

GAZA STRIP RAID TOLD

Egyptians Driven Back By Israeli

JERUSALEM (AP) — An Israeli military spokesman charged Egyptian troops backed by automatic fire crossed into Israeli territory east of the Gaza Strip Monday.

He said an Israeli unit drove the Egyptians back across the armistice line. No casualties on the Israeli side were reported.

The spokesman said the Egyptian force came over the border in the Nirin area, east of the central sector of the Gaza Strip. At the same time, he said, an Egyptian position opened fire with medium automatic weapons on an Israeli outpost.

Israeli authorities reported late last week that an Egyptian unit mortar and machinegun fire from across the border, tried twice to storm an Israeli position in the Nirin area but failed both times. A report from Gaza, quoted by a U.N. spokesman as saying U.N. investigators had found no evidence to support the complaint, but the Israeli foreign office said the investigation had not even begun.

Earlier Monday Israel claimed Egyptian planes, believed to be Vampire jets, made four sorties over her territory Sunday. A military spokesman said they flew in at various times during the day and were seen over the demilitarized El Aja-Nizana zone and over a settlement east of the Gaza strip.

An Israel Foreign Ministry spokesman declared that up to Monday morning the Egyptians had refused to leave Israeli territory in the El Aja-Nizana zone, and seven U.N. military observers had been refused permission by the Egyptians to investigate their troop concentrations there.

The spokesman welcomed the New York peace appeal of Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, U.N. truce observer and commented "a quiet border situation and peace—that's exactly what we want, too."

The U.N. appeal was made by Gen. Burns and U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld. It warned that either side taking the offensive might cause "the gravest consequences."

The communication was forwarded by U.N. delegations of the two countries to their home capitals. Gen. Burns was in New York for consultations at U.N. headquarters on the situation.

Road Wreck Claims Life

WEED — Rupert M. C. Brown, 35, of Weed, was killed Saturday night about 9 p.m. in an automobile accident five miles south of Weed on Highway 99.

Brown, who was driving an automobile owned by his father, Watson Coleman of Bellingham, Washington, was proceeding southbound when his auto was struck on the left rear side by a northbound truck driven by Wallace B. Schuster, 31, of Weed.

Schuster was attempting to pass another northbound vehicle when he struck Brown's car forcing it off the right side of the highway. Brown's car rolled over five times and he was thrown from the car with resulting fatal injuries. Brown was dead when passing motorists reached him.

Moses Reed, of Weed, a passenger with Brown, was not thrown from the car and was only slightly injured.

Schuster and two unidentified hitchhikers riding with him were not injured. He was not cited by the California State Highway patrol.

Brown is survived by his wife, Hazel, of Weed and numerous relatives. Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Church of God in Christ with Up-ton's Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Pacific Northwest Wheat Growers Ask For Change To Expand Their Markets

By OVID MARTIN Associated Press Farm Writer FENDLETON (AP) — Spokesmen for wheat growers in the Pacific Northwest appealed Monday for a change to expand their markets at home and abroad.

They declared that present federal farm programs are pulling down income and driving producers from the land because of an inadequate sales program, restrictions on production and reduced prices.

In a statement prepared for a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing, A. Lars Nelson, master of the Washington State Grange, called for a multiple price plan for wheat. Under such a plan, wheat grown for domestic consumption would be supported at full parity prices. The domestic market would be apportioned among growers. But they would be free to produce additional wheat for export and for sale at home at whatever prices they could get.

In a similar statement, Jack L. Smith, farmer of Gilliam County, Ore., representing the Oregon Wheat Growers League, said such a program would increase use of wheat for feed from 100 million to 250 million bushels a year. Such an increase would allow an expansion of from 10 to 30 per cent in present wheat production levels.

Nelson, who also spoke for the Oregon Grange, said the multiple price plan is favored by dairymen, poultrymen, livestock producers, and fruit raisers, as well as grain producers.

Criticizing the Eisenhower administration flexible support program, the grange leader declared, "We want 90 per cent of parity for all-out production if we can't get the multiple price plan."

"We need action, not promises, not some political stopgap solutions to our many ills, but a basic adjustment carefully tailored into a program which will give agriculture equal parity in the market place," Nelson said.

Ben Johnson, farmer-lawyer of Preston, Idaho, criticized provisions of a present farm law authorizing a shift to a so-called modernized parity price formula.

