

Timber Policy Hearings Here

PORTLAND (AP) — A Senate Interior subcommittee has revised its schedule of hearings in the Pacific Northwest next month on federal timber sale policies.

Sen. Neuberger (D-Ore) said Wednesday the new schedule calls for sessions at Portland Nov. 21-22, Aberdeen Nov. 26, Seattle Nov. 29-30 and Spokane Dec. 1.

Other scheduled hearings remain unchanged. They are Redding, Calif. Nov. 14; Klamath Falls Nov. 15; Medford Nov. 16; Roseburg Nov. 17 and Eugene Nov. 18.

Neuberger met here Wednesday with William H. Coburn of the Interior Committee staff. Coburn said the hearings will deal with such timber matters as access roads, appraisal practices and inventories.

German Unification Plan Not Helped By Saar Election

By UNITED PRESS

The Allied bid for the reunification of Germany is not likely to be helped by the result of the Saar referendum.

Germany's future is the key issue to be discussed at the Big Four foreign ministers conference which opened today in Geneva.

There is no indication, of course, that Russia is going to change its policy. That policy is to keep Germany divided.

Aside from that, France may be somewhat lukewarm in its support of the United States-British argument for unification.

France hardly can be blamed if it thinks it detects, in the Saar vote and related developments, a sort of "Here we go again" warning against the revival of a powerful, armed Germany.

Saarlanders, their nationalistic spirit whipped up by a former Nazi, rejected the proposal that they accept "European" status by a vote of 67.71 per cent to 32.29 per cent.

The former Nazi is Heinrich Schneider. He has made himself a hero to nationalists throughout Germany.

France must have noted that when Baron Frans Von Papen, master of intrigue, returned to the Saar to vote against the proposed European statute, he was serendipitous.

Papen is the slippery diplomatist who knifed the pre-war German Weimar Republic to help Adolf Hitler get into power.

There is also the fact that Sepp Dietrich, the former commander of Hitler's elite bodyguard — the "Leibstandarte Adolf Hitler" — was released from a United States-governed prison last Saturday.

Dietrich was one of Hitler's pioneer strong armed men. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1946 for the slaying of American prisoners in the Battle of the Bulge, among other crimes.

In France, they are still sentencing German war criminals.

France endured occupation by German Nationalists in World War I and by the German Nazis in World War II. It can not be expected to drag nice distinctions between Nationalists and Nazis.

Finally, there is the fact that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is not making too good a recovery from his recent attack of pneumonia. He will be 80 years old next January 5.

With Germany rearming, France — and the Western world generally — would have grave reason to worry if Adenauer died or was incapacitated.

Papen's brief emergence from obscurity was interesting. Hitler sent him to the Saar in 1934 as a hunchback man, to help build up the Saar's plebiscite vote which resulted in the Saar's return to Germany after it had been under League of Nations administration.

It could be that Papen would like to get back into politics, even though he is 77. He has sounded off a couple of times about his views. He would like to see Germany a rearmament country, "neutral" as between East and West. If that happened, he or men like him would be able to betray either side.
