Owls Cop Second Win Over Lassen

SUSANVILLE, CALIF. — Wally Palmberg's Oregon Technical Institute Owls worked into a lather here Saturday night and came out with a convincing 89-49 victory over the home-standing Lassen Junior College Cougars.

It was the second straight conquest over the Cougars for the Owls, who dumped the Lassen qquintet Friday night by a 80-51 margin, as the freshman-dominated cage team hit well with their shooting and floor play.

Paced by the shooting of Johnny James, the ex-All-Stater from Benson Tech of Portland, the Owls rolled to a twenty point lead at halftime as they took a 47-27 lead over the Cougars.

James tallied 18 counters to lead the invading Owls over the full distance of the contest, while Gary Dorn, with a total of 15 points was the next high man for the Owls.

Others that helped spearhead the Owls to their second victory included Dennis Eckart and Gordon Fahlgren both of whom scored 14 points. Fahlgren, who didn't start, but countered well on the boards for the Ore Tech squad.

For the Cougars, Art Grohs led the point scoring attack with a total of 12 counters, and led his team in fine floor play displie the overwhelming victory by the Owls.

Palmberg now sets his sights on a trip through the state of Washington this coming weekend for battles with Olympic, St. Martins and Clark Junior College.

'Greg' To Speak At Feast

L. H. Gregory, sports editor of the Portland Oregonian will be the guest speaker at Wednesday night's Oregon Technical Institute football banquet starting at 8 at the campus cafeteria.

Assistant coach Art Kirkland is guiding the plans for the annual football feast and a tribute to the players of the Owls' gridiron squad during the past season, and stated this year's program should be topped by none with the presence of Gregory.

"Greg," as he is called by everyone up and down the Pacific Coast, is one of the best after dinner speakers bar-none, according to many of his colleagues.

The always flowing wit and sense of humor contained by the dean of Pacific Coast sportswriters is surpassed by very few if any and his background over the entire world of sports, especially minor league baseball, a field which has made him wellknown nationally, points for an outstanding program.

Besides the speaking of "Greg," theOwl coaching staff, headed by Rex Hunsaker, Kirkland and Bob Smith will present the outstanding back and lineman awards, along with the trophy to the most inspirational player.

The Mile High Campus coaching staff votes on the lineman and back honors, while the football team casts the vote for the most inspirational honors.

There are close to 10 0tickets remaining to be sold and they will go fast according to Kirkland. Any of the Owls' gridiron supporters that would like to attend the banquet and pay a tribute to the footballing Owls, and hear Gregory speak, may obtain tickets from Kirkland by calling 2-3466 during the day. The cost is $1.25 per plate.

Rocky Adds Weight From Appearances

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Months of trouping around the country, making personal appearances and laying it in at the banquet table, have boisted Rocky Marciano's weight up to 200 pounds, heaviest the champion has scaled since he began his career seven years ago. He notched only 187 for his title defense against Ezzard Charles last September.

There are keen observers who predict that Rocky, a notable eater in any company, will shorten his tenure considerably unless he fights twice a year and sticks to the long training sieges he has endured up to now. They don't think the Brockton Buster is gaited for any extended inaction.

Whom he will fight next, and where, we are not in position to make an enlightened guess. Rocky said in a recent interview he might defend on the West Coast next March, but he probably was just making talk. Insiders are convinced that Al Weill, the champ's manager, will never consent to a match with Archie Moore, the wily light heavyweight king.

Earl Flora, of the Ohio State Journal, insists it happened. In his column he tells of the Columbus lady who, wishing to be helpful, wrote to the Philadelphia Phils, that there were a couple of high school graduates in her city who looked like fine prospects. She suggested that the Phils have one of their scouts look them over. In due time she received this reply:

"You may be sure we appreciate your recommending to us the two players. However, we instruct our scouts not to sign players who are under six feet tall."

Flora suggests that, for a club which has won only one pennant in the past 39 years, this is being pretty choosy.

Strand Discloses Problems

CORVALLIS (AP) — A "maelstrom of sports psychology which has...a vice-like grip on America" has resulted in difficult problems for the nation's colleges, President A. L. Strand of Oregon State College said.

