

IT DIDN'T TAKE LONG for the people who dumped this pile of rubbish to clutter up a clean area. The "no dumping" sign was erected on February 24 of this year and the garbage was dumped at its foot on February 28. Vandalism of this kind leads not only to a dirty landscape but may extend into a menace to health. —Photo by Bill Canton.

Democratic Senators Deny Special AF Plane Request

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senators McClellan (D-Ark.) and Chavez (D-N.M.) say they have not asked for special government planes to fly them and their wives home from Europe.

And an aide of Sen. Stennis (D-Miss.) said in Washington he knew of no such request by his senator. Stennis himself could not be reached immediately.

All three legislators are members of the Senate Appropriations Committee in Europe on committee business. The Defense Department said yesterday it is sending two big four-engine transport planes to bring them home, at an estimated round-trip cost of $30,000.

Asst. Secretary of Defense Robert T. Ross said the special trips had to be ordered when the senators were reported unable to wait two or three days for government planes due to "regular scheduled missions."

One of the two government planes took off yesterday for Madrid, where it was due to pick up McClellan and Stennis Sunday. The second is slated to leave here Oct. 31 to fetch Chavez.

Reached in Naples, Italy, last night, McClellan said "there is not a word of truth" to the reported request for special service.

"All I know is that I made arrangements to go back on a scheduled aircraft and that is what is going to happen," the senator said. It was not clear whether he meant commercial or scheduled military plane. The plane on its way to Madrid is now deemed "scheduled" at the Pentagon because it has been assigned to pick up the senators.

Chavez, chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee on defense funds, said he is leaving for Madrid today and "my arrangements were made before and they stay as they are. I have requested nothing." He hung up the telephone without answer whether he was traveling by military or commercial plane.

Senatorial aides in Washington said the Air Force had known for weeks the senators would have to return by certain dates to meet home commitments, and therefore could have arranged to bring them home on regular flights.

Ross said the Defense Department "has a duty to provide without question" the transport for members of Congress on official trips. The senators have been on a three-week survey of U.S. defense aid spending in Britain, Spain and Turkey.

Forester Urges Soil Program

PORTLAND—An expanded program of soil classification for all forest lands in the Pacific Northwest was urged here today by Robert F. Tarrant, Pacific N. W. Forest and Range Experiment Station, Portland.

Reporting to the 55th annual session of the Society of American Foresters, Tarrant stated that from work done thus far, it is apparent that more adequate soil information for the wildlands will result in a better job of resource management on all forest and range lands.

Although there remain millions of acres of forest land on which soils have not yet been classified, much progress has been made in the past few years toward learning more about upland soils of the Pacific Northwest, according to Tarrant.

Studies of national forest lands in Washington have shown that volcanic eruptions have influenced approximately 60 per cent of the mountainous area. Of major importance also is the great extent of colluvial deposition which produces a much different soil profile than does true residual development.

The northern part of the Douglas fir region has extensive areas of glacial deposition, both from the continental ice sheet and from local glaciers. This material results in a soil that differs greatly from those developed on massive rocks.

Industrialists See New High Business Activity In 1956

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—Top-ranking industrialists today forecast high-level business activity extending well into 1956 at least.

Several members of the Business Advisory Council, beginning a two-day, closed-door conference here with Secretary of Commerce Weeks, told reporters they expect no economic sinking spell to result from President Eisenhower's illness.

While avoiding quotation on the question, because of its political aspects, most of the industry men interviewed discounted "loss of confidence" as a factor which might produce a setback in business or employment.

Business confidence in the Eisenhower administration, undoubtedly helped business override the mild recession of 1953-54, one corporation president said, "but there's still lots of confidence today."

The head of a major investment house dismissed a reporter's question about the stock market's "blue Mondays" after Eisenhower's heart attack with the reply: "That's just speculation."

Others pointed to major expansions in the auto, atomic, airlines, power and metals industries announced in recent weeks as evidence that confidence in stable economic growth has not been shaken.

Most council members expect an unprecedented Christmas buying season and profess to see no reason for a subsequent letdown, in view of three significant third-

Fish Stocking Almost Done

Only the excess brood stock and holdover steelhead and salmon remain to be planted for the year, it was announced by Reino Koski, liberation chief, Oregon Game Commission.

During the period January 1 to September 1, a total of 11,738,520 fish weighing 535,064 pounds were released from game commission hatcheries.

Approximately three million of these fish were of legal size which became available to the angler immediately upon release. All fish of legal size were planted by the Labor Day weekend, with the heaviest stocking taking place in waters where the fishing pressure was the greatest.

The remaining fish were fingerlings and fry with the major portions allocated for reservoirs and lake basin areas. Approximately 750,000 fry and fingerlings were planted by aerial lift into 350 high lakes in the Cascade Range and the Willows Mountains.

The major portion of the fish reared in game commission hatcheries were eastern brook and rainbow trout. All salmon and steelhead raised were marked and released at migrating size in order to obtain a maximum return of adult fish.

DRUG LABELS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The government is asking drug manufacturers to label aspirin and aspirin compounds with warnings that they should be kept from children's reach, John A. Kedzior, inspector for the Federal Food and Drug Administration, said the agency is asking that labels bear proper warnings within six months. Many poisonings have occurred when children swallowed large quantities of aspirin.

Skid Roads Use Rapped

PORTLAND—Use of larger and better crawler tractors in logging old growth stands has also created problems in soil and forest management, according to E. C. Steimbrenner, Weyerhaeuser Timber Company, Centralia, Washington, and S. P. Gessel, College of Forestry, Seattle, Washington.

Reporting to the 55th annual session of the Society of American Foresters here, the two researchers summarized the results of test studies made on nine 16-acre areas of recent tractor logging.

"General observations indicate a lack of good regeneration on skid roads. Only 30 per cent of the seedlings on the roads were classified as good quality as compared to 63 per cent on the cut-over lands," reported Steimbrenner and Gessel. "Restocking on the skid roads was 23 per cent compared to 43 per cent on the cutovers."

Area extent of the skid roads was found to average 26 per cent of the tractor logged area. An additional 18 per cent of the cutover was found to be non-productive land which included stumps, deep slash and logs.
