Ike Plans Fishing Trip With David

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower gets down to real vacationing today with a trip high into the Rocky Mountains for several days of trout fishing.

The President arranged to travel by automobile shortly after noon to Fraser, Colo., about 70 miles northwest of Denver on the western slope of the Continental Divide for a stay at the secluded Byer's Peak Ranch of an old friend, Aksel Nielsen.

Tomorrow Eisenhower will be joined there by his 7-year-old grandson David, who stands to get some expert advice from the President on how to cast dry and wet flies for trout. The youngster, vacationing now at a boys camp at Estes Park, Colo., never has done any fishing.

In advance of departing for Fraser, the President planned a brief stop at his Lowry Air Force Base office, and then a round of golf at Denver's Cherry Hills Country Club. The drive to the fishing camp was scheduled after lunch here at the home of Eisenhower's mother-in-law Mrs. John S. Doud.

Eisenhower arrived here Sunday night from Washington for an extended work-and-play vacation. Yesterday he put in 2½ hours at his tiny office at Lowry and then went out to Cherry Hills for golf with former Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado: William W. Flemmiken, Denver oil man and the club champion; and Rip Arnold, the club pro.

Thornton, Arnold and Flemmiken—all crack golfers—spoiled the President an 18-stroke handicap for 18 holes, but were ready to begin whittling it down at the end of the round.

Eisenhower actually had an 89, in the immediate offing—when he has had a few days to polish it a bit.

The chief executive carded eight on two holes, which indicated the rest of his round was all right. The President's grandson may stay at Fraser, with the chief executive, in a brand new prefabricated cabin put up at the ranch there since Eisenhower visited the place a bit more than a year ago. The President plans to return to Denver late Sunday.

Integration's Pace Reported

ATLANTA, (AP)—Efforts to integrate Negro and white pupils in Southern schools have moved ahead in a pace in one Kentucky city and suffered a setback at a community in Texas, Georgia appears to be marking time.

At Newport, Ky., School Supt. A. D. Owens announced the immediate end of segregation in Newport schools in kindergartens and grades seven through twelve. He said yesterday that segregation would end entirely at the beginning of the 1956 school year.

In Big Spring, Tex., the pro-segregation Texas Citizens Council went to court in an effort to keep the state from giving any state school funds to districts opening their schools to both Negroes and whites.

Ross Carlton and O. M. Street, Dallas Attorneys, filed a petition in behalf of the council in Howard County (Big Spring) District Court, asking that State Comptroller Robert Calvert and Texas Education Commissioner J. W. Edgar be enjoined from allocating state school funds to districts which have desegregated.

The petition cited state laws forbidding use of state monies in any school attended by both whites and Negroes. The petition also asked that the Big Spring Independent School District be enjoined from carrying out an Aug. 9 integration order.

In Atlanta, the Georgia State Board of Education abandoned its efforts to fire schoolteachers who favor compliance with the U. S. Supreme Court decisions outlawing public school segregation.

But it called on local authorities to weed out such people under state laws requiring teachers to take an oath that they will not teach theories of social relations contrary to the state constitution and laws.
