Police Check Kidnap Clues

CRANE, Ind. (AP) — Tips were plentiful but genuine clues were missing Friday in the baffling disappearance of 3-year-old Ronnie Wetkamp. The kidnaping theory appeared more and more likely as searchers combed the last areas within walking distance of his home without finding a trace of the brown-eyed blond little boy who disappeared from play Tuesday.

More than 2,500 marines, sailors and civilians finished searching the area around Crane Naval Ordnance Depot Thursday. Ronnie's father, Lawrence Wetkamp, is employed in the depot's quality control division. Four-year-old Debbie Gallagher, who was playing with Ronnie and other children before he disappeared, said, "Ronnie went off into the sticks."

He failed to answer his mother's call to lunch and was missing only a few minutes before the search was started.

Air Force Probes Hillside Crash

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UP) — Air Force authorities today investigated the hillside crash of a B47 jet bomber in which four airmen were killed.

The crash occurred shortly after the medium bomber took off on an evaluation mission from its home field, March Air Force Base, about 10 miles from here. The plane was flying on instruments in a heavy fog but Air Force spokesmen said the fog was not responsible for the crash last night.

Identification of the victims was withheld pending notification of next of kin. Impact of the bomber and the accompanying explosion shook this city, only a few miles from the crash scene. The plane, which normally carries a three-man crew, smashed into the hillside traveling at about 500 miles per hour, March AFB spokesmen said. It was part of the base's 320th Bombardment Squadron.

Pranksters Switch Rabbit For Deer

LANGELL VALLEY — Mrs. George Fernlund who so excited over killing her first deer Wednesday afternoon that, as soon as it was dressed and hung in the Fernlund barn, she drove to the Kilgore ranch to get her parents to show them the 180-pound buck she had brought down.

By the time she got back, she had gathered a sizable crowd, including neighbors who wanted to see the big kill.

Mrs. Fernlund proudly shoved back the barn door to show the prize, only to find that the only hunting trophy hanging in the barn was a big jack rabbit.

The switch had been pulled by Luther Noble and Martin Giff, Langell Valley pranksters, who had helped her dress and hang the deer.

California Governor Labor's Choice For GOP Nomination

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UP)—If organized labor could select the next Republican presidential candidate, it probably would be Governor Goodwin J. Knight of California. Knight insists his administration is one of "moderation" which rejects "the rigor mortis of the extreme right and the St. Vitus dance of the extreme left."

But there is little doubt the 58-year-old California executive is labor's darling in the West. During the National Governors' Conference in Chicago last summer, Knight was the only one of 46 governors attending who was invited to a meeting of the AFL National Executive Council.

One California labor official who was there said: "In my 25 years as a delegate to the national AFL convention, I have never seen a governor so warmly received—a Republican governor at that!" George Meany, president of the AFL, in a speech in San Diego said "America could use more Governor Knights."

The statement was made publicly at the state AFL convention where 3,000 delegates gave Knight a five-minute standing ovation before he spoke. Knight repeated the tribute after his address. "The myth that labor represents everything in the Democratic Party is exploded," Knight told a Republican rally here Sept. 24. "There are literally thousands of Republicans in the ranks of labor and it is our job to merit their support."

In a Sept. 2 address to the State Chamber of Commerce, Knight repeated what he had told the labor delegates: "I will never use the force of government as a punitive instrument for the benefit of one group and the hurt of another."

Translated into specifics, Knight said he would veto any "right-to-work" legislation. He would not sign any secondary boycott or hot cargo laws that labor found undesirable. He stood for strengthening labor's position in jurisdictional strike laws. And he said he would support legislation to implement any negotiated guaranteed annual wage program.

In another speech Knight said: "It is generally assumed that organized labor will merge memberships during the final months of this year. By this action will be united more than 15 million working men and women of the United States. By this merger laber will become a tremendous political force, since it is estimated that the members of the two organizations along with their families and well wishers will constitute 75 per cent of the entire population of registered voters in the United States."
