Vance Happy At Clearance

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harrell T. Vance, assistant commissioner of internal revenue for administration, says he is "delighted" that charges implicating his past conduct have been "all washed out."

He was identified by congressional sources yesterday as the mystery man in Edgar E. Hoppe's suit against the Internal Revenue Service for $25,823 in back pay.

Hoppe, now a Dallas lawyer, said he was fired for "political considerations" two years ago from his $14,800-a-year job as head of the revenue service's inspection force, which polices the big tax-collecting agency.

Hoppe's attorney said Hoppe was dismissed after 24 years with the service because he refused to "whitewash" a derogatory report on another high revenue official, and that Hoppe would name the man when his suit came to trial in the U.S. Court of Claims.

Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, denying the statements, said Hoppe was discharged because of incompetence for the high-level job and a "belligerent attitude" toward his superiors.

Congressional and Treasury informants, asking not to be quoted by name, said yesterday Vance had been accused of giving his draft board false information in order to evade military service.

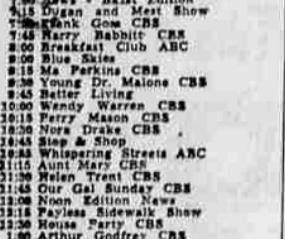

They said selective service, civil service and Treasury investigators had all looked into the charges and found they didn't stand up.

Vance, a 36-year-old career civil servant, said he had been "confident... all the time" the verdict would be in his favor.

He said he learned only yesterday of the basis of the allegations against him. It was a "poison pen letter," he said, written by a shell-shocked and disabled World War I veteran who is now dead.

"And the man who released it throughout the government knew it was a poison pen letter," he added. He did not name either the writer or the distributor of the letter.

Rail Committee, Loggers Want Increased Service

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR.
SALEM (AP)—Another railroad tussle, common to Oregon not too many years ago, could be snapping up again, with the same railroads involved.

The issue is the same, but the railroads are being quiet about it now.

It centers around the fact that many lumber shippers in Southern Oregon, where the Southern Pacific has a monopoly of the rail business, want service from the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. They have the backing of the governor's Emergency Transportation Committee, which thinks the annual SP box car shortages will continue until the SP gets competition.

Also on the side of the lumbermen are Public Utilities Commissioner Charles H. Helzlsouer and his supervisor of rail transportation, Clifford W. Ferguson.

The Southern Pacific hasn't had time to react to the proposal yet, but it certainly won't like it. The two northern lines haven't either, preferring to let the lumbermen, the committee and Helzlsouer carry the ball.

But the committee is sure that the northern lines are itching to get into the lucrative Southern Oregon lumber market.

It could be accomplished in either of two ways.

One method would be to let lumber shippers on the Siskiyou Line (between Eugene and Ashland) order cars directly from the Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

Walsh Home Quiet Now

DURAND, Ill. (AP)—A 7-year-old boy told today what it's like — to him, at least — to have eight brothers and sisters stricken with polio.

Little Bernard Walsh said he and five other children in the family who have escaped the disease "have to keep quiet around home now."

"We have to stay out of trouble too. Our house was noisy before all this happened. But now it's awfully quiet."

Four of farmer Kerou Walsh's children are hospitalized in nearby Rockford, Ill., and four are being cared for at home. One of those hospitalized, David, 17, is in an iron lung and his condition is regarded as critical. Hospital authorities say the condition of Eddie, 16, is "not good."

The father, 53, and the mother, 45, are staying in Rockford to be with the most seriously ill. The children at home, including the six not stricken, are being cared for by the father's sister, Miss Daisy Walsh.

Bernard said he and his 6-year-old brother Tom "have to help with the work. We help take care of Molly Lou (1 year old). She can't dress herself yet. We help carry meals on trays to our sisters who are sick in bed."

"We don't know how to milk cows. But we feed the pigs and cows. We do whatever we can. But it sure is quiet around here now."

Neighbors, relatives and friends have prepared food for the family, have taken them gifts and words of encouragement and are helping with chores on the 180-acre farm.

Two Durand churches have been conducting special prayer services for the family.

Fears that tiny Molly Lou might have contracted polio were dispelled yesterday. Dr. Charles Leonard said observation showed she did not have the disease.

Quarles Tours Air Bases in France

PARIS (AP)—U.S. Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles, making his first tour of air bases in Europe since his appointment a month ago, conferred today with high officials at the French Air Ministry. He also visited the headquarters near Paris of NATO's European Command for a briefing and lunch with the supreme Allied commander, Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther.

Smog Problem Solved By Delivery Man

LOS ANGELES (AP)—No, they're not men from Mars. They are motorcycle messengers with a unique solution to the Los Angeles smog problem.

The 40 motorcycle riders said yesterday the smog was so thick it hurt their eyes. They refused to deliver for a blueprint firm.

So General Manager Henry Davis went to a war surplus store, bought 40 gas masks, war goggles, and told the riders to carry on.

JAYWALKER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sixty-year-old Mrs. Gussie Adelman, who went to jail in handcuffs rather than sign a misdemeanor jaywalking ticket, was free on bail today.

"I didn't do anything so why should I sign anything," said Mrs. Adelman when booked Tuesday night at city jail on a charge of resisting arrest. She posted $25 bond and pleaded innocent to jaywalking and resisting arrest. Judge Robert Clifton set Oct. 7 for her jury trial.

