

Western Films Entertain Ike

DENVER (AP)—President Eisenhower found much about which to cheer today as he approached the end of his fifth week of hospitalization from a heart attack.

A whole series of gun-fighting Western movies—he saw his first one yesterday—have been brought to Ft. Salinas Army Hospital for his viewing during the long hours of convalescence.

And every day brings new word of increasing physical activity which doctors say he is taking in stride—a slow stride now of a few steps at a time—but he is every step that he is being increased in number as time goes by.

There was cheering news too in Russia's approval of a Western-sponsored resolution providing for a series of steps for creation of an international atom-for-peace agency.

And from the Big Four foreign ministers conference at Geneva came word that Russia had joined Great Britain and France in approving a message expressing hope for the President's early recovery.

But the news that had everybody excited around the Lowry Air Force Base press room was the word that the President had seen his first movie yesterday.

The President stepped from his bed to a wheelchair in which he was moved into the auditorium. There he stepped from the wheelchair into his favorite easy chair.

The movie, Press Secretary James C. Hagerly said, lasted two hours. It was, he added, "a long movie—and it was a good one."

"Just a plain movie?" asked a reporter. He drew from Hagerly that it was in technicolor and that the President "enjoyed it thoroughly." But Hagerly wouldn't say what it was.

As the President continued work on the rough draft of the State of the Union message he will submit to Congress in January, he kept his calendar free of official callers until the arrival tomorrow of Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

Wide Peaceful A-Use Sought

He entered the Air Force in June, 1954.

NEW YORK (AP)—President Eisenhower says the government wants no monopoly—in fact seeks wide participation—in developing the peaceful potentials of atomic energy.

"There is no monopoly—and we seek no monopoly—in harnessing of the atom for man's benefit," the President said in a message read last night at a meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board.

"Rather we seek to encourage participation in that task," he said. "In particular, we want the maximum participation of American industry."

The President's message was read by Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Eisenhower said the "tools and techniques" of American industry, which have produced the nation's high standard of living, make possible an "immeasurable" return when applied to the field of atomic energy.

"Beyond that," he said, "there are loftier implications of the potential uses of atomic energy. The book of history reflects mankind's unceasing quest for peace. What more effective contribution could be made toward true world peace than the worldwide supplanting of war with plenty?"

The President, looking forward to further cooperation with other nations in the atomic field, said: "The establishment of an international atomic energy agency now seems reasonably assured. Agreements for cooperation in the civil uses of atomic energy have been negotiated with 28 countries and we have made available 200 kilograms of the rare isotope of uranium for use by those friendly countries in research reactors."

Politicos Exaggerate Plight Of Farmers, Benson Says

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson said yesterday politicians are exaggerating the plight of the nation's farmers.

Benson, central figure in the controversy about farm policies, declining farm income, prices of farm produce, and the new pork purchase program, asserted that politicians are deliberately kicking up a storm without cause.

Moose General Visits Klamath

Ralph D. Moore, general governor of the supreme lodge, Mooseheart, Illinois, was present last night at the regular meeting and initiation of new members at Klamath Falls Moose lodge No. 1106.

The Moose official gave a talk to the new members and outlined the progress of Mooseheart, which celebrated its 42nd birthday yesterday, since its founding. The foundation has grown from one building to 147 and now takes care of 1,000 children.

The class initiation and degree work was put on by the degree staff of the Merrill Lodge, State Director Charles S. Skill, Portland, was a visitor. After the meeting, refreshments were served by the women of the Moose.

"The farm program now in operation is the result of a year's study and was adopted on a bipartisan basis," Benson said in an interview with United Press. "A farm program should not serve partisan political purposes."

"Yet a determined effort is underway to paint the picture blacker than it really is."

"Some politicians are not helping farmers much by their comments."

He answered with a grin only when asked if he thought those persons who advocate a return to 90 per cent of parity price supports should shut up. Advocates of 90 per cent of parity say it would jack up farm income.

Criticism of the administration's farm program has been severe. Benson has been pressured by high ranking politicians of both parties, farmers and farm groups in the Midwest, and others to do something about the economic situation of farmers.

An indication of the severity of the pressure was the announcement late Wednesday that Benson had cancelled a trip to Europe. He had planned to leave next month to make a personal on-the-spot study of markets for U.S. surplus commodities in Europe and also was to deliver a speech before the Foods and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations in Rome.

Benson is convinced the farm program is sound.

He is convinced the present flexible support policy is correct and that farmers realize its correctness. He thinks the voters next year will agree to its soundness.

"A price support policy of 90 per cent of parity is a bankrupt program," Benson said. "It never did a good job."

He said high, rigid supports stimulate excessive production, build up huge surpluses, and cause farm commodities to be priced out of the market. Flexible supports, he said, will stop this by bringing production into line with demand.

"We are right about the pork purchase program (announced Monday)," Benson said. "It will offer help to the farmers. The timing was good. It will give good returns for the money spent."

Blaze Injures Ten Firemen

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—One city fireman was killed and 10 others were injured yesterday when an explosion in a burning building ripped out the third floor walls and buried the firemen under tons of debris.

The blast came after those in command declared the fire at the three-story plant of the Silco Lamp Products Co. under control.

Many firemen were either in the building, on the roof or on the street in front of the plant.

When the blast occurred, the front and back walls burst outward, dumping brick, mortar and steel among the firemen. Many escaped injury by leaping behind fire equipment in the street.

Chief George S. Hink said the explosion was caused when the flames reached lacquers and solvents stored on the third floor.

The fireman killed was Arthur Mumbauer.

Cause of the fire and extent of damage were undetermined.