Writing in the alumni magazine, Strand said: "The choice is to stay in the system and live with its pressures and injustices or get out. This is superficial thinking... for most of us known that there is no choice about it. We are not free even to consider the choice."

OCCASIONED

Strand's article was occasioned by the resignation of football coach Kip Taylor. He quit at the end of a season in which his team won only one game and lost eight.

Strand said there were some very good things to be derived from intercollegiate athletics, but "many injustices to coaches and not infrequently to players seem to be part and parcel of the system. No institution that we know of has been able to avoid the bad by-products by assuring the security of coaches or has found any way to prevent, for instance, the distraction of players from objectives that would be best for them in the long run.

"When changes are made in coaching staffs, the public assumes that the real cause is too many defeats. There is no denying that is the basic reason, but it may not be the immediate or foremost consideration. Too many losses produce side reactions of various sorts, dissensions and incompatibilities that are impossible to mend," he wrote.

The college president continued that school budgets have become so dependent on such things as Rose Bowl and TV receipts that "athletic directors shudder at the mere thought of losing that source of easy dollars. The upshot is that we try to compete in a league where the division of talent is very tough. It is expected that there will be periods of frustration. Very unfortunately and often unjustly, the coaching personnel receives the brunt of these reactions..."

ALTERNATIVE

Strand said that no school, "not even Chicago or Reed" had taken the only alternative choice—dropping intercollegiate athletics entirely. "In cases where an apparent choice was made, other factors had arisen to such importance that the abandonment of highly competitive athletics became possible, if not indicative..."

"In conclusion, I want to say that in my estimation we won't obtain a better coach than Kip Taylor. Furthermore he has shown himself to be a bigger man than the system of which he is a part. Few men facing the situation he did would have risen to the occasion with the courage and good will which he has displayed," Strand wrote.

HUNTERS SCOUR OHIO

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — During the hunting season "there will be one hunter for every 10 acres of huntable farm land" claims Robert Davis, state extension wildlife specialist. Davis says about 700,000 hunters will scour Ohio farm lands this season.

Reno Sweeps Series With 2nd Game Win

The Reno Huskies made it two straight Saturday night as they continued to hold the upperhand over the Klamath Falls Pelicans when they worked their way to a 65-43 victory over the invading cage team.

Led by 6 foot 8 inch Stan "The Man" Valentine the Huskies held a 14-12 first period lead and then led 28-22 at halftime. Then something broke for the Huskies and points came fast and furious.

Scoring 24 tallies while holding the Pels to 12 during the period, the Huskies took a 52-34 third period lead and just about broke the Pelican's back. Both teams scored on just about even terms in the final quarter and the Reno prepsters picked up their second win of the season.

Valentine scored 16 points to share high point honors with Bobby Clements. Clements scored 10 of his 16 points in the third period surge.

Led by the floor play of Jack Sunitsch, and the scoring of Dave D'Olivo, the Pels remained a threat until the waning minutes of the final chapter of the ball game. D'Olivo bucketed 15 points, while Orin Perkins was second high man with a total of eight points. Guy Munsell sparked the Pels at times with his agressiveness on the backboards.

Emporia Cops Honors

NEW YORK (AP) Unbeaten College of Emporia (Kan.) took small-college offense honors while Tennessee State and Geneva College (Pa.) shared the more important defense titles during the 1954 football season, final NCAA Service Bureau statistics showed Monday.

Emporia, going through its second straight undefeated campaign piled up 409.7 yards a game, 404.7 of them on the ground, and averaged 43.2 points a game. In all three respects, it led the nation, bettering the marks compiled by the major-college champions, too.

Tennessee State also was unbeaten, winning ten straight. It won the ground defense title, allowing only 29.2 yards a game and less than a yard a play, 0.91. But in total defense it placed second to Geneva, which allowed an overall total of 106.3 yards a game to Tennessee State's 118.8. Geneva was second in rushing defense, yielding 41.7 yards a game.

The most valuable player in the Sally League the past two years has worn a Jacksonville (Fla.) uniform. Hank Aaron, now of the Braves, won it in 1953. Buck Ridque got it in 1954.
