

National Church Council Workers Discuss Migrants

A meeting of representatives of churches cooperating with the National Council of Churches in its ministry to migrants in this area, took place at the Mt. Laki Church Friday, October 28.

The purpose was to evaluate the work done from September 15 through October 28 by two paid workers, Florence Fairhill and Betty Blanchard, assisted by numerous volunteers from the Basin. The Reverend William Ainley, chairman, expressed approval of the work.

Betty Blanchard described conditions at Newell and Malin in the growers' camps. Among suggested improvements was the addition of screen doors to the tents at Malin, where there were 103 families at the peak of the season. Since at the Newell camp there were only 12 families, the greater part of the weekly program was carried on at Malin.

Mrs. Ross Ragland reported on the nurseries for mothers working in the potato harvest. One was held at the Malin Presbyterian Church October 10-21 and another at a building provided by the Tulelake Growers at Newell October 17-21. The following churches assisted with volunteers: Mt. Laki, St. Paul's Episcopal, First Methodist, Peace Memorial Presbyterian, Merrill Presbyterian, First Christian, Tulelake Community Presbyterian, Malin Presbyterian, Congregational, First Presbyterian and Klamath Temple.

From 11 to 24 children were cared for daily from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Women volunteers came from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and provided food for the children.

The Reverend Carl C. DeMott of the Main Community Church expressed appreciation of the work done with migrant families, especially the weekly meetings for teenagers. Attendance ranged up to 30 at campfire meetings at the church.

Family night movies twice weekly were well received at Malin. A. C. Olson, Klamath Falls, and others assisted with this program.

Mrs. John Berg reported on five thrift sales held at Newell and Malin. A small charge was made for items of clothing, netting about $80. Blankets were greatly in demand and many more could have been sold.

Sewing classes headed by Mrs. Burt Hoyle, Tulelake, and a Red Cross baby care class instructed by Mrs. George Chin, Klamath Falls, were conducted.

Mrs. William Kurtz reported on the Sunday School held Saturdays and Sundays at Malin. Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz from Merrill, and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Dye of Klamath Falls, taught a maximum group of 40 with the aid of local volunteers, using materials supplied by the National Council of Churches.

Betty Blanchard reported on the Saturday program at the migrant school building in Malin. Included in the all-day program was a health class, and a remedial reading class carried on by young people from the Klamath Temple.

Florence Fairhill suggested work which could be done during the year. Quilts, picture books, diapers, rag dolls, blocks and wooden puzzles could be made. Toys now stored at Newell need mending. A portable clothes rack for thrift sales, a carpenter kit, and first aid kits are needed. Financial aid for the program is to be given to Walt Bingham, treasurer of the Klamath Falls Council of Churches.

Angel To Give Violin Recital

Wayne Angel, Klamath Falls violinist, will be presented in recital Sunday, November 6, at 3:30 p.m. in the Portland State College Auditorium.

The recital is sponsored by the music department of Portland State. He will be accompanied by the Portland State Symphony Orchestra and Aurora Underwood.

The program will include the Fifth Violin Concerto by Mozart; Fourth Violin Concerto Op. 31 by Vieuxtemps; Poeme by Chausson; La Campanella (The Bells), Finale from the B Minor Concerto by Paganini; Songs My Mother Taught Me; All-Wien and Schon Rosmarin by Fritz Kreisler.

This will be Angel's fourth Portland recital in the last three years and his fourth concert of this year's bookings. He has been heard throughout the Northwest.

1956 Buicks Show Friday

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — The 1956 model Buick cars, featuring a four-door hardtop in each series, more powerful V-8 engines and new styling will go on dealer display Nov. 4.

For the first time, the Roadmaster, Super, Century and Special series will have the same 322 cubic inch engine. Horsepower in the first three will be 265; in the Special it will be 220. Compression ratios are 9.5 to 1 and 8.9 to 1.

Buick's variable pitch automatic transmission has been improved with the addition of a second stator to increase torque multiplication.

New V-shaped grille on an all new front end is among styling refinements. Headlamps have been redesigned to give the front fenders a longer look.

The rear end design has been refined to make the car look longer.

Among innovations for 1956 by Buick is a new jack that can be operated with the foot.

