

INSPECTING THIS AUTO-RAIL CAR operated by the Great Northern Railway, are Frank B. Kale (left), division engineer and roadmaster, and Ralph H. Hemmesch, Klamath division superintendent. The car, a modified 1955 Buick Special sedan, is equipped with liftable flanged wheels, and may be used either on railway track as shown or, by lifting the small wheels, on the highway like a normal automobile. Officials use it for inspecting the right of way of the division, which extends from Bend to Nubieber, California. The car is one of five rail-autos in use by the G. N., which modified stock model cars at its Dale Street shops in St. Paul, Minnesota. When operated on track, the steering wheel is locked, depending on the track condition. On highways, it is driven at normal driving speed. The car, painted in the same colors as a G. N. diesel locomotive, is equipped with two-way radio. The small wheels are for guiding the car, with power and braking transmitted through the regular tired wheels.

Oregon Farmland Prices Increase

CORVALLIS (AP)—The price of farming land in Oregon is increasing, even though farm income has shown a decline.

The Agricultural Extension Service at Oregon State College notes this is contrary to past trends. But it gives several reasons why land prices should go up when income is down.

For one thing, established farmers are reaching out to make their existing farms larger. Mechanization has made it possible for them to do so profitably—that is, farm larger units at lower cost to themselves. Lending policies by those making loans for land purchases have been fairly liberal.

Favorable crop prospects influenced decisions to buy, and the high level of the national economy encouraged prospective buyers.

Autumn Weather Prevails In U.S.

The Midwest cooled off a little today but fairly pleasant autumn weather prevailed in most of the nation.

There were only a few wet spots. Light rain accompanied the cooler air which moved southeastward across southern Wisconsin and central and northern Lower Michigan. Widely scattered showers were reported in parts of the North Atlantic states, the Central Rockies and central Pacific Coast.

It was below freezing in sections of the Dakotas and Minnesota as the cool air mass spread over the north central region and as far south as Kansas. Temperatures dropped as much as 25 degrees in some areas compared to yesterday morning.

There was a little warming in the Southeast with biggest temperature rises reported in Florida. Readings were around normal in most other parts of the country.