Explaining he did not wish to pre-judge results of the hearings, which also will be taken in the Northwest, the South and the Northeast—Ellender said that one thing stands out from last week's hearings and that is "that neither flexible nor rigid price supports, in themselves, will solve the farm problem."

He said the Midwest hearings showed that "we must find a way to dispose of surpluses to the point where they will not depress our market."

"The evidence further shows that our producing acreage must be reduced so as not to further aggravate our surpluses," he suggested payments by the government to farmers for land made idle.

The chairman referred to plans of the Farmers Union for 100 per cent of parity price supports, but said that no one gave the committee a "useable formula" for supports at that level.

Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to the farmer in relation to prices he must pay.

The hearing was expected to bring recommendations for a two-price system for wheat. Under such a system—which has been advocated by the national grange, which is strong in the Pacific Northwest—wheat grown for domestic food consumption would be supported at full parity.

BILL CUNNINGHAM of Cunningham and Rickey Motors looks at his safe, which was relieved of about $100 by thieves during the weekend in one of two auto sales firm burglaries reported today by Klamath Falls police. The other firm, Basin Motors, lost some auto parts, and various coin vending machines at both establishments were broken into, police said. Approximately $10 was taken from Cunningham and Rickey vending machines and about $67 was taken from the machines at Basin Motors. No estimate was made on the value of the parts taken. Investigating Officer Walter Conrady said that both establishments were entered by breaking a window on the side of the building.

Cool Canadian Air Moves On Pacific Northwest Area

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A cool mass of Canadian air moved into the Pacific Northwest over the weekend and brought temperatures to the lowest reading of the season in many areas early Monday.

An exceptionally cold blast of air spilled over the Rocky Mountains into the Inland Empire and sent the mercury to 21 above at Harrington, Wash., and Omak, Wash. A reading of 29 above was recorded at Salmon, Idaho, and it was 24 at Burns, Ore., 25 at Colville, Wash., 20 at Spokane and Yakima and 27 at Boise.

It was not so chilly along the West Coast, with Seattle managing a reading of 40 above and Portland enjoying a 42-degree reading.

Snow was general in north central Idaho, with a heavy fall reported between Plummer and Moscow and the Nes Perce and Camas Prairies both covered with the white stuff.

Mullan, Idaho, near the Montana border, reported 15 inches of snow and Stampede Pass, where the Northern Pacific crosses the Cascades, had 13 inches of snow.

"There is more cold weather in sight for tonight and tomorrow," the weatherman said.

US May Ease Passport Rule To Allow Travel In Russia

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER GENEVA (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles announced Monday the United States is acting to eliminate passport restrictions for Americans traveling in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

He urged Russia also to lower barriers to the knowledge that Russians and Americans "never fought each other" and have a solid basis for good will.

Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay made a concerted plea to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov in the Big Four session to help break down barriers between east and west.

Dulles specifically noted that free exchanges are now blocked by Russia's "all-embracing censorship of press and radio" and by the jamming of broadcasts such as the Voice of America.

To show willingness on the part of the West to make some concrete moves to break down the walls, Dulles said the United States is acting now on passport restrictions.

"Hereafter, American passports will be valid for the Soviet Union and all the countries of Eastern Europe with which the United States maintains relations," Dulles told the conference.

These restrictions were originally imposed "due to lack of adequate protection afforded to Ameri-

First Class, Air Mail On Top Of List

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH DENVER (AP) — President Eisenhower Monday approved plans of Postmaster General Summerfield to ask Congress again next January for increased postage rates to wipe out a deficit running at the rate of half-a-billion dollars a year.

Summerfield told reporters that the President may ask for an increase in the first class postage rate from 3 to 4 cents an ounce and in the air mail rate from 8 to 7 cents, but that final details and definite rate increases have not yet been worked out.

Summerfield, the former Republican national committee chairman and Eisenhower campaign manager in 1952, said he talked no politics with the President during their 30-minute conference at Eisenhower's Army Hospital and that he considered any such discussion at this time would be "most inappropriate."

Summerfield called on Eisenhower after the 66-year-old President's doctors reported his most extended period of walking since he suffered his heart attack Sept. 24. In another milestone in his progress toward recovery, the doctors omitted for the first time in his 18:30 a.m. (MST) medical bulletin any reference to his making progress "without complications."

