Klamath Firm Buys Timber

LAKEVIEW — Five emergency timber sales were made last week by the Fremont National Forest with four of the sales covering burned timber from recent forest fires.

Modoc Lumber Company of Klamath Falls was successful bidder on 6,800,000 board feet of ponderosa pine in the Round Butte sale for $52 per thousand plus $2.75 per thousand for tree planting and timber stand improvement.

In the Horse Creek sale, American Forest Products Corporation, only bidder, bought 132,430 board feet of green ponderosa pine at $31.85 per thousand.

After eight bids between Chiloquin Timber Company and Bly Lumber Company, the Bly Lumber Company purchased on a bid of $22 per thousand the 7,100,000 board feet of pine in the Deming Creek sale.

The Dry Prairie fire sale went to the only bidder, Bly Lumber Company, at the appraised price of $6 per thousand on 800,000 board feet of pine, plus $5 for tree planting and timber stand improvement.

Adams Lumber Company was successful bidder for 2,200,000 board feet of ponderosa pine in the Summer Lake Rim salvage timber sale.

John McDonald, Fremont supervisor, states that timber in these five sales is both inside and outside the Lakeview Federal Sustained Yield Unit and was offered on an emergency basis, permitting firms outside the unit to bid.

United Airlines Contracts For Thirty Douglas DC-8s At $175,000,000 Cost

The first contract order by a domestic airline for jet airliners that will revolutionize air travel in this country has been announced by W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, who said the company will spend approximately $175,000,000 for 30 Douglas DC-8s and spare parts. It is the largest jet airliner order yet placed with any single aircraft manufacturer.

Delivery of the 112 to 140 passenger aircraft will begin in May, 1959 and United will inaugurate jet service between principal cities on its 12,350-mile system by November, 1959, Mr. Patterson said.

The swept-wing airliners, designed for transcontinental and Hawaiian service, are the third major addition announced for United's present fleet of 177 planes. Orders placed with the Douglas Aircraft Company last fall and in April of this year call for delivery of five DC-6As, 17 DC-7s and 21 DC-8Bs. These piston-engine planes, costing $64,500,000, will accommodate United's expanding operations until the jets arrive, Patterson said.

The DC-8 will be powered by four Pratt & Whitney J57 engines, each capable of more than 10,000 pounds of thrust. (A pound of thrust is equal to one horsepower at 375 miles an hour.) A thrust-reversing mechanism will shorten landing distances and serve as an additional runway brake.

The J-57 engine, in production since 1953, has seen extensive service on various types of military planes. One J-57 engine costs $145,000.

United has worked with both the aircraft and engine manufacturers toward accomplishing a substantial reduction of external noise under that of the present-type jet engine, Patterson said.

The phenomenal speed of the Douglas DC-8 will excite travelers on a breakfast in New York, take off at a.m. (EST), land in Los Angeles at 11:45 a.m. (PST), leave an hour later for Honolulu and arrive there at 4:25 p.m. (HST). Flight, at cruising speeds ranging from 500 to 575 miles an hour and at altitudes of 30,000 to 40,000 feet, will be smooth, quiet and vibrationless.

"Our decision to be the first domestic airline to contract for jet airliners is based on years of engineering study," Patterson said. "Our choice of the DC-8 was made after meticulous inspection of available types. We are confident that today's move will provide the fastest, most comfortable, most dependable air service ever conceived."

Preparing for jetliners, United's engineers and executives more than five years ago began to consult with aircraft manufacturers in this country and abroad. Facts on airframes and engines were assembled for analysis. Operational studies were made in a year-long "Paper Jet" project started in 1953.

Daily, at San Francisco, dispatchers and meteorologists planned coast-to-coast flights of theoretical jetliners, complete in every detail. More recently, United built a full-scale cabin mockup of a jetliner at its San Francisco maintenance base. The mockup was used for exhaustive studies of seating arrangements and the best location for buffets, lavatories and other installations. This has resulted in added flexibility of the cabin interior so that seating accommodations can be provided for 112 first class on up to 140 coach passengers.

During the last six months, United has assigned a technical and management team to work full time on all aspects of jetliner operations, maintenance and service.

The team has inspected blueprints, factory assembly lines and every conceivable detail associated with the manufacture and operation of the new plane. They anticipate that Newly-engineered pressurization will keep "cabin altitude" at sea level up to an actual altitude of 22,000 feet. At 24,000 feet the cabin atmosphere will be equivalent to only 5,000 feet. Specially developed insulating material will keep the cabin quieter than possible in piston-engine planes. Propeller noise will, of course, be absent.

The plane will have a wing spread of 135 feet, over-all length of 140 1/2 feet, and tail height of 42 1/3 feet. Its gross weight will be 242,500 pounds. Pilot operation of the aircraft will be simplified by new automatic controls and the latest electronic navigation and flight aids. Each aircraft will be equipped with C-band radar.

The Joseph Conger PTA benefit carnival will be held Friday evening, October 28 at 7 p.m. in the school. The program will start at 7:30 and will feature the Conger School band led by Freeman Young.

A string quartet under the direction of Kristian Gippo will play; there will be a Halloween skit given by the fifth grade and numbers by the girls' chorus directed by Jane Craig. There will also be a boys' quartet and ballet numbers by Janice McCormack, Chris Graham and Brenda Wesley. Lorann Dalcour will play a piano solo.

There will be food booths, a "spook house," games, "white elephants," sale and exchange of old dishes, jewelry, records, a country store and lots of prizes.

Parents who wish to listen to the Grants Pass - Klamath Falls football game may use a special radio room.

The public is invited.
