Public Road Debate Held In KF Court

Farmers and sportsmen engaged in a lively debate today at a public hearing before the county court over the possible closure of county access roads to Taylor grazing land in Swan Lake Valley. A petition signed by 17 property owners was presented to the court requesting that part of Old Port Road be vacated. The road provides access for hunters to some of the Taylor land, which is choice deer-hunting territory. It is public land leased for grazing purposes. The debate was still on in the courthouse at press-time. Over 30 interested persons crowded the room. The three members of the county court were expected to make a decision on the closure this afternoon. William Canton county surveyor, said that the roads in question, which run north and east from Oregon Tech into the valley, are in poor condition and little used except by the hunters. He added that there are other good access roads into the area. Two petitions were presented to the court in opposition to the closure. One was from the Klamath Sportsmen Association, signed by some 300 persons, and another was presented by Audrey Baxter, secretary of the Klamath Archery Club. This was signed by over 400 persons. L. M. Mathison, regional director for the state game commission, told the court that the commission was opposed to the closure because it would eliminate one more access road to public land and to a public resource, or the deer. Jack Marshall, one of the landowners involved, pointed out that the roads sought to be closed are directly affected 40 to 80 acres of public land. "All of the landowners want them closed," he said.

Ashland Woman Hurt In Crash A 24-year-old Ashland woman suffered minor cuts and bruises in a car-truck accident about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning on Highway 39 and Crystal Springs Road. The slightly injured woman, Shirley Weber, was a passenger in a car her husband, Leonard Otto Weber, 24, was driving when the accident occurred. State police said the Weber car collided with a concrete mixer truck when the truck attempted to turn onto Crystal Springs Road as the Weber car was passing. The truck was driven by Herbert Wesley Kurze, 38, of 1835 Portland Street, who is employed by the Acme Concrete Company. Both cars were traveling south. Police said Kurze signaled to turn but it apparently was not seen by Weber. Neither driver was cited, police said.

But don't envy the Soviet atomic laborer too much. He works a six-day week, in contrast to the 40-hour, five-day week American experts reported their labor force works. Letavet said Russia has set a "permissible dose of radiation—the amount a worker can take in a day without harm—at five-hundredths of a roentgen. (The roentgen is the international unit for measurement of radiation.) With a six-day week, the Soviets' safe maximum works out to the same three-tenths of a roentgen per week the United States, Britain and some other countries allow. An American scientist reported that there was "little difference" at such low levels of radiation how the weekly dose was distributed. Letavet said not all atomic workers get the six-hour day and longer vacation time, just those on certain jobs where the radiation standard might be exceeded. These include workers on nuclear reactors, atom-smashing research machines, and on certain jobs using radioactive isotopes. If these Soviet workers happen to be getting medical treatment with X-rays in their off time, their work day at the atomic plant is reduced to five hours, the Russian added. "Persons working under conditions of ionizing radiations," he continued, "are recommended to spend their annual vacations—which as has been mentioned is prolonged—at sanatoriums and rest homes." He added that such facilities were provided at "moderate price," with 30 per cent paid by the worker and 70 per cent paid by the state's "social insurance fund."

An official of the American Atomic Energy Commission told a reporter if the radiation to which U. S. atomic workers were exposed reaches three-tenths roentgen before the work week was out, such workers were immediately assigned to another job away from any possible exposure for the rest of the week. "It's seldom necessary to do that," he added. "With the protective measures we employ, we've had an amazing safety record." At the same conference session, devoted to "safety standards and health aspects of large-scale use of atomic energy," W. Binks of Britain's Ministry of Health suggested certificates be introduced on which would be recorded details of all radiation exposure, medical and occupational, which an individual receives during his lifetime.