Livestock Show Plans Made In SF

With the approach of the October 1 deadline for entries, the livestock division of the Grand National livestock exposition, horse show and rodeo is looking forward to one of its greatest presentations in years. It was announced by Porter Seanson, president.

The Grand National, combination of one of the nation's premier "Big Six" livestock exhibitions, "Big Division" national horse show, world championship rodeo and internationally famous arena acts, will be held at the San Francisco Cow Palace October 28 to November 6.

Highlight of the livestock division, in which total premiums of $88,235 are being offered, will be the National Hereford Show and Sale, only register of merit show in California, which is returning to the Cow Palace with early entries already past the 100 mark.

Total premiums for the livestock division this year amount to $88,235 divided as follows: $46,567 for beef cattle; $23,800 for dairy cattle; $9,622 for swine and $8,246 for sheep.

Plastic Homes Predicted

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Someday you may have a home made mainly of air and plastic, whipped together like a cake right at the building site.

The walls, floors and roof would be made of foamed plastic, full of little air bubbles, giving good insulation at low heating cost.

Inside you could take the bare frames for furniture and upholster them with soft, fluffy plastic material which you sprayed on by yourself.

Predictions of this home of tomorrow came today from Miss Betty Lou Raskin, research associate of the Johns Hopkins University radiation laboratory, in describing present and future marvels from foamed plastics.

Most foamed plastics are familiar plastics chemically treated to expand so they contain thousands of either closed or open cells, or both. The process is the same as whipping up a cake.

They can be made as fluffy as cotton or as rigid as wood and are lighter, cheaper, easier to install and more applicable, Miss Raskin told the American Chemical Society.

Other types can give you longer-wearing shoe soles and heels, resilient plastic floors, sterilizable stuffed toys, and hundreds of other new products. Some are fire-resistant, others resist acids or sunlight or fungus, others stay supple at arctic temperatures.

Big Crowds Attend Annual Weed Italian Carnivale

WEED—Thousands of spectators lined the main street of Weed Sunday to view the biggest parade ever staged for the Weed Italian Carnivale sponsored annually by the Weed Chamber of Commerce.

Over 30 entries including individuals, couples, floats, marching units, mounted units, accordion bands, special features and commercials participated in the parade.

The decorated float entered by the National Association for Advancement of Colored People won the grand prize of the parade. Other first place entries in their divisions were Weed Business and Professional Women's Club, best decorated auto; Siskiyou Wonder Land Accordion Band; three marching units of Weed twirlers; Gazelle Horsemen, best mounted division; Glena Maxwell and daughter Virginia, Gazelle, best mounted pair; Weed Rodmen and Pocombs, best colored marching unit; Keith Moon, Klamath Falls, mounted on his famous Palomino and James Emmons, his partner mounted on a white horse, best special feature.

Nicky Schenberger won the children's parade yesterday with a decorated bicycle. Linda and Linda Dawson and Patty Parker placed second. Mark Barnum riding on a canopy decorated bicycle won third.

Eugene Belcastro and Ray Smith each caught a greased pig in the two pig scrambles.

The Knights of Columbus team won first prize in the men's tug of war contest Sunday afternoon. Winner of the amateur talent contest Sunday night was Janis Sinsbury, hula dancer. Second place went to Terry Huntington, Karen Coptisky and Marcia Day, dancing trio from the Davidson Studio, Mount Shasta; and third to Janet Mazzi, dancing routines.

June Solus, Weed, won the queen of the Italian Carnivale contest over three other entries. Emelie Inconnis, McCloud; Olivia Walters, Dunsmuir, and Susan Potter, Yreka.

Lewis Luzzi, of Macdoel will reign as King of Spaghetti at the 1956 Weed Italian Carnivale. He gained the title after defeating eight other contestants Sunday night in the annual spaghetti eating contest.

Ike Prepares For Weekend

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower looked forward to the arrival late today of a group of golf and bridge-playing pals invited to his vacation headquarters for a long weekend of relaxation.

Most of the guests are top business executives from the East with whom the President takes it easy when he visits the Augusta National Golf Club in Georgia.

But two of them are newcomers to the Eisenhower circle. They are Francis Quimet of Wellesley Hills, Mass., 1913 winner of the National Open Golf Tournament, and Charles R. Yates, former British Amateur champion who now is in the textile business in Atlanta, Ga.

The President's guests will remain in Denver through Sunday, golfing with him at Cherry Hills Country Club and playing bridge in the Presidential Suite of the Brown Palace Hotel.

Eisenhower will take time out early tomorrow morning to receive a first-hand report from Harold E. Stassen on the United Nations disarmament talks in New York. Monday morning he will leave for five days of trout fishing in the Rockies.

Robert Butler Dies In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Robert Butler, business executive and first United States ambassador to Australia, died today in New York Hospital after a brief illness. He was 58.

Butler, who had suffered from a heart condition, became ill suddenly after his return here Tuesday aboard the liner United States after a three-week vacation trip to Europe.

For many years he had been active in the construction and shipbuilding business in Minnesota. His home was on Stonehome Peninsula, White Bear Lake, Minn.

Butler, born in St. Louis, was appointed ambassador to Australia by President Truman in 1946 and served in that post until 1948, when he was named ambassador to Cuba, where he served 2½ years. He was a Democrat.

Medics

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Qualified Negro doctors of medicine are now eligible to join the Harris County Medical Society. The group voted last night to delete the word "white" from its membership qualifications.
