THRESHING AUSTRIAN WINTER peas on the Joe Steele ranch, Pine Grove, signals the opening of the Basin harvest. Other ranchers in the area are getting started on barley and wheat. J. B. Horsley, Langell Valley, is operating the combine.

ALL GARDENERS KNOW that raising a good crop of vegetables takes constant vigilance against the encroachment of insects. Tom Trulove, 12, left, was doing a little spraying when the Herald and News cameraman dropped by. Right, is Dwight Schuh, 10, who also gardened this year in readiness for the 4-H junior garden show at the fairgrounds this week. Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Trulove, 4055 Shasta Way. Dwight is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Schuh, 4039 Shasta Way. Both boys are members of a garden club led by C. E. Merritt.

PAUL BARNES HAS assumed his duties as manager of Pacific Supply Cooperative replacing Ed Strack. Before coming to Klamath Falls, Barnes was manager of Pacific Supply Cooperative in Madras, Oregon. Previous to his Madras position, he was the county agent for Jefferson County. Barnes plans to move his wife and three children from Madras to his recently purchased Klamath Falls home at 5250 Shasta Way about September 1.

South State Holds Runoff

JACKSON, Miss. (P) — Mississippi's bitter Democratic runoff primary for governor roared to the finish today as an estimated 400,000 voters choose between Atty. Gen. J. P. Coleman and Paul Johnson.

The winner is assured of replacing Gov. Hugh White, who cannot succeed himself. Republican opposition is negligible.

Coleman is 41, Johnson 39. Either way, Mississippi will have its youngest governor in a quarter century.

Johnson, a Hattiesburg attorney, led Coleman by 18,000 votes in the first primary three weeks ago, topping a field of five candidates. But the three losers rolled up more than 200,000 votes, making a runoff race necessary.

Johnson and Coleman staged a whirlwind campaign in which each questioned the other's capability, Southern loyalty and attitude toward segregation, which both avow must be maintained.

Gambling, a minor issue in the first primary, almost stole the spot light from other issues in the second primary. Each accused the other of having the support of Gulf Coast gambling interests.

In a speech at Meridian last night, Coleman said Johnson spent last weekend with the "kingpin of crime and corruption in our state."

Johnson told an audience at Yazoo City that a Negro handbill was distributed in Jackson in behalf of Coleman's candidacy.
