NEW YORK (AP)—Patrick (Paddy) Keough, the base-ball-wise businessman from St. Louis, has answered the $16,000 question on the CBS giveaway show "The $64,000 Question."

He made the grade by stating that 1. It was the Cleveland Indians who ended Yankee Joe DiMaggio's record 56-game hitting streak; 2. Al Smith was the starting pitcher; 3. Jim Bagby Jr. was the relief pitcher who continued to hold DiMaggio hitless.

Master of ceremonies Hal March gave Keough some help last night, apparently inadvertently.

Heating on the relief pitcher angle, Keough said "I've got it in my head but I can't think of it." March broke in with: "The starting pitcher was Al Smith, and he was relieved by Jim B—"

March then turned to the audience and said: "That's a hint that was my fault."

Keough then named Jim Bagby Jr.

GOOD MEN ARE not hard to find among handicapped workers according to Glenn D. Bowen, (right) manager of the Oregon Water Corporation. He is shown with one of his employes, Harvey J. Brannan, who suffered a serious war injury. Klamath Falls, with the rest of the nation, is observing National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week. Like the water corporation, many business organizations employ physically handicapped persons in this area and find them highly efficient.

Dean Described As Lonely, Unhappy Boy Without Love

By ALINE MOSBY
United Press Hollywood Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UP)—What was Jimmy Dean really like? One of his closest friends described him today as a lonely, unhappy boy who never got what he really wanted out of life—love.

James Dean, star of "East of Eden," has been an enigma in Hollywood. But an insurance agent who was the star's constant companion, Lou Bracker, told what he thinks is the first "true" story about Jimmy.

I sat with Lou at the home of photographer Sanford Roth, another close friend of the actor's who was driving behind Jimmy when he met death in an auto collision on a lonely highway Friday night. Lou talked for hours about his friends.

Jimmy died, he said, "Without ever getting what he really wanted, love and marriage."

The only girl Dean really loved, according to Lou, was beautiful Pier Angeli. Jimmy was broken-hearted when Pier suddenly announced her engagement to Vic Damone.

Even now, in Dean's modest house in the San Fernando Valley, a photograph of Pier sits on his desk.

"I just wish somebody would print the truth about Jimmy—nobody ever did," Bracker said.

"He was the loneliest man in the world. He wanted a wife and children, and he used to talk about how important it is to be married to a woman who is understanding. He could be a lonely man in a room full of people."

"He was so misunderstood. People thought he was a non-conformist. But it wasn't that. He couldn't open a conversation, he didn't know how. He stayed away from night clubs. He thought they were false and he was shy; he didn't want to be in the public eye."

Jimmy often "went into a shell, but it was not in rebellion, it was self-defense," Bracker went on.

"He'd been hurt a lot," he said. Jimmy's unhappiness took him to a psychoanalyst. The young actor's mother had died when he was eight, and an aunt and uncle virtually reared him.

Burlesque House Closes In Japan

TOKYO (AP)—Another Tokyo burlesque house is going legit.

France-zu announced that next Monday it will abandon nudity—in Japan, strip-tease is all strip and no tease—for original light comedy.

It's the 13th burlesque house to fold since the end of the Korean War.

Today there are only three burlesque houses still operating in Tokyo's famed Asakusa fleshpot area and two downtown. Ninety unclad beauties are displaying their physical assets where once there were more than a thousand.

SPANKING COVICTION

DETROIT (AP)—An all-woman jury last night convicted Mrs. Rosemary Jacques, 31, wife of a Detroit policeman, of manslaughter in the fatal spanking of her 6-year-old foster son Robert Szabo after the boy wet his pants. She will be sentenced Oct. 15. Maximum penalty is 15 years.
