

TRAVELING TO COLLEGE? There is charm in a handsome suit such as this one by Oscar Straus, presented here by the Wool Bureau. Made of fine, light weight charcoal brown worsted, it has a 25 1/2-inch jacket a very slim skirt. The curved strap detail accentuates the longer line and hides pocket tops. There are selfbuttons, notched revers and sleeves cuffed to be worn three-quarter or full length. Hat is by Rex, Inc., of Beverly Hills.

WELL-CARED-FOR HANDS are as much a part of good grooming as well-brushed and becomingly arranged hair. Here are suggestions from Cutex for care of your nails to make your fingertips the final accent to your careful grooming.

BAN IS SAFE The new lotion deodorant, Ban, has been tested on 600 materials by the American Institute of Home Laundering with satisfactory results. With normal skin, you can use Ban immediately after shaving, too.

NAIL CARE

Your mirror reflects shining well-brushed hair, perfectly shaped eyebrows, and lips that show sharp clean outlines. You feel everything has been done to make you look your best. But, wait! Have you taken a good look at your hands? If your hands are beautifully groomed, they will complete the reflection of fastidious daintiness, good living, and good taste. But the reflection is distorted if the hands are tipped with broken and split nails, rimmed with ragged, rough cuticle that snag precious nylons and pull at your pretty silk dresses. Pretty nails are not the result of great expense or great effort, rather they are the result of good sense and good consistent care.

In the good sense department is the use of a cuticle remover each time the nails are manicured. If the cuticle is stubborn and long neglected, more frequent use is necessary. Cutex makes an Oily Cuticle Remover that is packed with two orangewood sticks and cotton for your conveniences. Simply tip one of the sticks lightly with cotton and moisten with the liquid. Very gently push back the cuticle around each nail and wipe away the dead tissue that is loosened with a towel. It is wise never to cut the cuticle as this results in hangnails — something we do not want. And a good thing to remember is to take a half second every time you wash your hands to push the cuticle back with the towel. Rough dry cuticle will be no more as the tissue will frame the nail in a soft unbroken line.

Under the heading of good, consistent care comes a good nail cream. Nails need nourishment, just as your face, if they are to remain healthy and strong during the stress of every day living. Nail Flex, by Cutex, is especially designed for brittle nails, that split and flake, and is so pleasant to use. It is rich with cholesterol and a dab, gently massaged into the skin between the base of the nail and the first knuckle of each finger, will give nourishment to the new nail being formed beneath.
