... FOR INDIAN SUMMER ...

If a clerk in a store is helpful about showing you merchandise that you later go back to buy, it is considerable to ask for the same clerk so that he can benefit from the sale.

When you are "just looking," ask the clerk's name or take one of his cards when you leave the store.

of new automatic washing machines and they're in at J. W. Kerns, 734 South Sixth. The washer and dryer are in the same price brackets as all automatic washers and dryers, but oh, what you get for your money! The washer has a fiber glass tub, which is the largest of any automatic washer on the market. There is no beating or shredding of clothes—the scrubbing action is that of the old-fashioned washwoman—up and down on the board! The action is so gentle it cannot tear buttons off clothing, and a piece of paper towel put through the cycle wasn't even torn. Clothes never get "balled" up in Apex, since it automatically balances the load, and has a unique fluff action. Nice for momma—there is no mechanical failure on this machine since there are no gears or transmission to fail and it never needs oiling. Nice for poppa—fifty dollars will be given in trade for the Apex on any old washer regardless of its condition and it may be tried at home with no obligation.

week begins October 6. What better way to begin it than for all the wives to send out heavy clothing, blankets and bedding to Howard's Cleaners! Some good advice is given away at this plant, 225 East Main; don't put away summer clothing until it's clean. Those nasty little moths like dirt and it's the soiled spots they go after. Howard and Kitty give personalized service to their customers, too, such as taking off all cleaner's tags before clothing is returned, and putting formal and sweaters in plastic bags at no extra charge. Martha advises you to bundle up your cleaning, call 9669, and leave the work to the washable wool and nylon jackets and skirts at the Bon Bazaar will have you raving—with delight. These are "Wool o' the West" garments, made by the Portland Woolen Mills, in plaids and plain colors to mix or match. One handsome jacket is of black, cocoa, beige and white plaid, a combination of colors favored this season. A matching skirt, or one to coordinate in solid color, of black, cocoa or beige, may be worn with it. Jackets have convertible necklines. Cuffed sleeves are fastened with smoky pearl buttons which also appear at the center front to close the jackets. They may be worn belted or loose and are priced at 12.95. The word from Corvallis and Eugene is that co-eds are wearing sport jackets belted this year. But absolutely all the belts are tiny; flat or cord-like. Skirts at the Bon are mostly slender-lined in this group, though some have clusters of plaids. They close at the side and range in price from 9.95 to 12.95. Remember to shop the Bon at 4489 South Sixth, next to the Oregon Food store.

you've found machine-washable plaid shirts at Hermans Men's Store. There are bright plaids, shadow plaids, light plaids, dark plaids, shepherd's plaids and Tattersails—all in favored fall colors. Levi's new woolen-fabric shirts are 65 per cent wool warm and 15 per cent nylon, strong and kind to the tenderest skin. The material bears the Starforan trademark, which means that it can be washed, repeatedly without loss of original fit. All this for 11.95. Van Heusen, Cooper's and Bud Berma cotton flannel shirts are featured here for 3.95. One group are plaids in the new smoky tones. Some are smart plain colors with contrasting border print across the chest. Van Heusen calls his sport shirts in flannel-like cloth, "Alpine co-ords," and the material is a wonder-weave in softness. All sizes for teenagers and men are on hand now at 826 Main.

is "Jazz," the vibrant new lipstick by Helena Rubinstein, just arrived at Currin's beauty bar in the drug store at Ninth and Main. A versatile red, with glowing lights of both orange and blue, it blends perfectly with the season's colors. To prove this an entire section of advertising in the current "Vogue" magazine is devoted to "Jazz" and coordinating fashions. Any gal would be happily "gone" on this new color, and to introduce it to Klamath Falls, Currin's has a nifty combo that's economical, too. The new "Jazz" lipstick in a golden case plus one of your own favorite Rubinstein lipstick shades in red, and a jazz record, make up the combo being offered for two dollars. Records are 45 RPM by such famous Columbia recording artists as Dave Brubeck, Turk Murphy, Pete Rugolo and Eddie Condon. Price is plus tax, of course. they feel so good and look so elegant—those coats at La-Pointe's where the season is at its peak. The long, little line, and previous fibers are featured here where prices range from 19.95 to 150 dollars. Sumptuous plush with rolled Bon collar, push-up sleeves and three-button closing, as featured in "Seventeen," can be had in spruce, bittersweet, American beauty, rosewood or oxford gray for only 34.95. A combination of eighty per cent wool, ten per cent cotton and ten per cent cashmere makes this luxurious fabric. A softly feminine material of eighty per cent wool and twenty per cent cashmere may be seen in a group of coats at 32.95. One "stunner" of red has hand-picked seam trim. Camel's hair and super-soft cashmere coats in fifteen different shades may be had for eighty-eight dollars. Tibetan camel's hair and Eniger 100-percent cashmeres are available here, as well as other famous brand names. Without a doubt, they have the coat for you at 507 Main. "It's a wonderful store."

The Model Shoe Store has a new fall supply of moccasins, of genuine leather hand-laced by Guild. These "white traders" at 717 Main have bright, beaded decoration stitched on the toes of their moccasins. It was the white trader of long ago who introduced to the Indians the colored glass beads which have supplemented porcupine quills as ornamentation for their beautiful and beautiful footwear. Charcoal is the new moccasin shade this fall, and the popular white and natural are in stock as well. The two-piece, soft-soled moccasins with a cushion insole are 3.95. Those with long-lasting hard sole and wedge heel are 4.95. Women's sizes from four and a half to nine, in widths, are available. Leather drawstring bags for 3.95 and clutch purses for three dollars, as well as little canoe-shaped zipper purses for 1.95, all to match the moccasins, are at
