Pork Chops

Pork chops, as well as all other cuts of pork, are a valuable food from the point of good nutrition. In addition to the high quality protein and minerals they contain, they are a rich source of the important B vitamins.

If you want to serve them plain at their juicy, plump best, broil them slowly. Brown them first in their own or a small amount of added fat. Then cover the pan and let them cook very slowly for 24 minutes to one hour, depending upon the thickness. Use a heavy pan to prevent scorching. Mincemeat apples are a good accompaniment. Wash and core the apples. Fill the cavity of each apple with a tablespoon of mincemeat. Make a syrup of 1 cup sugar and 1 cup water boiled together for five minutes. Pour over apples in baking dish. Bake uncovered in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 1 hour, basting frequently with syrup.

Roast pork is most tempting when slices are cut fairly thin. With a large loin of pork, it is possible to cut two boneless slices between each two ribs. With a small loin, the slices may be thin enough if the cut is made between each pair of ribs. Two slices usually are served to each person.

center-cut loin roast; sirloin and blade loin roasts—cut from the ends of the loin and equally as flavorful as the center cut—usually retailing for several cents a pound under the demanded center cut; tenderloin; crown roast—and "occasion" roast made of rib sections formed into the shape of a crown; Boston butt—section of the pork shoulder; smoked shoulder butt, the boneless "eye" of the Boston butt which is cured and smoked; whole ham; butt and shank halves of ham; thick ham slice; spareribs; shoulder; cushion-style picnic—Boned shoulder with pocket formed for stuffing; Canadian-style bacon — the boneless back strip cured and smoked.

Ideas IN PAINT and WALLPAPER

Highlight With Contrast

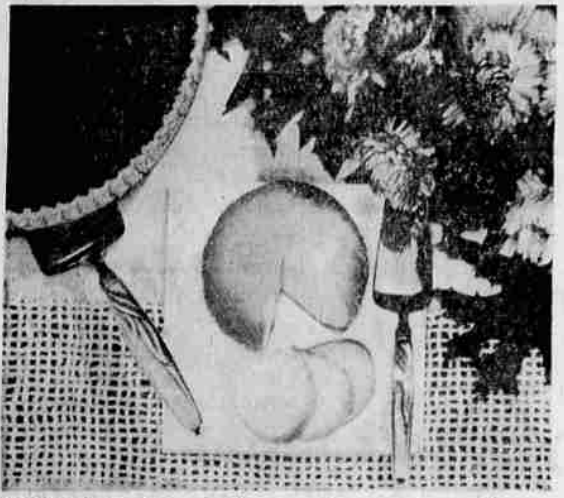

Rooms with plain pointed walls need not be monotonous or severe. They can be made interesting, individual and dramatic — all by the ingenious use of color. One of the most effective ways to introduce interest and variety into a room scheme is with color contrast, either colors in contrast with each other, or with shades of one color—like a pale shade played up against a dark tone of the same color.

This has been done in the accompanying sketch. Nutmeg brown walls have been highlighted by a painted panel several shades of brown lighter than the tone of the walls. Note how the black vertical lines (also painted) give importance to the light panel. Note also that the panel has been painted the exact width of the bed to be a part of the planned setting for the bedroom group.

PUMPKIN PIE and Gouda cheese combine to make a Halloween dessert that is tops in flavor and an appetizing finale to any Autumn dinner. Offer your family or guests a special treat by serving a whole baby Gouda cheese unit on a tile or a wooden cutting board so they may cut a wedge or two to eat with their pumpkin pie—cheese and pie were made for each other. Remove cheese from the refrigerator at least an hour before serving time so that all the fine flavor of the cheese can be enjoyed.

SAUSAGE MAKING

Sausage making is an ancient art. It was known in the days of Confucius and mentioned by the Greek poet, Homer. Through the ages, different countries have made their contributions to the sausage family. When trade with the Orient was opened, new species were brought back to Europe and used in sausage making. Origin of many sausages which may be purchased in this country today is revealed in their name—Bologna, Salami, Frankfurter, Genoa, etc.

