

THE ASSASSINATION OF LINCOLN was the big news back in 1865 when this newspaper, the New York Herald, was printed. It is owned by Bill Ackerman, Klamath Falls fire marshal. He has a number of old papers, one of which is a reprint of one published in 1773. He found them in an old house in Litchfield, Connecticut, where he lived before moving to Klamath Falls in 1944.

Aged Newspapers Collected By Klamath Fire Marshal

Modern medical practitioners may have a pill for any occasion, but you can bet 10 scapels to one that they have nothing to match Dr. Phelps' Tomato pills. And these were on the market back in 1843. They cured anything from an inflamed liver to rheumatism, and usually raised the dickens with ulcers and dropsy to boot. If you find this hard to digest, then note the testimony of Mr. Andrew Vredenburg of Rome, New York. It seems that Mr. Vredenburg was afflicted with a painful tumor on his breast. It was pronounced cancerous and incurable. Dr. Phelps' Tomato pills did the trick. And it took only a dozen boxes to do it. This bit of medical information was found in the October 19, 1843, edition of the Litchfield, Connecticut, Enquirer. It is one of a collection of aged papers owned by Bill Ackerman, Klamath Falls fire marshal. Ackerman found the papers in an old house which was being razed in that city, his hometown before moving West in 1944. Included in the find was a reprint copy of the New York Herald of April 15, 1865, which carries the story of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln. The one-column headline at the top of the page begins in somewhat alarming fashion. It says, "Important."

Girls Drown In Auto Crash

WINCHESTER, Ky. (AP) — Two little sisters were drowned Friday night as the car their father was driving plunged into the Kentucky River. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Paul of Lexington, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hiale, former Ohioans now living in Lexington, swam to safety. Mrs. Paul with her 3-month-old daughter, Carol Ann. The Richmond State Police office report quoted Paul as saying he was traveling downgrade on an unfamiliar road and applied his brakes but they did not hold. The report said weeds almost blocked a roadside sign reading "ferry ahead." The swift current in the 14-foot of water swept the infant from Mrs. Paul's arms, but Sterling Townsend, a resident of the Jackson's ferry area near here, plunged in and rescued the child. Townsend said he might have saved Helen Louise Paul 5, and her sister, Donna Marie, 7, had not the doors on the car been locked.

Supervisors Reject Bid

YREKA — The Siskiyou County board of supervisors Tuesday rejected the lone bid submitted for construction of a proposed new home for old persons because it was too high. The bid, submitted by H. Barnhart Construction Company of Medford, was $156,000, while the estimated cost submitted by architect R. J. Keeney was $98,044.

Horseradish Picnic Held

MALIN — The Horseradish Grower's Association held a picnic at the Malin Park Monday evening, August 1, with Loyal Saunders and Hugh Rick and their families of Malin attending. A horseradish grower from St. Louis, Missouri, Ernest Schwartz, flew in for the occasion. This was Schwartz' first plane ride, and his first trip to the West Coast. He came to inspect the western crops, as many growers in this region have purchased roots from him. The day following the picnic, Saunders took Schwartz on a trip to Clater Lake. There were 17 members of the association at the picnic, all from the Lower Klamath Basin.

by Supervisor Clint Jackson (Edge-wood) to request new bids on the project. The board has set a top ceiling on the cost of the project of $104,000. Barr has said he believes the bids will eventually turn out to be around $200,000.

He opposes the proposed location for the home, adjacent to the Siskiyou County General Hospital in Yreka, because of inadequate recreation area. He says it is an addition to the hospital, not an old persons' home.

Police Seeking Escaped Driver

County law enforcement officers were searching Saturday for Clifford Wilson, 28, convicted drunken driver, who escaped custody in Chiloquin.

According to Deputy Sheriff Able Youngblood, Wilson, who was serving 30 days, was working with a work detail of prisoners. Youngblood said Wilson was picked up by five unidentified men in an automobile. The car speeded out of Chiloquin northward on Highway 97.