White House News Secretary James C. Hagerly said that there have been no complications for such an extended period that the doctors see no reason to continue reference to their absence in the regular bulletins.

Over the weekend the President gave his full support to embattled Secretary of Agriculture Benson. Political observers took this as an indication that Benson would defend administration policies during the next campaign whether he is a candidate or not.

Don't Worry, It's Normal For You To Worry

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — A Beverly Hills psychiatrist says you may be crazy if you don't worry.

Dr. Judd Marmor told a meeting of psychiatrists yesterday that "realistic worry is the mark of a healthy mind."

"Contrary to the theme of popular writings on the subject which advocate elimination of worry, psychiatrists know that on that pathway lies madness," Marmor discussed the subject of worry before the first western divisional meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, which ended a four-day meeting yesterday.

"A realistic worry," he said, must have some solid basis in fact and result in "realistic action" — either physical or mental. He said it differs from anxiety, which is an emotional rather than an intellectual response.

In The Day's News

World problems stuff: Our Secretary Dulles tells the Big Four foreign ministers conference this morning that the U.S. is acting to eliminate passport restrictions for Americans traveling in the Soviet Union and in Eastern Europe.

He urged Russia to lower barriers similarly against mutual travel in the knowledge that RUSSIANS AND AMERICANS NEVER HAVE FOUGHT EACH OTHER and have a solid basis for good will.

What Dulles says is true. Russians and Americans never have fought each other.

In several difficult situations while we were growing up from 13 struggling little states into a great nation Russia has given us help that was as effective as the help France gave us during our Revolutionary war.

If left to themselves, the American people and the Russian people NEVER WOULD FIGHT EACH OTHER.

What Dulles meant — but left unsaid because it would ruffle the feathers of the Kremlin crowd the wrong way — is that the threat of war between our two countries is made real by the COMMUNIST OVERLORDS of Russia.

The purpose of Russia's communist overlords is to make this a COMMUNIST WORLD. Free America will never submit to such a fate.

We'll die fighting first.

Our problem is to keep the shooting from starting. If we can, until the inevitable time comes when the foul institution of communism will fall of the weight of its own foulness — as Peronism seems to have fallen in Argentina.

Economy problems stuff: President Eisenhower has approved plans to ask congress again next January for increased postal rates.

The President gave his approval to the plans of Postmaster General Summerfield, who wants to wipe out a postal deficit that amounts to about a half billion dollars per year.

How do YOU feel about it? I presume it depends on whether you'd rather pay your share of the deficit out of your stamp pocket or out of your tax pocket.

It will have to be done one way or the other.

There are no magic wands.

Charles Shuman, head of the American Farm Bureau Federation, says today in a speech in Chicago that development of CONSUMER markets is the answer to the problem of falling farm prices. Government price support, he said, is NOT the answer.

He added: "Farmers are presently concerned about the low prices of hogs."

"But — "What we must avoid are government price policies that PREVENT normal economic adjustment."

Again, as in the case of Dulles, we must explain what he means. He is referring to the hog price situation of a year or more ago. Hog prices then were high.

So — Hog farmers rushed in to RAISE MORE PIGS so as to take advantage of the high price of pork. They raised so MANY pigs that they broke the market. Because of oversupply, hog prices are now too low.

This is the point: If the government buys up the surplus hogs TO KEEP PRICES HIGH, the hog farmers will go on raising too many pigs every year. The result of that will be a permanent surplus of pork to fill the government warehouses to the bursting point and hang like a dark thundercloud over the hog markets of the future.

That's the long and the short of it.

Crater Lake Gets Snowfall

Snow has been falling in Crater Lake National Park for the last 18 hours, according to the ranger station. There was a total of nine inches on the ground this morning and it was still snowing hard at 11 a.m. today.

The snowstorm followed rain which fell all day Saturday. Maximum temperature Sunday was 28 degrees; minimum last night was 18 and the temperature was 22 degrees at 8 a.m. today.

Annie Springs Road is open to the rim with chains or abrasive snow tread tires required. Highway 62 is open with chains or snow tires advised.

Despite the storm, 38 cars visited the park Sunday bringing 106 persons. At least another foot and a half of snow is needed for skiing, the rangers said.

The warming hut is still open daily.

