Honeymooners Joke After Facing Survival Ordeal

MIAMI (UP) — A honeymooning couple joked bravely today about their fears of thirst and starvation during a two-day survival ordeal on a tiny reef in the Florida Straits where their small plane had crash-landed.

Joe K. Richards, 32, and his 19-year-old bride, Laura, were plucked from the narrow, barren reef known as North Elbow Cay by the Coast Guard cutter, Ariadne, and brought to Miami Tuesday night.

Richards, an atomic engineer from Portsmouth, Ohio, said although they never lost hope of rescue, the cold nights and scarcity of their food and water made it a "harrowing experience."

Lt. Cmdr. S. P. Berryman, skipper of the Ariadne, said he found them tired, hungry, thirsty and cold after subsisting on mallet biscuits and a four ounce daily water ration.

The couple married Oct. 6 at Wellston, Ohio, crash-landed on the reef Sunday afternoon on a flight to Key West from Havana, Cuba. They were ignited by a search plane Tuesday.

"I had often told my wife I would like to be stranded with her on a deserted island but I hadn't planned on it exactly this way," Richards said when the cutter docked after a nine hour trip to Miami.

Richards, a World War II pilot, said his attractive wife was "wonderful" throughout the experience.

"She stood up better under the circumstances than a lot of men I was in service with," he said.

Mrs. Richards admitted, however, that she felt "pretty terrible" when they became lost and low on fuel after bucking 35-mile per hour winds during the trip over the straits.

"I guess that, and when we came in to land, were our worst moments," she said. "But really, I wasn't too frightened."

After a night's rest in a motel they planned to arrange to return to Ohio immediately, probably by commercial airliner.

Richards said that when he panicked to the wheels - up landing after one trial pass at the island he had only two or three minutes to get the plane into the air.

"I had no idea how he had gotten off course," he said.
