton, will join her husband in Japan in the near future. She spent some time with him in Germany at the close of World War II. Their youngest child, Mary Susan, was born there.

Taylor's father, George Taylor, resides in Portland.

Seed League Meet Planned

"Seed certification rules may need some tightening up and that will be one of the things we will talk about in the certification committee at the seed league meeting in Portland December 8, 9 and 10," said Ed Geary today, Geary is chairman of the seed league committee on certification and past president of the seed league.

Geary continued, "The seed league has always exerted a lot of influence on seed certification procedure and rules, although the league has no legal connection with the subject. For example, we have several times wanted changes in the law setting up seed certification work, and the legislature has always started way back 40 years ago. Rules have changed of course, but the procedure is about the same as when the work started."

"Of course our committee isn't the only one. Other groups from

YOUR CRATER LAKE MILK has a minimum butterfat content of 3.8. Because of our large stock of containers, on hand at the time Oregon's milk law was changed to permit this richer milk, some Crater Lake milk cartons are still printed 3.5 M.B.F. However, EVERY QUART of Crater Lake milk now has a minimum butterfat content of 3.8. And . . . that DELICIOUS Crater Lake GOLDEN GUERNSEY milk has ALWAYS tested FAR ABOVE the butterfat minimum shown . . . and at this season of the year Crater Lake GOLDEN GUERNSEY is testing well above 5% butterfat.

Month in and month out, year after year, Crater Lake milk, FROM KLAMATH'S FINEST DAIRIES, has proven at every inspection to be MILK AT ITS VERY BEST. If you wish to verify this, call your City Milk Inspector.

Crater Lake milk is FRESH FROM KLAMATH'S FINEST DAIRIES, delivered daily from the creamery to your grocer.
