Developing 285 horsepower its new, low-friction V-8 engine has 9-1 compression ratio and delivers 401 ft.-lbs. of torque. Lincoln is introducing a group of safety features including retracted steering column and safety-flex steering wheel with special safety door locks and optional safety belts. American Inspection Plan Under Study By U.N. Group

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Members of the U.N. Disarmament subcommittee today studied a U.S. proposal to merge American and Soviet plans for inspection machinery to prevent surprise attacks.

The new American plan was outlined in detail yesterday to the five-nation subcommittee by Harold E. Stassen, President Eisenhower's special assistant on disarmament and the U.S. representative at the arms talks which opened here Monday.

Stassen recommended that Eisenhower's Geneva proposal for a Soviet-American exchange of military blueprints and aerial inspection rights be combined with the previous Russian suggestion that ground inspection teams be stationed at key ports, airports and railway and road junctions to check on movements of troops and armaments.

Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev was expected to comment on the new American plan before the end of the week.

A highly placed American source said if the subcommittee, which also includes representatives of France, Britain and Canada, did not adopt the U.S. plan, approval would be sought in the parent 12-nation Disarmament Commission and in the U.N. General Assembly opening Sept. 20 if necessary.

Stassen told the group yesterday aerial inspection and exchange of defense blueprints, together with ground observer checks, would provide a foolproof safeguard against surprise attack by either Russia or United States.

This was the plan he proposed:

1. The United States and Russia would exchange all data on identification, strength, command structure and disposition of personnel, units and equipment of all major forces, as well as a complete list of military plans, facilities and installations with their locations.

2. Each nation would have ground observers at key locations in the other's country to check the accuracy of the blueprints and watch for evidence of mobilization or attack.

3. Each country would permit to the other unrestricted but monitored aerial reconnaissance by visual, photographic and electronic means.

Death Ends Long Career For Editor

RYE BEACH, N. H. (AP)—E. Lansing Ray, who rose from a $10-a-week job to editor and publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, died of a heart attack at his summer home here yesterday as he was observing his 71st birthday.

His unexpected death ended 52 years on the Globe-Democrat. The paper had been under his direction for 36 of those years.

Ray was opening gifts at a family birthday party. Suddenly he felt weak, excused himself and went to his bedroom. A physician was called but life quickly ebbed. Death was attributed to a coronary thrombosis.

Only five months ago Ray, whose family had controlled the newspaper for three generations, sold his stock interest in the Globe-Democrat to Samuel I. Newhouse of New York.

Ray remained as editor, publisher and chairman of the board for Newhouse, who owns 109 other newspapers.

At the age of 34, Ray assumed direction of the newspaper by becoming trustee of the estate of a cousin, Miss Ellen J. McKee. At that time he was named president, editor and general manager. Seven years later he became principal owner.

For 29 consecutive years he served as a member of the Board of Directors of The Associated Press, beginning in 1923. He also was elected a vice president of The Associated Press.

Ray passed up a chance for a college education to take a $10-a-week job in the business office of the Globe-Democrat at 16. He rose rapidly, becoming cashier a year later and advertising manager by the time he was 20 years old.

Although his interests were wide, Ray always maintained that "I have never been anything but a newspaperman.

"My whole business interest is in newspaper work and I try conscientiously to maintain this interest in integrity," he once said.

At that time he said that he made it a strict rule to make no personal investments which might influence his judgment as an editor and publisher.

Both Ray's only son E. Lansing Jr. and his wife died in 1946. The son had followed his father's newspaper footsteps, becoming secretary and assistant publisher of the Globe-Democrat in 1932.

Funeral services are to be held in St. Louis but final arrangements had not been completed.
