Shasta Ski Area Ready

DUNSMUIR — As soon as there is sufficient snow depth, the ski tow at Snowman's Hill will go into operation, according to Gus Odegard, president of the Mount Shasta Snowmen. That may be next weekend if the weather continues cold and Tuesday's predicted storm dumps another layer on the foot of snow now on the hill.

The ski tow has been renovated to accommodate up to 10 skiers under dry snow conditions instead of the four that could be handled at one time last year.

The radiator size has been doubled to prevent engine overheating, the engine has been tuned up and a link chain drive installed replacing the former friction pulley drive Odegard said.

Installation of the ski tow was completed last week by a work party of snowmen.

It has also been announced that refreshments will be available at the warming hut this year whenever the ski tow is in operation. The concession has been given to Gwen Rubidoux of the Greyhound Bus Depot restaurant. Mrs. Rubidoux is also qualified to give first aid.

The snowmen will have their next meeting on December 1 at the Mount Shasta Ski Hall. A ski equipment auction will be a feature of the evening.

"It took the death of a 14-year-old child at the hands of a brutal people to bring you together, but the same kind of thing has been going on a long time," Mrs. Hurley said.

"When I first heard that Emmett had been taken from home, I said to myself, 'another Negro has disappeared and we won't know what happened to him until his body is found.' I'd been through things like this before, so I knew how it would turn out."
