

Utah Authorities Search For Dissident Polygamists

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—Utah authorities, determined to wipe out the practice of polygamy by members of a dissident sect, searched today for two men who left their seven wives and 31 children and fled in an attempt to escape prosecution.

Already jailed in the new campaign was Louis A. Kelsch, 49, a stone mason who has five wives and 31 children in the three apartments and two adjoining cabins of his Salt Lake County farm.

Names of the other two men were not announced publicly by County Attorney Frank Moss, directing the anti-polygamy campaign in Salt Lake County.

Moss said the men—both of whom had been arrested in the last major drive here 11 years ago—apparently had learned of the complaints and had run away.

At the same time it was revealed that the 1955 session of the Utah Legislature had quietly appropriated $20,000 to Attorney General E. R. Callister Jr. to be used for "law enforcement."

Although nothing was said about polygamy in the legislation, it was understood that the fund would be used "to wipe out plural marriage," a practice that was outlawed before Utah became a state.

Members of the fundamentalist sect, to which all known advocates of polygamy belong, claim their strength in Utah to be as great as 20,000 men, women and children.

However, state officials believe there are no more than 5000 adults and their offspring on the rolls of the Fundamentalists.

The sect members purport to follow original teachings of the Mormon faith. However, the recognized church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints forbade the practice of "plural celestial marriage" in 1890.

Kelsch and the other men were charged with unlawful cohabitation—a crime for which Kelsch was convicted in 1944.

He spent 31 months in the Utah State Prison before returning to his quiet life of wife and his brood of offspring. One of the wives, Elsie, has 11 children. Another, Susannah, has nine. Barbara and Eleanor have four each and Leona has three.

Moss said that Kelsch had admitted returning to polygamy upon his release from prison and living with the five women "in alternate nights and string children as fast as he could." The county attorney quoted Kelsch as saying that the divine law which he followed took precedence over Utah state law which bans unlawful cohabitation.

Authorities suggested that some of the suspects might have left Salt Lake Valley and gone toward the Arizona side of the border in a hamlet of Short Creek. Short Creek itself was the scene of a mass raid on July 27, 1953, by Arizona police who arrested 36 men who had 86 wives and 154 children.

Short Creek is also a Fundamentalist center and other units of the sect reportedly are thriving in several Southwestern and Northwestern Utah communities and in Sonora, Mexico, and Cranston, British Columbia.

Methodists Honor Society

CHILQUIN — A 15th year celebration honoring the founding of the Women's Society of Christian Service as a combined group of the former Ladies Aid, Foreign Missionary Society, Home Missionary Society, and other women church groups was held by the Chilquin Methodist group Tuesday evening when it met at the home of Mrs. Gerald Wolf.

A game of thought association, a "Remember When," a short history of the WSCS and a litany of Thanksgiving for group work, all pertaining to the 15th anniversary were led by Mrs. Edmund Stanton.

Mrs. Elmer Heglund, study leader for the year, covered the Indian version of the 19th and 23rd Psalms and the tragedy of Ira Hayes for the lesson on the American Indian, which the group is undertaking.

Mrs. Paul Larson, president, led the business meeting which their reports on the activity calendar which will be published for 1956, the sale of Christmas cards, and the plans for the annual harvest festival and bazaar were discussed.

Mrs. Walter Zimmerman and Mrs. Guy Staiger will be co-chairmen of the festival which will be held November 18 in the Youth Center building.

Church Plans Luther Film

CHILQUIN — The full length movie, "Martin Luther," shown in theaters around the world for two years at advanced prices, will be shown in its entirety at the Chilquin Methodist Church Sunday evening, October 30, at 7 o'clock. The film is being made available on a free will offering basis to a very limited number of Oregon churches at the present time and this is the first Klamath County showing. Everyone is invited to attend this outstanding film.

The movie, which deals with the adult life of Luther, his doctrine of justification by faith, freedom of conscience and authority of the Bible, was filmed in Europe under American sponsorship with a British cast and German technical help.

Several years of intensive research and writing went into the planning for the outstanding movie. The Munich Philharmonic Orchestra provides the background music of "Magne Pater Augustine" and "A Mighty Fortress is Our God," the latter written by Luther. The music of the chants was sung by the Musica Sacra, a lay group associated with the Benedictine order.

Parchman was cleared of the speeding charge.