gemstone jewelry amethyst, malachite, garnet, rose quartz, tourmaline, aquamarine, topaz! Such precious names sound as if they'd come right out of Ali Baba's cave. But you don't even need to say, "Open, Sesame," to find them, for Rickys Jewelers have new and exciting arrangements in costume jewelry using these and other genuine stones. A line of real stone jewelry has just been purchased at this store at 700 Main. Not one or two gems are used for each piece, but a handful, whether it be for earrings, necklace or bracelet. Mounted in gold-filled (not gold plated) settings these pieces which can become prized possessions forever, start at five dollars an item. This is less than many pieces of so-called costume jewelry, made of lead and brass and colored glass. If you're shopping for the man—or men—in your life, see the big polished gemstones mounted in cuff links at 7.50 to 15 dollars a pair. But don't neglect to shop for yourself at stuff is old stuff to a lot of Klamath Falls women. They have been making it a merry Christmas for members of their families and their friends for years past. The exclusive needlework department at Miller's department store on the first floor has countless ideas for old hands at present-making, and for novices. Petit point earrings, compacts, pins and pill boxes are new by Hiawatha this year. There are also tote bags to be made in needlepoint, of crocheted corde, or a combination of both. Most of these are in gros point, and yarns by both Bear Brand and Hiawatha are featured. Spinnerin has a new dress-pak this year, found at 520 Main, which includes a skirt already knit, and yarn and directions to finish the garment in either one or two-piece style. Colors are turquoise, white wine, poppy, mushroom and twilight. Bernat's famous yarns, in all-wool, nylon and wool and the new tweed wools are available for knitting and crocheting, and practically every kind of pattern book, including "Vogue," is here. Stamped pieces to embroider, and sew are in full supply, and a big stock is on hand of the bulky yarns for quick-knits. You can take care of everyone from baby to grandpa in the needlework department at sounds like a new dessert, and could be! It's one of the Roger's Chocolates specialties carried at Currin's for Drugs. Three flavors of the souffle are included in the round, plastic package—vanilla, rum and fribert. If you're planning a candy-eating binge, Martha recommends this, or any of the ever-fresh Roger's chocolates which may be purchased at the Ninth and Main street store. Made in Seattle, these candies never lay in a warehouse and get stale. They're all hand-dipped, and made with pure butter and cream. The caramels are chewy, not sticky, and the cherry cordials are out of this world. The fondant with which the cordials are made is stored for three months, and the syrup is formed from the sugar used in the fondant. Roger's peanut brittle is packed in a heavy waxed container to keep its buttery goodness intact. It's only 69 cents a pound. Boxes of chocolates from one to five pounds, in various assortments such as all-chocolate-covered nuts; creams, nuts and chews; or all creams, are always fresh at that certain fall fragrance in the air makes one think of glowing coals in the fireplace and corn popping over the embers. Roberts Hardware has corn poppers for sentimentalists like Martha, and two styles of electric poppers, in addition. The electric popcorn poppers have separate little stoves, or burners, but can be used on an electrical element of the stove, also. One kind comes with four serving bowls for the finished product. The fireplace poppers are in two versions—one of wire and one of thin sheet metal. If you run out of treats for the small tricksters on Hallowe'en it only takes a jiffy to pop some corn. You furnish the butter and salt, and are ready with a popcorn maker from 3880 South Sixth.

in the river or leap from the window if you don't win the beautiful new Ford sedan to be given away at Fortune Service station Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. The boys at this friendly station at South Sixth and East Main want you to realize that, naturally, you all can't win. To make you feel better, they announce that a new 1956 Ford sedan of the Fairlane series will be given away Christmas eve to some lucky purchaser of Fortune gasoline. The Fairlane series of cars is the nicest made by Ford. To keep their customers happy, Fortune gives away a new Ford every 60 days. Ten numbers will be drawn Wednesday night. If the holder of the first number drawn is present, she will receive the Ford, then and there. If not, and she doesn't claim the car by the following Wednesday night, November 2, at 8 o'clock, the person who holds the second number drawn will be eligible to receive the car, and so on. Numbers will be posted publicly at the station for the week following the drawing if the car is not claimed Wednesday. It pays to buy the "gasoline that smiles at miles" at

well-dressed?

to be well-dressed means, literally, just that, this season. The heyday of the dress is marked at Bon Bazaar, where prettier dresses include young new party clothes in a wide price range—19.95 to seventy dollars. A black velvet and taffeta for after 5 o'clock with scoop neck and tiny sleeve is the only one of its kind at 4480 South Sixth. Jet beading outlines the deep scallop where the full taffeta skirt is joined to the long-torso velvet top. A bow low in the center of the back adds fillip. The entire dress is lined in pella and a black net ruffled underskirt is built-in. A frock in red and black brocade, braid trimmed, by Peg Palmer features the covered up late-day effect, at only 19.95. Style and softness is achieved in a Kahn velveteen suit in pompon color—a russetly brown shade—at 38.95. The skirt is slim, the jacket long and cuffed. A heavy, corded lace Peter Pan collar is accent. Satin trims the very fine, sheer woolen black dress with jacket which can be worn from morning to midnight, by Nob Hill. This outfit includes skirt, evening top sans sleeves and faultlessly tailored jacket. Look for new importance, new imagination in the dress at

toys to enchant

and educate your child are now on display in the wonderland for young ones at J. W. Kerns. The largest stock of toys ever has just been put on display here at 734 South Sixth. It would be a good idea to look them over and at least lay away your favored items before the advent of the holiday season. It is then that the annual marionette shows, given to the children by Kerns, begin, and Santa Clause makes regular visits. Meeting "Robert the Robot" was an experience for Martha. Robert is a mechanical man operated by remote control and featuring a patented talking device. Quite a little toy for only six dollars! Columns could be written about the dolls above. There are Horsman Sayco, Roberts and Ideal dolls, to name a few well known brands. Wheel toys, all kinds of sets such as chemistry, painting, mechanical drawing, etc.; fishing kits; trappings for a "royal knight"; sets for cooking and serving junior-size meals—these are only a sample of what you can see at the toyland at
