

Council Hears Objections To Rezoning, Street Plans

The city council took it on the chin last night in the regular meeting in city hall.

The city officials first received a verbal blasting at the public hearing on the proposed rezoning of the Gus Lampropoulos property on Main and Halley streets.

Only one person raised an objection to changing the zone from Class II residential to business so that Lampropoulos will be enabled to move his grocery store from Main Street to make room for a super service station.

She was Emma Boivin, 531 Willow Avenue. She began by telling the council that "If he wants to move let him put up a new, fire-proof building."

And before she was finished she

KF Councilman To Resign Post

Murdo Morrison, Klamath Falls City councilman from Ward 2 gave the council his verbal resignation Monday night at the regular meeting of the city council.

Mayor Paul Landry, with the approval of the council will appoint a successor to Morrison at a future meeting. Morrison's resignation was necessary because he is moving outside the city limits.

In further business Monday night the council heard the first and second readings of an ordinance which will require all downtown business establishments to build covered cabinets to hold at least two 50 gallon garbage cans. Compliance with this ordinance will be required 30 days after the third and last reading of the ordinance at a future council meeting.

Violation of the ruling will bring a fine of $5 to $100 and, or, a five to 30 day jail sentence.

The council heard first and second readings of an ordinance authorizing the negotiation of an option taken by the Oregon State Highway Commission for the commission to purchase 12 to 15 city-owned lots in the Buena Vista Addition. These lots are from Main Street to the North Entrance and the land will be used for part of the right of way for the projected Westside bypass. The purchase price offered was for the appraised value of $2,610.

Weed Queen's Post Sought

WEED — The contest for queen of the third annual Italian Carnival got under way last week with five candidates in the running.

Susan Potter started this week in the lead with 1,000 votes with Ruth Martin of Mount Shasta in second place with 800. Votes are collected through ticket sales to the yearly festival.

Tied for third place with 600 votes are Olivia Walters of Dunsmuir and Emelie Iaconis of McCloud.

The local candidate, June Solus of Weed, was trailing the field at the start. She has, however, the advantage of being the home town entry.

Contestants have until September 10 to collect votes in the contest which is sponsored by the Weed Chamber of Commerce as a feature of the annual carnival. In addition to prizes, the winner will have the honor of reigning over the colorful carnival slated for the weekend of September 10-11.

Child Labor Law Explained

Farmers who employ children under 16 years of age during school hours will violate the child labor provisions of the Federal Wage and Hour Law if their crops or products are involved in interstate commerce.

This warning has been given by Madison R. Smith, Portland, field office supervisor for the department of labor's wage and hour and public contracts division.

Smith pointed out that the provisions of the law apply even though the children have work permits or certificates of age. The farmer is responsible for determining the correct age of each worker, he said.

The farmer is also required to maintain certain records for every worker in his employ who is under 18 years of age and is employed while school is in session. These must include the minor's full name, date of birth, and permanent and working address. Such records must be retained by the farmer for three years, Smith revealed.

The federal law does not cover employment of children before or after school hours.

Red Cross, UF Directors Study Possible Funds Drive

In anticipation that the Klamath County chapter of the Red Cross will be asked to make a special appeal for funds to aid stricken people in the Northeast flood area, a meeting of local fund-raising leaders was held Monday.

Although the local chapter officially has not yet been asked to contribute funds, Red Cross officials here were told by higher echelon officers that the request would be forthcoming.

Meeting at the county library, both board directors of the Red Cross and the United Fund discussed preliminary plans.

In recent years the Red Cross has been a participating agency in the United Fund drive. It was pointed out the reason for the joint meeting was to decide whether this special campaign should be a Red Cross drive only, or whether it should be a joint one with United Fund.

In view of the fact the United Fund drive is scheduled to "kick-off" in October, the hindrances of having two campaigns so close together were aired.

The possibility of the United Fund campaign starting earlier — with a higher fund goal to meet the Northeast crisis — was among proposals.

Final decision of method of the proposed drive will be made at a meeting of the two organizations' board of directors at 7:30 in the First Presbyterian Church parlor Thursday night.

Last special appeal made by the Red Cross was in 1951 when the local chapter was asked to raise $1,520 for Midwest flood victims. Eighteen hundred dollars was raised for that disaster.

It was explained funds would be direct gifts to stricken persons in the flood areas.

Estimate of the amount of monies the local chapter would be asked to raise was not attempted.

But the national Red Cross will ask $5 million from the entire nation, Virginia Dixon, executive secretary of the Klamath County Red Cross, reported.

A preliminary meeting of board directors of both groups will be held Wednesday noon at the Wilma Hotel.

At the Thursday meeting in the church, in addition to the board members, will be officers from participating agencies whose approval alteration of the United Fund drive would have to be secured.

Red Cross funds of $2 million have already been used in the Northeast disaster, it was announced at the Monday meeting.

In addition to Mrs. Dixon, attending the meeting Monday were Mrs. Margaret Sheridan, president of the United Fund; Otto Smith, Red Cross disaster chairman; the Rev. Dale Hewitt, municipal judge; Frank Blackmer, Deb Addison, Ross Raglund, Rex Dye, executive secretary of the United Fund; Bob Beach, UF drive chairman.

John Heyden, newly-elected president of the Red Cross, was unable to be present at the Monday meet, but will attend ensuing meetings.

The public is invited to the Thursday night gathering, it was announced.

Fire Damages Motel Kitchen

WEED — A fire in the office-living quarters of the Pilgrim Rest Motel on Highway 90 south of Weed during the early hours this morning did extensive damage to the kitchen of the establishment.

At 3:15 a.m. today, police officer Harold Barnum noticed smoke pouring from beneath the door and through the windows of the living quarters of the motel and turned in a fire alarm. By the time the owners, Mr. and Mrs. William Kumberg, were awakened, the floor and foundation studding in the kitchen had burned. They had retired about 11 p.m. Monday.

The Long-Bell Fire Department answered the call and determined that the fire had started from faulty refrigerator wiring. No estimate of the damage caused by the fire and smoke was available this morning, but Kumberg stated the property was insured.
