North Church Gets Steeple — BOSTON (AP)—It's official now. The Old North Church has a steeple—a duplicate of the spire from which hung the lantern that sent Paul Revere on his famed ride back in '75.

The new steeple was dedicated formally "to the glory of God" yesterday by Massachusetts Episcopal Bishop Norman B. Nash. The old steeple was blown down Aug. 31, 1954, by Hurricane Carol.

The pew set aside for "the gentlemen of the Bay of Honduras" was occupied for one of the few times since the church's founding in 1740.

The original steeple was built through contributions from Honduran merchants and sea captains and the pew was named in their honor.

The Honduran ambassador to the United States, Gen. Carlos Luaguirre Valladares, sat in the pew for the steeple ceremonies.

Parents Fear Baby Kidnaped

CRANE, Ind. (UP)—The exhausted parents of three-year-old Ronnie Weiskamp prayed today that he is still alive, but leaders of a 1,000-strong search party feared he has been kidnaped or killed.

Ronnie has been missing for four days and searchers scoured the hilly, wooded reservation at the Crane Naval Ammunition Depot for the past 30 hours without finding a trace of him.

The boy's father, Lawrence, said he thought Ronnie had been kidnaped—that "somebody has just driven by and taken him away."

He and his wife asked radio and television stations to issue a plea to the kidnapers to return the tow-headed boy unharmed.

Ronnie vanished shortly before noon Monday while playing near his small home in this village built for depot personnel.

Searchers at first presumed Ronnie wandered away and got lost. They carefully combed a 10 square mile area, dragging shallow creeks and marshes and inspecting wells, but found no trace.

A helicopter whirled over the area but the pilot saw no signs of the boy.

A pack of bloodhounds appeared to pick up a scent, but became confused and lost it.

The bulk of the search was called off at dusk, but Turner said "there are one or two small areas we want to go over a third and fourth time."