Brunette Still On Stand In Husband Murder Trial

McMINNVILLE (AP) — A trim 34-year-old brunette, accused of plotting the automobile bomb death of her attorney husband, resumed her testimony here Monday at her first degree murder trial.

Mrs. Marjorie Smith, an attractive Portland housewife, faces death in the gas chamber should she be found guilty.

Her husband, Kermit Smith, was killed outright April 21 when a dynamite bomb exploded in his car as he touched the starter.

Victor Laurence Wolf, a 45-year-old electrician and handyman, has confessed that he wired the bomb.

Wolf, the chief prosecution witness, testified last week that he committed the slaying at Mrs. Smith's urging. He said she had planned the crime to get Smith's money and that she and Wolf were planning to start life anew in Alaska after the husband had been killed.

Mrs. Smith has denied all Wolf's allegations as to her part in the slaying. Her attorney said Wolf is an "unfortunate person who apparently dreamed Mrs. Smith wanted to have her husband done away with."

The widow, who has worn black clothing and clutched a pair of white gloves throughout the trial, was shaken last week as Wolf calmly outlined what he said was her role in the case.

-BULLETIN-

LONDON (UP) — A royal announcement said tonight that Princess Margaret will not wed 1st Lt. Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

The announcement came from Elizabeth House, the official residence of the Princess and Queen Mother Elizabeth.

It ended two and a half years of speculation which rose to fever pitch after the Princess' 25th birthday in August and Townsend's return from "exile" since Oct. 1 and his marriage to a Miss de la Roche in Brussels early this month.

The announcement meant that Margaret gave up Townsend for duty.

In an unprecedented personal statement, Margaret said: "I would like it to be known that I have decided not to marry Group Captain Peter Townsend."

She was nervous as she began her testimony last Friday and she broke into tears as she told of events leading up to her husband's death.

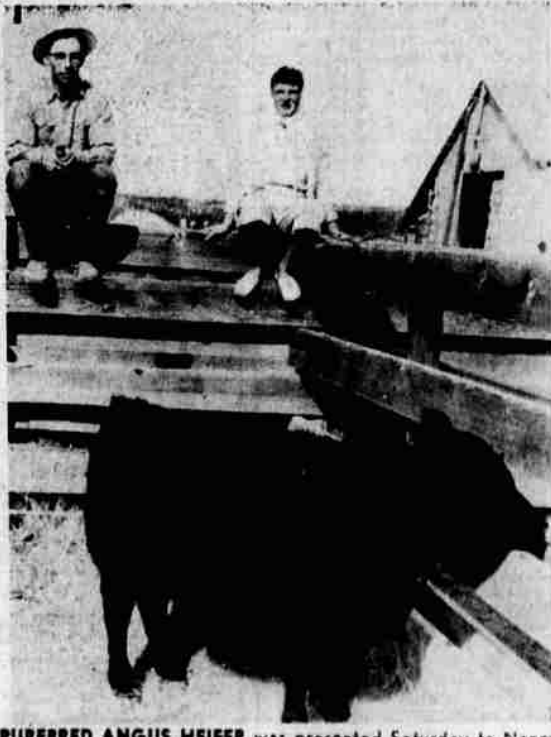

But her confidence returned as she told the jury of nine men and three women of the early years of her life.

She spoke of her childhood at Crockett, Calif., of being a student at Episcopal schools at Tacoma, Wash., and Portland, and of her high school and college training in Portland.

She described a varied business career in the past few years. She said she had been a shipyard worker, a dental technician, a waitress in religious films, a stewardess on a South American boat cruise, a saleswoman for advertising novelties, a swimming instructor and an airline employe.

She had been married four times. Her first marriage was to Merrick Hersey of Los Angeles, by whom she had a son, Greg, now 11. This marriage ended in divorce and she then married Michael Brandt, of Portland in the summer of 1949. Two years later she was divorced and married Smith. They were divorced in October, 1954, and remarried in February, 1955—three months before his murder.

She has a 3-year-old daughter, Susan, by Smith.

PUREBRED ANGUS HEIFER was presented Saturday to Nancy Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Warren, for her outstanding 4-H Club work during 1955 by Melvin Flegi, Poe Valley rancher. Nancy won the heifer when she was chosen the outstanding 4-H Club member at the 4-H fair held in Klamath Falls recently. The award was given jointly by Melvin and Virginia Flegi.
