

MABEL HANSON, CHAIRMAN ex-officio, and Charles Woodhouse, chairman, supervising 24 Klamath County schools who will participate in American Education Week, November 6 through November 12, inspect the special week's official poster. The six-day affair, which will culminate with a gala "Klamath County Open House" in Klamath Union High School's Pelican Court on November 9, received the official "green light" last week when Mayor Paul Landry and Judge U. E. Reeder declared this week officially dedicated to the city and county schools. Theme for this year's week is "Schools—Your Investment in America."

Educators Planning Fetes During U.S. Education Week

Pageant committee members completed programming plans today for American Education Week, and released their entertainment agenda for the special week's "Klamath County Open House," slated for November 9, in Klamath Union High School's Pelican Court.

The open house will be the highlight of a full week, November 6 through November 12, dedicated to the cause of education in which 24 Klamath County schools will participate.

Merrill High School will offer a student act entitled "Potato Festival Drill." Bonanza will send 12 students in an act that will interpret International Understanding Through the United Nations. Fourteen Malin elementary and secondary students will be featured in a Ezechiasovakian dance.

Fairview School will present "The Yellow Rose of Texas." Musical attraction of the affair will see Pelican School's accordion band in action. Ferguson School will present a delineation of the life of Twyla Ferguson. Altamont elementary and junior high will feature a Jewish dance by 12 parents. "Memories," enacting scenes of old Klamath school days, will be Kenos's offering.

A Western ranch theme in song will be Kly School's contribution. Varied entertainment will be given by Mills School, and Klamath Union High School will present a series of dramatic skills.

A special feature of the open house celebration will be an evening of the "Freedom Shrine," a series of framed copies of his-

Police Seek Coast Mobster

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UP)—Authorities today sought a West Coast mobster for questioning in the gangland slaying of former labor racketeer Willie Bioff.

Maricopa County Sheriff L. C. Boies said his office is checking a tip that the mobster arrived by plane in Phoenix about 16 hours before Bioff was murdered Friday by a dynamite bomb rigged to the starter of his pickup truck.

An inquest was scheduled today (at 3:30 p.m. EST) into the murder.

The hoodlum left Phoenix a few hours after Bioff was killed, according to the tip which Boies' office received.

Bioff is believed to have been the victim of a revenge killing, inspired by his testimony against several men — including members of the Al Capone gang — in connection with a million-dollar extortion racket against movie studios in Hollywood.

In another development, police arrested William (Bill) Savoie, 29, of New Orleans, on charges he tried to extort $10,000 from Mrs. Bioff by claiming he knew where to find her husband's killer.

Driver Sentenced To Jail, Fined

Joe Lee Payne, 39-year-old potato grader, was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail and fined $150 Monday when he pleaded guilty to driving an automobile while his license was suspended.

Payne, who pleaded guilty to the charge, told District Judge D. E. Van Vactor, that his license was suspended after he was found guilty of driving while intoxicated by Police Judge Frank Blackmer.

He was arrested on the latest charge by state police.

CONVICTED

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—A U.S. Marine court martial Monday convicted Marine Pfc. Raymond E. Parker of raping a 17-year-old Okinawan girl and sentenced him to life imprisonment.

GM Too Big, Quinn Tells Senators

WASHINGTON (AP)—T. K. Quinn, businessman and author, told senators today "General Motors is entirely too big."

"It unwittingly threatens the very existence of countless good companies and eventually our own free American institutions," Quinn said in a statement prepared for the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee at the opening session of a four week "study" of GM, the world's largest manufacturing firm.

Quinn proposed a "maximum free enterprise bill" designed to restrict the size of large corporations and possibly to persuade them to break up. This, said Quinn, is the way to deal with what he termed the "giantism issue." He said this is the "pressing, dreadful issue" facing the country.

Long a critic of large corporations, Quinn formerly was a vice-president of the General Electric Corp. He now is head of two small firms, T. K. Quinn Co. and Monitor Equipment Corp., in New York. He has written a number of books, including "Giant Business: Threat to Democracy" and "I Quit Monster Business."

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), presiding over the hearings, has said they are not an investigation of

GM. But he said the subcommittee wants to try to find out how GM grew so big and to look into complaints that GM has exerted undue pressure on its dealers and suppliers.

Quinn said the legislation he has in mind would be aimed at "limiting and restricting oversized corporations" and restoring "economic freedom in many fields that are now practically closed."

In general, Quinn said such legislation would define an oversized company as one with perhaps 100 million dollars or more in net worth. In certain high-capital industries, such as autos and steel, a 200 or 300 million dollar ceiling might be allowed, he said.

Quinn suggested the imposition of sleeper corporation income tax rates on firms exceeding the maximum. Tax rates would be graded upwards as the size of these firms increased.

The phone call Bo'sun Bill dreamed of for months. The long, low tanker had docked earlier in the afternoon. But it was dusk before Bo'sun Bill could step ashore and get to a telephone. He had thought about this call for nearly half a year. For looking forward to a reunion with the family back home is a favorite pastime when a man's away at sea. As Bill placed his long distance call, he sounded perfectly calm. But inside, his excitement ran deep. And maybe you can imagine the feeling at the other end of the line when the phone rang moments later. For can't you recall telephone reunions that meant just as much to you? Indeed, time and again, the telephone plays an unforgettable part in life... as it helps bring each of us closer to those who count most.

Many a big moment in life starts with the telephone... whenever a call brings news of an engagement in the family, or a birth, or of a visit by someone special.

And this doesn't include the hundred and one other ways your telephone serves you—helping you get things done and making life easier and more fun.

'Round the clock, every day of the year, telephone people are on the job to see that your telephone is ready to serve you in every way possible... whenever you need it.

The telephone people of Klamath Falls work to make your telephone a bigger value every day