Harvey Lists Candidates For Oregon's May Primary

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR. SALEM (AP)—While we're thinking about next year's election contest between U. S. Sen. Wayne Morse and whoever the Republican candidate is, let's remember this:

At the primary election May 18, 34 persons will be elected, and nominations will be made for 132 other offices.

This bit of research was done by Dave O'Hara, long-time head of the State Elections Division, for his biennial election handbook. It won't be printed for another three weeks, but he gave us a peak at the proofs.

The candidates have until March 9 to file for the primary. They can file right now, but O'Hara hopes they wait.

In fact, O'Hara said he wishes all candidates would wait until March 10. We don't blame him for having such an attitude, considering all that he has to go through before each election.

At the primary, national committeemen and committeewomen will be elected for each party, as well as 18 Republican and 12 Democratic delegates to national party conventions.

Oregon, having one of the earlier presidential preference primaries, again will be a national testing ground as to which candidates should win presidential nominations.

Nominations will be made for these offices—U. S. Senate, Congress, secretary of state, treasurer, attorney general, Supreme Court, 16 circuit judgeships, 22 district attorney posts, 15 state senate seats, and all 60 state representative positions.

So a log of interesting things will happen besides Sen. Morse's bid for reelection.

The number of possible Republican candidates for Morse's seat is growing. These would-be candidates would run if Gov. Paul Patterson decided not to:

State Sen. John C. F. Merrifield, insurance and investment man, and Lamar Toose, Portland lawyer, have said they would run if Patterson doesn't. Both are Portlanders.

Congressman Sam Coon, Baker, is being boomed by his friends for Morse's seat. And Congressman Walter Norblad, Stayton, long has wanted a Senate seat.

A few weeks ago, Republican leaders were wringing their hands about what they would do if Patterson refused to run. They are more optimistic now that the number of potential candidates is increasing.

Several months ago, the bloom of the Republican Party officials was so thick it could be cut with a knife. They were still shell-shocked over the victory of Richard L. Neuberger, who ousted Republican Sen. Guy Gordon.

While they realize they have a hard fight against Morse, they are not disheartened any more.

Some hard-fought campaigns are expected for the three state offices on the ballot.

Secretary of State Earl T. Newberry is ineligible to run for a third term, so that race is wide open. State Sen. Mark Hatfield, Salem, a university professor and a staunch Eisenhower supporter from 'way back, probably will seek the Republican nomination. Multnomah County Sheriff Terry Schunk looms as a Democratic prospect.

State Treasurer Sir Unander is expected to seek Republican renomination, while a lot of Democrats seem to want State Rep. Alf Corbett, Portland, to run against him.

Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton, first Democrat ever elected to his office, probably will seek a second term.

Some big guns in the State Senate are trained on him, with Re-

CofC Prepares Hawaii Tour

There is a limited number of seats still available on the Hawaiian Friendship air tour being sponsored by the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce. Walt McIntyre of McIntyre Travel Service, who is handling the arrangements, announced today.

The air tour is scheduled to leave Klamath Falls on the morning of February 6, and the special, chartered airliner will travel direct to Honolulu, arriving in the early evening. The party is due back in Klamath Falls on the afternoon of February 14.

The tour price — $274 plus U.S. tax — includes round trip air transportation and six nights at the Edgewater Hotel near Waikiki Beach, limousine service between airport and town, a native "Luau" or feast, and a number of tours to various points of interest on the islands.

Arrangements have been made for several additional tours at slight extra charge.

The plane to be used on the tour will be a four-engine DC-4 transport operated by Transocean Airlines, an exclusively charter airline, and will have a capacity of 45 passengers.

Reservations, which must be accompanied by a $50 deposit, may be made at McIntyre's Travel Service at the Willard Hotel. McIntyre said that persons desiring to remain in Hawaii longer than the tour may do so without purchasing additional transportation tickets for their return.

Chiloquin School Walks In Parade

CHILOQUIN — The Chiloquin High School drum corps appeared in the Potato Festival parade in Merrill Saturday morning, October 22. The drill team is organized in a different manner this year and eventually will develop into the first music activity in addition to glee club that the Chiloquin High School has had since before World War II. John Heilbronner is the instructor.

Although having only five drums at present, 20 more have been ordered and uniforms are being purchased for the group, composed of both boys and girls in the upper six grades. Five baton twirlers led by Gall Mamerling, precede the group. More than 40 are training for the unit.

The corps appeared publicly for the first time last Friday, between halves of the football game with Bonanza on the Panthers' home field.
