

PARTY AND DRESS SHOES with delicate leather welts are the latest inspiration to come from the work benches of Europe's foremost coutoure designers whose Fall designs have just arrived in this country. The welt—actually the backbone of the shoe—is the narrow strip of leather which holds upper and sole firmly together and prevents the shoe from being twisted out of shape. FALL SHOES

Pierre Balmain of Paris is the creator of the delicately grained slans pump in mustard gold, shown at the left in the accompanying photograph. Worn with fine dressmaker suits, the shoe is welted with narrow extension sole and a mid-heel of stacked leather.

leathers, both smooth and buffed, specially favored in the modish closed-up shoes for fall daytime wear. Many of the closed-type afternoon pumps also feature textured suede leathers buffed to a velvety finish, as well as the new sculptured suedes which are becoming increasingly popular.

For after-five wear, a favorite is a back or off-back crushed grain leather opera pump, so finely veined that it has a hand-rubbed look; it is treated with a new finishing process that gives it an inky black shimmer.

In the evening and formal group, many of them with the "vanishing back" glittering gold has returned in a form—no longer the gold leaf effect, but finely grained for a soft, brocaded effect. The popular mule-type sandal is done in gold kid too, and also in lustered and pearlized leathers, metallic finishes, including bronze and silver, and in the new matte-finished patents. The same leathers are seen in the stripping sandal with the new diagonal cut—just one artful strap crosses the instep and turns around the heel, giving maximum fit with minimum coverage.

The Oriental influence is strong, too, this fall in both mule-type sandals and back-less pumps, with beautiful screened print leathers that feature the delicate floral motifs of Japanese and Chinese artists.

FABRIC is the fashion story of this Sanforlan wool jumper with the well-bred air which will prove so versatile in any wardrobe. Lovely woven plaid in subtle shades of purple, green or brown with black has a nubby texture that is unusually attractive. Georgia Kay completes the covered-up look with a high-slated neckline, so jumper is especially suitable for wear with jewelry. It's washable wool, of course.

Fuzz-less Cotton Ideal for Nursery

Among the many things that a first-time mother learns along with caring for her tiny immigrant from Stockholm is how to shop wisely and well for the nursery. She soon learns that the tiniest member of the family can also be the costliest unless she knows how to buy the best quality supplies and uses them without waste. It won't take her long to discover, either, that it is economical not only of shelf space but of money, too, not to clutter the nursery shelves with many products that may be used only once and finally thrown away with contents half full. It makes far more sense to buy a multi-purpose preparation that avoids waste. And when that product does a multitude of jobs not only more economically but more efficiently as well, then mamma, wise shopper that she has proved herself to be, can start giving advice to grandma!

Absorbent cotton is one of the supplies that takes the biggest bite out of the nursery budget because it is used so frequently for a great number of things. Since it is important, therefore, both as a necessity and as an expense, mothers will welcome news of a new kind of fuzz-less cotton that is convenient, efficient and economical. This new type of fuzz-less cotton is found exclusively in Coets, the handy quilted cotton squares that speed up so many nursery chores. Through a unique "coet-ized" process, Coets have now been made lintless so that you may use them for applying baby lotions and powder. Moreover, in their new form, Coets have been made lintless so that you may use them for applying baby lotions and powder. Moreover, in their new form, Coets have been made lintless so that you may use them for applying baby lotions and powder.

Versatile for nursery use, Coets make perfect miniature disposable washcloths that wipe away milk-dribbles at mealtime and require no laundering. Puff talcum powder on gently with a Coet instead of kicking up a small storm that gets all over baby, bedclothes and furniture. You'll find that baby oils and lotions last longer if you apply them with a Coet.

for its thirsty cotton drip-proof tissues catch every single drop and drip, applying the cargo just where you want it and not all over your fingers or on the floor. Because you must learn to work in the nursery with one hand (the other is usually busy clutching Junior so he won't roll off his perch) you'll welcome the convenience of these right-sized ready-to-use squares. Coets put an end to the perennial tug of war with a clumsy wad of cotton roll when you usually wind up with a wastefully bigger wad than you actually need.

Yes, charcoal is definitely today's style word in hats. And a flattering color it is, echoing the season's newest shades in suits, shoes and accessories. Notice, too, these other smart features of the Stetson Ivy League: the narrower brim, the subtly tapered crown in balance with today's lean lapel.
