Carrie Wright Said Better

PORT KLAMATH — Mrs. Walter J. (Carrie Mae) Wright, who has been a patient at Klamath Valley Hospital since October 24 following an automobile accident is reported out of danger and may receive visitors at the hospital.

Mrs. Wright was injured when she lost control of her car after being blinded by lights of an approaching car as she was driving home about 10 p.m. Sunday night, October 23. She is being treated for a broken breast bone, broken hand and leg and severe shock.

A daughter, Mrs. John McGlynn of Fresno, was with her until last week. Mrs. Wright's brother, Joe Perry, lives in Klamath Falls and has been in constant attendance.

Her husband, Walter J. (Pete) Wright, was in Klamath Falls until she was declared past the critical stage and is now at home at the Loren Miller Company ranch south of Port Klamath. He has been employed by the Millers for more than 40 years and is now a year-round ranch hand at their Port Klamath operation.