McKay Calls O & C Hearing For Clatsop Court Petition

Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay today announced plans for public hearing January 20, 1956, at Portland on the petition of the Clatsop County Court which requested that lumber industries located in Clatsop County be permitted to bid on Oregon and California revested grant land timber in the Columbia River master unit.

Located in western Oregon, O & C lands consist of more than two million acres granted by the federal government to the Oregon and California Railroad Company in 1866. They reverted to the United States in 1916 because the company failed to comply with the stipulations of the grant.

In 1947, the Department of the Interior after holding public hearings subdivided these lands into sustained-yield master units, each with an appurtenant marketing area within which the timber in the master unit must receive primary manufacture. Clatsop County was excluded when the master units and marketing areas were established, because at that time it was determined that mills in Clatsop County were not dependent upon O & C timber for their source of logs.

The Columbia River master unit which lies south and east of Clatsop County contains 94,570 acres of O & C lands, with an annual sustained-yield timber capacity of 28.3 million board feet.

The appurtenant marketing area includes many inland cities such as Portland, Oregon City, McMinnville, Forest Grove, Hillsboro, Willamina, St. Helens, Vernonia and Newberg in Oregon; Camas and Vancouver in Washington; the Oregon coastal towns of Tillamook, Neakowin, Hobo, and many other communities.

In a recent petition to the secretary, the Clatsop County court urged reexamination of this policy as it affects Clatsop County at the present time, and the hearing was scheduled as a result.

In addition, the hearing will consider inclusion in the marketing area of a portion of Columbia County bordering the Columbia River, and a portion of Tillamook and Washington counties, which also were excluded at the time the system was established.

Area Administrator James F. Doyle of the Bureau of Land Management at Portland will conduct the hearing. In the near future, he will announce the hour and place of the hearing.

All interested persons and groups will be invited to present their views.

Police Arrest Utah Polygamist

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Police last night arrested a 52-year-old construction worker accused of having three wives.

County Atty. Frank E. Moss said Albert Edmund Barlow has fathered 32 children by the three wives. He was charged with "unlawful cohabitation."

"Barlow told me his religious beliefs prompted him to follow polygamy," Moss said.

DEB ADDISON, president of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, will be the featured speaker at Wednesday's luncheon meeting at the Willard Hotel. Addison will speak on the economic development of the Klamath Basin.

Robot Warship Joins Fleet

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Navy's first robot warship was ready to join the fleet Tuesday.

The heavy cruiser Boston—with a battery of dart-nosed, anti-aircraft guided missiles pointing skyward from the after deck—stood at a pier in the Navy yard here, awaiting an afternoon commissioning ceremony.

At a preview Monday, Capt. Charles B. Martell, commanding officer, said the Terrier missiles can track down enemy aircraft and "do the job of destruction a good part of the time." He also disclosed for the first time that the missiles have range of 20 miles.

The Boston, veteran of gunfiring days in the Pacific campaigns of World War II, has been under conversion for the past three years to arm her with the weapons of the jet plane and atom bomb age.

The Navy says she marks the advent of the guided missile in the combatant fleet. The five-inch gun, until the last few years the mainstay of protection against enemy aircraft, now have been relegated to the category of a close-in, last resort weapon, top Navy officials have said. Interception of swift jet planes must be made at relatively long distance, by missiles.

The Boston and other converted cruisers and destroyers to follow her will provide, along with fighter aircraft, the protection for today's fast carrier task forces.

The Terrier missile follows radar beam and finally "homes in" by another self-contained radar unit as it reaches the area of a target aircraft. It has supersonic speed, probably about 1,700 miles per hour.

The Navy aims at a high rate of fire for the Terrier missiles. The Boston is fitted with a completely automatic loading device which can reload the launchers twice within a minute. A salvo of four missiles can be fired in eight-tenths of a second.

A sister ship of the Boston, the Canberra, will be recommissioned next spring as the second guided missile firing cruiser.

ARTIFICIAL EARTHQUAKE SENDAI, Japan (AP) — Seismologists touched off an artificial earthquake with TNT, then gazed wide-eyed at the result. Shock waves were clocked over a 93-mile distance at 17,290 m.p.h.
