

Revenue Service Reveals Exam Of 'Tax Free' Firms

WASHINGTON (U.S.)—The Internal Revenue Service is examining "at least the more controversial" cases among more than 32,000 organizations it lists as tax-free.

This was learned today from an informed source in contact with revenue service headquarters.

Revenue service officials and their Treasury superiors said they could not discuss the matter at this time.

However, it was learned tax officials are giving increasing consideration to the question of what yardstick to apply to an organization with possible political interests when it asks for tax-exempt status.

Whether this will result in wholesale review of all past exemptions is not yet decided, according to available information.

Meanwhile, it also was reported that the Justice Department has told the Treasury it should get authority from Congress before carrying out a long-rumored plan to open to public inspection documents filed by organizations to which revenue service grants tax exemption.

The federal government accords tax-free status to religious, educational and charitable organizations.

A person familiar with the plan said removing the secrecy curtain from tax exemption applications and tax returns of such organizations would show their aims, backers and details of their finances.

The Internal Revenue Service recently revoked tax-free privileges involving two controversial organizations—the American Institute of Pacific Relations and For America.

The IPR was investigated by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee in 1952. Afterward the Senate group said in a report the IPR had been infiltrated by Communists and that its activities had adversely affected the interests of the United States.

This was denied by officials of the IPR, who describe their organization as a nonpartisan institution for scholarly research and discussion of Far Eastern problems.

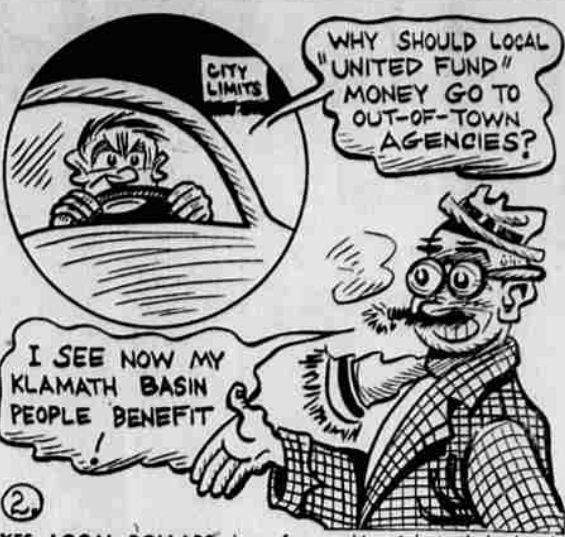

The service also recently denied contributors to For America the right to deduct such contributions for income tax purposes. For America describes itself as a non-profit, nonpolitical and nonpartisan organization dedicated to alerting public opinion to what it considers dangers this country faces.

It is headed by Clarence Manion, former dean of the Notre Dame Law School, and by Gen. Robert E. Wood of Chicago.

Tule Weather Station Built

TULELAKE — A new official weather station has been installed at the Tulelake Field Station which will operate on an exchange of weather conditions between the Klamath Basin and other parts of the state of Oregon.

Local reports will go to the U.S. Weather Bureau office in Portland to be used in a statewide broadcast. During frost periods, daily reports from here will be sent in.

The installation is standard U.S. Weather Bureau equipment with two thermometers and a thermograph.

Arrangements for the station and the reports were made by the field station officials, Burton Hoyle, manager of the field station, Roy Edwards, Tulelake farm adviser and the Tulelake Growers Association.

It got its lightning from the Thunderbird!

The '56 Ford borrowed the Thunderbird's beauty and its Y-8 "GO" to boot!

The beautiful new styling of the '56 Ford makes it a dead ringer for the fabulous Thunderbird. And in power, too, Ford is mighty like the Thunderbird.

Ford's new Thunderbird Y-8 engine, successor to the V-8, is 202-h.p.* strong. Basically, it is the same as the engine that won nationwide fame for alert performance in the Ford Thunderbird.

Its deep, Y-shaped block cuts vibration, to give you a smoother, quieter-running engine that has a longer life expectancy.

Another exciting advance in Ford for '56 is Lifeguard Design. It means added protection against the major causes of injuries in accidents. You're protected by a new deep-center steering wheel, new double-grip door latches, new optional seat belts and safety padding.

Let yourself go—for a thrilling test drive in the Thunderbird-inspired '56 Ford.
